INFORMATION ON THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY

Brochure for Information Officers attached to Member States' Embassies in non-member countries

1981.

I. GENERAL INTRODUCTION

This brochure is designed to show Information Officers in non-member countries what material the Commission can make available to help them provide information about the European Community on the basis of up-to-date documentation. It is published under the procedure set up by the Council in 1972 for coordinating activities connected with the provision of information on the European Community in non-member countries.

We hope that Information Officers will make full use of this material by contacting the Commission's Directorate-General for Information or, where possible, its local or regional Information Offices.

Informing Embassies about Community decisions

Under the arrangement for coordinating information operations in non-member countries, a system exists for informing Embassies of Member States about Community decisions.

This system, which the Council set up in 1975 with regard to its own decisions, was consolidated in 1979, when it was also extended to certain Commission decisions.

The system involves the distribution of :

- short, factual briefs on Council decisions telexed to Embassies in the countries directly concerned;
- factual background material on Council decisions dispatched by airmail or diplomatic bag, where appropriate circulation will be wider;
- information on Commission decisions having direct and important repercussions on countries in which the Commission has no representative. (Texts are sent by the Commission to the Presidency, which forwards them to the Embassies in the countries concerned).

The Council's General Secretariat looks after the practical operation of this system.

"Europe Pictorial"

"Europe Pictorial", the newsreel produced since 1 July 1977, has proved to be a useful information medium in developing countries, particularly the ACP countries. Its main aim is to portray the cultural, economic, political, scientific and technological physiognomies of the Community and the Member States, describe their common problems and interdependence and reflect the increasing cooperation between the Community and the developing countries.

The Commission produces the newsreel from contribution supplied by the Member States and by its own staff.

"Europe Pictorial" is currently produced in 122 copies, which are distributed to cinemas and television networks in more than 53 countries^(°). Two language versions - French and English - are produced in 16 mm and 35 mm.

Information Officers in the countries concerned are requested to make sure, if they are not doing so already, that the distribution of "Europe Pictorial" is as wide as possible, to assess its impact and to mention it in their annual report.

^(°) Antigua, Bahamas, Barbados, Benin, Burma, Burundi, Comoros, Congo, Cyprus, Djibouti, Dominica, Egypt, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Gibraltar, Grenada, Guyana, Jamaica, Kenya, Kiribati, Lesotho, Madagascar, Malawi, Mali, Malta, Mauritius, Netherlands Antilles, Niger, Nigeria, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, Rwanda, St Kitts, St. Lucia, Samoa, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syria, Tanzania, Thailand, Trinidad and Tobago, Turkey, Uganda, Zaire, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

Tonga, Tunisia and the Seychelles select editions on the basis of the weekly synopsis as do the 29 members of the International Newsreel and News Film Association (INA), of which "Europe Pictorial" is a member.

II. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY PUBLICATIONS

1. The main publications of the institutions and other organs of the Community are listed in the catalogue The European Community as a publisher 1981/82, which gives :

- the principal official publications;
- widely used general information publications.

The first group are sold by the Official Publications Office of the European Communities (boîte postale 1003, Luxembourg), while the second can be obtained free as explained in point 2 below.

The catalogue is published once a year in the official languages of the Community.

The most recent edition was published in September 1981; the Publications Office will supply a copy to any Embassies requesting one.

2. Information publications issued by the Commission of the European Communities :

a) Information Officers will find below a list of publications prepared by the Commission's Directorate-General for Information; these publications are distributed from Brussels.

b) The Commission Information Offices - whose addresses are given in Annex I - issue a range of publications to cater for information requirements in the countries in which they are based. These publications are of course issued in the normal language of the country concerned.

c) In non-member countries where there is an Information Office to represent the Commission, it is suggested that Information Officers should maintain contact with the Head of the Office, who is responsible for producing and distributing information material (See Annex I).

d) In non-member countries where no such office exists, Information Officers are asked to consult the list of publications given below; these publications may be obtained by Information Officers free of charge, either for their own information or for distribution to persons interested in the European Community, its policies and its relations with the country concerned. An order form can be found at the end of this brochure.

In view of the Commission's limited budgetary resources and in order to prevent duplication of effort, Information Officers are asked to limit their free orders for publications to a reasonable number of copies (say from 25 to 100); these should be distributed locally, particularly but not exclusively to press circles. Information Officers in any one country are therefore advised to draw up joint distribution lists. Order forms should be completed jointly by the Information Officers and sent through representative of the country currently occupying the Presidency of the Council of Ministers of the European Communities, to the address given in Annex I.

III. FACT-FINDING VISITS TO THE COMMISSION BY PERSONS FROM NON-MEMBER COUNTRIES

1. In line with its priorities regarding information to non-member countries and within the limits imposed by the budget, the Commission welcomes journalists and other visitors from non-member countries, holding responsible positions in political, economic and trade union life in their countries.

The Commission will do its utmost to meet any requests for such visits received from Member States' Embassies.

2. In 1980 the Commission received a total of 3 289 visitors from non-Community countries. Of these, 1 641 represented priority groups (MPs, press, radio and television reporters, senior officials, and so on). A breakdown by country is given in Annex VI.
3. Within the limits imposed by the budget, the Commission would like to increase the number of visitors to Brussels from non-member countries. It would appreciate the continuing help of Member States' representatives serving in non-member countries.
4. Embassies are requested to inform individuals or groups with a genuine professional interest in the European Community, its policies and relations with the country concerned who are sent to one or more Member States at the expense of that or those Member States, that they can extend their stay in Europe by a day or two to take in a fact-finding visit to the Commission of the European Communities in Brussels.

If tickets provided by the Member States cannot include such a stopover, the Commission, after approving the planned visit, would defray the cost of a return journey between Brussels and an appropriate point on the visitor's European itinerary. It would also cover hotel expenses (See form 2 at the end of the brochure).

The procedure is as follows :

- a. In countries where the Commission has an Information Office, the Information Officers should refer their proposals to the Head of that Office with a view to including Brussels on the itinerary. (The list of Commission Information Offices in non-Community countries is given in Annex I). Visitors can then get in touch with the Head of the Office to arrange the programme for their visits.

Information officers serving in Latin America and in South-East Asia should contact the Head of the Information Service in the Commission's Delegation for Latin America, in CARACAS, or the Head of the Information Service in the Commission's Delegation for South-East Asia in BANGKOK.

b. Information Officers in non-member countries where the Commission has no Information Office should write to :

Visits Division
Directorate-General for Information
Commission of the European Communities
200 rue de la Loi,
B - 1049 Brussels (Belgium)

Telephone : 7350040 or 7358040
Telex : 21877 COMEU B.

c. In certain cases the necessary arrangements can also be made between the appropriate authorities of the host state (e.g. Internationales in Bonn or the Central Office of Information in London) and the Visits Division.

If necessary, the diplomatic missions or ministerial departments can get in touch with the Commission through the Office of their Permanent Representative in Brussels.

d. In all cases, at least one month's notice is needed to programme visits.

5. A number of visits have been organized in this way since 1977.

A specimen programme is given in Annex VII.

The particulars required by the Commission's departments are set out in form 2 at the end of this brochure.

IV. AUDIO VISUAL INFORMATION : RADIO, TELEVISION, FILM and PHOTOGRAPHS.

1. The task of the Radio, Television and Films Division in the Commission's Directorate-General for Information is to supply audio-visual information on the European Community and its policies to Community and non-Community countries, notably to radio and television stations. The Division is ready to give its support to the Information Officers and would welcome any ideas and suggestions about how the Commission's audio-visual material can be best utilized.

For non-member countries where the Commission has an Information Office, general comments should be passed through the Head of the Office. Specific suggestions and requests for documentation should be addressed through him.

For other countries, a letter or telex should be sent to :
