INTRODUCTION

In 1995, more than 6000 young people received Community grants under the actions of the YOUTH FOR EUROPE programme, which is directly managed by the Commission of the European Union. This represents about 1000 projects lead by or for young people in the different Member States of the European Union and the eligible countries of the programme.

This Compendium does not include all of the exchange projects, in excess of 2.500, financed by the programme's National Agencies. These exchange projects involve the mobility of more than 70.000 young people in Europe.

YOUTH FOR EUROPE, adopted on 14 March 1995 for a period of five years, draws on considerable experience and has proved over time to be one of the main means of promoting a policy of cooperation for young people in Europe.

This programme is constructed from diverse actions which overlap and complement each other to form a coherent whole.

Aimed at contributing to the education of young people, some activities help them develop intercultural apprenticeships within their projects, or encourage them to strengthen cooperation with their partners, or give them the means to experiment with new working methods, or enable them to become directly involved in the life of their local community.

YOUTH FOR EUROPE raises the awareness of young people, between the ages of 15 and 25, to the considerable role they play in constructing Europe.

The projects which are submitted every year illustrate the extraordinary creativity of European youth and act as a barometer to their state of mind. They reveal the hopes, fears, expectations and enthusiasm of this section of the population preparing itself for transition to adult life.

Each action of the programme follows specific aims and projects submitted are accepted as long as they have followed these aims as closely as possible. Apart from this requirement, however, everything or nearly everything is allowed as far as choice of theme, working methods, partners involved and implementation methods are concerned. It is because of this freedom that YOUTH FOR EUROPE has become a real "nursery" for innovative projects.

The various actions are quite different one from the other. The main concern of the intra-Community exchanges is tolerance, the triumph of the multicultural over xenophobia and racism. Dynamic methods of communication are often used in these projects, such as theatre, music, audio-visual, dance, painting etc. Art is chosen as it is a universal language and reaches further than words.

In projects involving third countries, young people focus on the future of the wider Europe, seen as a "unified yet diverse continent". Issues such as territory, national identity, cultural minorities may be found in the participants' debates. Here, it is less a question of celebrating diversity, but more the need to wipe out prejudices linked to the past and to engage in the process of European integration.

The Youth Initiatives illustrate the willingness to make innovative practices available to other young people living in similar environments. The main aim of the projects is to show that young people are capable of undertaking and finishing what they have started. They want to create pockets of hope which rely on their own efforts and base their actions where they live in order to reinforce links with their local community. The young people have started writing newspapers, producing videogrammes, presenting radio programmes, but also putting new life into disused buildings, places of cultural interest, planting trees in old parts of town, creating small companies ...

The youth leaders and Member State structures priorities' are, when they meet during study or training visits, to gain knowledge of working practices in the youth field, to provide access for all young people to European programmes and to encourage the transfer of know-how from one Member State to another. These activities help to improve the quality of exchanges and to create educational tools which are transferable to other Member States. The intercultural dimension is the main focus of these field workers. Cooperation between different Member State structures helps to consolidate the programme's firm base in each Member State whilst at the same time inciting promoters to create networks between themselves, as an example of real European cooperation in the youth field. Lastly, youth information completes the wide range of instruments aimed both at young people as well as at those who look after them in order to make the aims of the programme a reality.

Altogether, the 1.000 projects which ran in 1995, illustrate the eagerness of young people to experience an active citizenship in and thanks to Europe.

BENEFICIARY EUROPEAN EXTENSION

Description

Numerous projects under YFE II and Priority Actions in the youth field have been funded which involved disabled young people. The 'European extension' for disadvantaged people is an NGO very active and innovative in developing this kind of project, which has proposed to draw up an inventory of the experiences within the Member states (number and nature of projects, number of young people, organisations involved) and to highlight the best practices. A second stage will follow whereby a network of partners will be established. This project will be very relevant for providing visibility of the different activities developed with, for and by disabled young people.

BENEFICIARY OPVANGCENTRUM DE RODE LANTAARN

Description

The project consists of four main parts: the setting up of a reception centre, foster care, street corner work and a video project. Concretely, the applicants want to act against the problem of prostitution amongst young boys and the "trading" of these boys. A "night living" and a secretariat will be set up in Gent to offer immediate shelter and alternative solutions to the boys concerned. Longer term solutions will be sought in the organisation of foster homes and the setting up of a reception centre in Kortrijk which has less of a prostitution problem. The video project envisages an opportunity for the young people to express their feelings about their experiences. A group of 20 young people (mainly of Christian conviction) will run and evaluate the project, but about 100 will benefit directly from the project. The young people involved in the project will realise a range of tasks including street work, foster care and the reception of the target group. They will also be responsible for the general management of the project.

BENEFICIARY YOUTH SERVICE OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF RUSKO

Description

Two municipalities have a common secondary school, but the young people have not integrated well, resulting in vandalism in their free time. The project intends to gradually bring together the young people who come from different social backgrounds for a common project - a youth magazine. The production of the magazine requires teamwork, which is hoped to bring the young people closer together in other frameworks, i.e. the marginalised youth would step by step, also be integrated into other leisure time activities. The main group to produce the magazine will consist of 15-20 people some from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds, but the intention is that it will generate interest and that all 250 young people will somehow be able to contribute to the project/benefit from it. The project was initiated by the young people themselves, it will be run by them with a 20 year old conscientious objector as a tutor/leader.

BENEFICIARY THE BAKERS OF CULTURE

Description

A theatre production of a play written by a local author, which will be a joint project between local young people and local professional actors. The aim is to involve young people from all parts of society, particularly those who do not usually have the opportunity to take part in the cultural activities provided at municipal level. Local young people from various cultural, social and educational backgrounds are targeted. Fourteen young people will be directly involved in managing the project, with a further 30-40 young performers taking part in the play itself. The project was initiated by young people for young people. They will work within youth-led teams on their own terms. However, the project advisor is hoping that the young people will also form teams on their own terms. The project advisor is also hoping that the young people will make a written commitment to the follow-up of the project.

BENEFICIARY SERVICE CIVIL INTERNATIONAL

Description

The volunteer will spend nine months in a residential area near Reggio Emilia which has become a ghetto with few cultural activities and opportunities to meet. He will stay in a community fighting against social exclusion and working on the social reintegration of under age people with psychological problems. The centre also deals with young people put into care because of distress in the family and provides opportunities for their personal development through educational and social experiences and vocational training. It is hoped that these activities will give them the confidence to rebuild their life. The volunteer will collaborate with a team in the daily running of the centre, including domestic chores, gardening, animation and other educational activities. The volunteer is a 25 year old Spaniard who has experience working with young people with integration problems and is interested in non-formal methods of education for them. He will benefit from the experience by working with children, learning how small communities deal with young people that have problems and challenging himself to accept different points of view to his own. The volunteer must be willing to work in a team and support his colleagues, to spend time with the children and young people, to organise recreational activities with them and to contribute to the promotion of civil and social rights for young people.

Description

A workshop for young people which will take place in Hungary on the theme of "participative messages from young people and mass effects". This is the third in a series on the same theme. This process is mainly intended to result in a European analysis of original features, shortcomings and dysfunctions in youth participation processes relating to activities aimed at and carried out by young people themselves. The specific reason for this meeting is to globalise the information and debate on youth participation in local workshops through communicable productions, to experiment with working formulas and transpose them into an intercultural situation. Three techniques have been selected as working media: theatre-forum; video as a tool for analysing the situation; and mural messages as a form of challenge. The participants are young people in vocational training, pupils in higher and secondary education, young students and young working people - very different social environments: F6, I6, H6, LIT6. They were recruited on the basis of their participation in local workshops.

BENEFICIARY INTERKULTURELLES ZENTRUM

Description

A three-leg multilateral activity to take place in Vienna aiming to improve the quality of youth exchanges within the Youth for Europe Programme. The working concept of the activity is "Intercultural Learning in Youth Exchanges". The first leg of the activity will provide the participants with a theoretical background to the concept and initiate the planning of multilateral exchange projects. It will also deal with the political and pedagogical framework of the Youth for Europe Programme. Between the first and the second phase the participants will start to implement the planned exchange activities. The second leg will develop the intercultural competence of the participants in general and work on the practical aspects of an intercultural youth exchange. Between the first and the second leg the participants will carry out the planned exchange projects, which will then be evaluated during the third leg. The third leg will also evaluate the entire training course and further develop intercultural working methods. The same participants are expected to be involved throughout the entire long term training and stay in touch with each other in between the actual training sessions. Twenty five youth workers from EU member states (and EEA countries) and Central European countries will take part. They will be recruited via the National Agencies/designated National Agencies of the Youth for Europe Programme.

UNITED KINGDOMBENEFICIARY PROEUROPA*Description

A 10 day activity to take place in Devon (UK) and Vincennes (F). The activity aims to introduce the youth work structures at local, regional and national level in UK and France, and more specifically to look at the local youth structures and policies. The activity intends to discuss future cooperation from the perspective of the need and content of youth worker training courses between EU and eligible countries, and of the setting-up and organising of youth exchanges between the participating countries. The programme in both countries presents visits to various youth organisations and discussions with local authorities about youth work provisions. The programme offers possibilities for bilateral discussions between organisations on future cooperation and on setting up exchanges. It also provides the participants with an opportunity to discuss on their needs and requirements with regard to the organisation of training courses. Four EU (2F, 2UK), 1 CY, 10 CEC (2ALB, 4H, 4PL) youth workers and youth leaders.

Description

A multilateral activity to take place in Someren-Heide (NL). This activity "Asten youth exchange 97" follows the tradition started in 1991 of organising an annual gathering of young Orthodox people at the Orthodox Monastery in Asten. This particular exchange aims to gather Orthodox youth of different origins (culture, language, socio-economical situation) to constitute a community for the duration of the exchange, with the objectives of creating bonds between the youth on the basis of their common features of religion and of their belonging to Europe; widening the ethnic understanding of their own religious community; and getting to know the hosting Orthodox communities in the Netherlands. The programme includes keynote speeches on themes such as the Orthodox Church and the European Union, modern day refugees and culture, nationalism, conflict: an Orthodox view. Workshop discussions, social activities, field visits and excursions reflecting the themes will be arranged. Special emphasis will be given to the changed situation of the Orthodox church in some Eastern European countries. 45 participants: 28 from EU and 17 from the eligible countries. In addition eight youth leaders will attend. Some of the participants come from socio-economically deprived surroundings, some from immigrant communities and some belong to minority groups.

BENEFICIARY ECOSE – EUROPEAN CULTURAL ORGANISATION SOCIAL EDUCATION

Description

The activity is a follow-up to a study visit which was realised in December 1994 in Athens. Its objectives are: to promote a more open and tolerant society; to develop a feeling of a common continental past and examine the potential that this offers with all its diversities; and to encourage the participants to take an active role as European citizens. The programme has devoted a specific theme for each day which will be tackled by lectures, workshops, simulation and intercultural games. The programme also includes some field visits and cultural excursions. 20 EU (5D, 5DK, 5GR, 5UK) and 25 CIS (6BEL, 3GEO, 10RUS, 6UKR) participants who have had little or no possibilities earlier for international contacts/travel will take part. Some of them are unemployed, most Eastern European participants face economic difficulties and geographic isolation.

BENEFICIARY INTER'ACT

Description

A training activity to take place in Volgograd (RUS) which intends to generate an understanding of the basic principles of European youth cooperation between partners from different socio-political and cultural backgrounds, to develop skills necessary for youth work at European level and to convey the pedagogical and political implications of the YFE programme on the active participation of young people. The training course being held in Eastern Europe will add to the confidence building among the Eastern and Central European participants who can use the home ground advantage and thus bring an additional value to the training itself. In total there will be 30 participants, 15 from EU member states (3D, 3F, 3E, 3P, 3GR), 12 CIS (3RUS, 3UKR, 3GEO, 3ARM) and three from Hungary and in addition four leaders, two interpreters and two language assistants. Most of the participants are experienced youth workers. Great importance is placed on the selection of participants from circles that normally do not have easy access to international cooperation, but who are keen on developing democratic structures for youth work.

Description

This course on training community youth leaders as protagonists for social integration will take place in a suburb of Quito. The aims of the project are a better understanding of the emergence of youth leaders in Latin America and Europe in order to encourage the social integration of marginalised young people, to pursue the establishment of a common network of trainers and to promote the feeling of belonging to a regional, continental and planetary community through youth exchanges. A pre-placement programme is planned in order to familiarise the Latin-American participants with the European context. The placement itself provides concrete and practical information for organising cooperation projects to integrate young people. Participants will be young people from "invaded" districts (occupants with no legal title), leaders of self-managed social services, workers living in the building, laundry workers, domestic staff and itinerant traders. They have a few years of primary schooling and "on-the-job" education: 1B, 2D, 2E, 2F, 2I, 1UK, 2BO, 2CL, 12EC, 2PR, 2VE.

Description

Production of a CD-ROM containing information on: transport and communications; accommodation; possibilities for studying and working in the EU; the European Union. The information in question is targeted to young people and will contribute to their mobility in Europe. The project aims at developing a youth information instrument - CD-ROM - that exploits the possibilities for youth information dissemination off-line. CD-ROMs are high-tech, relatively low cost complements to on-line information services.

BENEFICIARY SERVICE CIVIL INTERNATIONAL

Description

Youth information project aiming at promoting voluntary service at European level. In order to promote voluntary service activities, SCI has identified the need to set up a database where information on organisations and other voluntary service related issues could be collected; a newsletter will be published whereby voluntary service organisations will be made aware of the possibilities offered by the database; the newsletter will also serve to stimulate cooperation in this particular area. SCI proposes to set up an e-mail system to encourage exchange of information on voluntary service. A seminar is also planned within the context of the project.

TRANSNATIONAL YOUTH INFORMATION NETWORK

Second phase of the Transnational Youth Information Network. This project constitutes a major step in the creation of a pan-European youth information network: a service that will provide accurate and up to date information on European opportunities for young people; direct contact with young people and counselling is at the heart of the project. Sixteen partners from thirteen countries are now connected as a network linked through this project that allows also sharing of national information that each of the partners puts into the system. As part of the project, national networks are in the process of being established.

Following the completion of the first phase of the project, the second phase will allow participants to:

- consolidate the network by streamlining data input, communication with other partners and reinforcing their command over the software used;
- cover the national territory efficiently.
