1. Thirtieth anniversary of the signing of the ECSC Treaty

1.1.1. A series of now historic dates have marked the integration of Europe since the end of World War II, a development inevitably punctuated by difficulties and crises as the Community advanced and expanded.

One of these landmarks is 9 May 1950, when—at a press conference in the Salle de l'Horloge at the Quai d'Orsay—Robert Schuman, France's Minister of Foreign Affairs, proposed in a Declaration inspired by Jean Monnet the creation of an organization with its own institutions—the first step towards an economic Community and the first foundations of a European Federation for the preservation of peace.

Opening at the end of June, the negotiations for the Treaty setting up the first of the European Communities moved swiftly. They were brought to a successful close 10 months later, and the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community came into force at the end of July 1952.

After the failure of the European Defence Community—and with it the plan for a European Political Community—at the end of August 1954, a political venture on the part of the ECSC paved the way for a fresh move towards European integration. Following the conference held in Messina from 1 to 3 June 1955 and the resolution adopted there, a series of meetings culminated in the signing in Rome on 25 March 1957 of Treaties establishing two further Communities, very soon christened 'the Common Market' and 'Euratom', which will be celebrating their 25th anniversary on 25 March 1982.

Meanwhile, on the 30th anniversary of the ECSC Treaty, the President of the Commission, Mr Gaston Thorn, gave an address in which he recalled the origins of the ECSC and spoke of the present problems of the Communities and the challenges facing them tomorrow.

The ECSC—past and present

1.1.2. 'Far be it from me to suggest that our illustrious predecessors had everything going for them. Scarcely five years after a hideous world conflict, so many wounds were still raw, victors and vanquished alike were still haunted by distressing memories, and more distrust was being generated by the international situation—from the consequences of the Berlin blockade to the unsatisfactory status of the Saar and the Ruhr.

Yet, a few simple, forceful words were to hallmark a movement which is still going on today. You know the words I mean: "Europe will not be built all at once, or as a single whole: it will be built by concrete achievements which first create de facto solidarity".

Besides the method chosen, ... it is that initial impetus in establishing the ECSC which we must look to as an example. Why? Because this new edifice fulfilled a deeply felt need in the post-war generation—a longing to exorcise the strains, the risks of another conflict between Germany and France. Let us never forget, then, the material importance of this institution that we are commemorating. It was the transition from a philosophy of occupation to one of integration.

To the question why this shift had pivoted on coal and steel, Robert Schuman replied: "We could not presume to undertake immediately a simultaneous examination of all sectors of the European economy. Because of the technical complications and because people were not ready we had to proceed in stages, make a choice".

... The ECSC was soon to be accompanied by a European Economic Community and a European Atomic Energy Community. From solidarity confined to coal and steel, which were still of vital importance, they moved on to the integration of a vast common economic area. What we must emphasize as we commemorate the ECSC's 30th anniversary is that from the outset its political objectives were deeply rooted in a method of integrated economic development.

... And yet, problems have not failed to appear over the years. The first were inherent in a coal industry in the throes of change. Then came those, more heavily on our minds today, which have severely hit our steel industry. Here let me say loud and clear—and no-one can fail to recognize this—that it is the principles and rules governing the ECSC that have propped Europe's attempts to contain and cushion the more disastrous economic and social effects of those problems on companies and their employees and on the consumer.

... So neither the present situation, as we apprehend it, nor its possible ramifications, either on the ECSC front in particular or in the Community in general, give any cause for jubilation. You know as well as I that the objective constraints imposed by the world crisis and—even more so—attacks launched by national self-interest threaten to jeopardize our achievements and endanger our institutions.'

The difficulties of today and the challenges for tomorrow

1.1.3. The Community is at the moment in a state of economic and social upheaval unprecedented since its inception. This turmoil generates, in political relations between its Member States, in relations between its institutions and in the mind of the public, strains which it would be both idle and dangerous to ignore or underestimate.

(i) On the economic and social side, the unabating pressure of inflation and the rising tide of unemployment, the decline in growth, the deficits without and the mounting disparities within...

(ii) On the political side, these problems are reflected in a disturbing loosening of solidarity between Member States, too much inflexibility in national behaviour, which impedes the Community's decision-making process, and lastly—and perhaps worst of all—disenchantment, not to say disillusion, with the European cause.

... To meet the challenges facing us we are going to get moving on energy, industry and trade, which are obviously closely linked. Events compel us to show perseverance and solidarity...'.

Towards an energy policy

1.1.4. 'It was clear right from the start that conversion of the coal industry would not give us the key to an energy policy worthy of the name. Even the existence of Euratom was not going to enable us to counteract Europe's dependence on the raw materials of energy, a dependence which had been there for a long time. Many of us can certainly recall the heated arguments that punctuated the planned decline in coal output and the substitution of oil, believed to offer more advantages. The result of taking that option was to see the Community's self-sufficiency slump from 48% in 1968 to around 40% in 1980. We are now thinking in terms of energy objectives. The Council has set a number of such objectives for 1990, and the Commission will see to it that all Member States incorporate them into their national programmes.'

Towards an industrial policy

1.1.5. 'On the industrial front we are up against many pressing problems. Mr Davignon has spelled out the conditions for survival and the deadlines for the steel industry. I can do no more than re-emphasize that we simply must find a genuine European solution. This means, besides company reorganization, the redeployment and retraining of steelworkers.

In integrating this key sector of the economy, our industrial policy must be founded on a crystal-clear strategy: attainment of a large internal market, the restructuring of declining industries and the development of industries with prospects of sustainable growth.

(i) Already rid of the administrative barriers which until not so long ago still separated Member States' markets from one another, the internal market must be gradually unified and made transparent. Free movement of persons, goods and services must be assured. These are tangibles which Europeans can appreciate.

(ii) In the industries directly affected by the international redistribution of labour or hit by the higher costs of raw materials and energy, we must go for forceful and effective restructuring; in other words, we must reduce production capacity and modernize plant wherever we have to.

The Community must get businesses to take a responsible part and not allow restructuring to be vitiated by national ventures distorting competition or artificially propping up the status quo. And here it is my bounden duty to emphasize that 'restructuring' means accepting sometimes painful sacrifices for firms and their employees, if any useful purpose is to be served.

(iii) The development of industries with prospects of sustainable growth will be systematically pursued. The promotion of new activities related to the advanced technologies is a response to the concern of being able to meet soaring demand in the years ahead, especially in the applications of microelectronics, automation and, later on, biotechnology. Not to embark resolutely on that course would be to jeopardize the competitiveness of our industries and see whole branches of activity move away to more innovative and go-ahead countries.'

External relations

1.1.6. ' "Egoism no longer pays", said Robert Schuman. A close look at our external relations should convince us of this. Be it our commercial policy, development cooperation or our initiatives to promote world peace, our successes and our impact are always judged by our solidarity.'

...Today, our interests are also laid bare in multilateral negotiations dealing with the supply and price of the various forms of energy, with trade, where certain intolerable imbalances have set in, with financial and monetary relations ... and a host of issues on which our development depends. So, as a Community, we must also claim that our long-standing allies and friends show us solidarity too.

To take a case in point: if the United States steps outside the framework of our economic relations and legitimately calls for solidarity in a well-founded concern for security, surely we are justified in demanding the same solidarity in what is a particularly difficult trading climate. In much the same way, have not our Japanese partners been reaping the benefit of wide access to our domestic market?

If we are still stubbornly resisting the emergence of protectionist tendencies in certain areas of our economy, this is not only because of our position as the world's biggest trading power but also because of how we see the international scene ... The Commission will constantly try to foster, in external relations, an approach which is at once Community-inspired and aware of our interdependence with our partners. That has always been and will always be our attitude.'

What is at stake for the future?

1.1.7. '... Our premise is that we already have Community policies ... Our major concern now must be to adapt them to the realities of today which presage the changes in store for us.

As you know, the Commission has been engaged over the last few months in a comprehensive appraisal following on from the mandate assigned to us by the Council on 30 May 1980. The object of this exercise is to examine the development of Community policies in the light of the situation and interests of all the Member States, with the aim of forestalling unacceptable situations for any one of them.

... In his political writings Robert Schuman once again points the way. With that penetrating eye which in 1963 surveyed what had been accomplished—the ECSC, Euratom, the EEC—he perceived that: "This cannot and must not remain an economic and technical enterprise: it must have a soul, an awareness of its historical affinities and its present and future responsibilities, a political will in the service of one and the same human ideal". A generous, all-embracing political vision! At this stage of our common history we must take his message for our own and act accordingly.

Leading figures throughout the Community can already sense what is at stake for the future and have roughed out the features of what might be the face of tomorrow's Community.

It will clearly be a Community of unusually sharp contrast. It will feel twice as much the stresses and strains from within and without that are tugging on the Community of Ten today. It will not be spared the repercussions of the world crisis ... In short, its cohesion would not withstand eclectic policies not underpinned by a genuine political design, or not accepted by the majority.

In that Europe towards which we are gradually making our way, political cooperation will be cardinal but will not preclude mechanisms that bring about de facto solidarity. We have already advanced fitfully in that direction.

... Such an approach is not beyond us. It assumes, however, that we are not set in ways which thwart each other, that our common institutions do not use the decision-making process as a stick to beat each other, or in short we are capable of taking decisions. And taking them quickly! Here, we must take a hard, clear look at the unanimity rule. We could adapt it to situations where unanimity is really necessary and drop it where insistence on unanimity has become no more than a habit—I almost said an "obsession".

If we can now demonstrate our ability to live in institutional harmony and act decisively, we will retain our credibility. For the rest, our past record will speak for us. Thirty years of the ECSC, for instance, witness to our ability to take Europe forward!

Once again Robert Schuman, in his political works, enables me to justify that hope: "A partial success has more than demonstration value; it is more than a precedent to be relied upon for encouragement: it is a beginning, a starting point for something more ambitious".

2. Preliminary draft budget for 1982: the Commission's policy-by-policy introduction

1.2.1. On 25 May the Commission adopted the preliminary draft budget for 1982 and amending budget No 1 for 1981 for transmission to the budgetary authority. The former is preceded by a general introduction, the first few pages of which, reproduced below, take a broad look at the individual policies in turn. The detail of the budget itself, both in aggregate terms and in terms of each type of expenditure and each policy, is discussed elsewhere.¹

1.2.2. In drawing up the 1982 budget, the Commission has sought particularly to enable the Community to respond as effectively as possible to the demands placed upon it by the continuing economic recession. This has in turn meant facing up to two broad requirements. On the one hand, the need for restraint in public expenditure at all levels of government continues. This is not the moment to place a burden greater than is strictly necessary upon the European taxpayer. On the other hand, the very scarcity of the financial resources which can be made available for public expenditure has meant that its quality and relevance to the political priorities of the Community become the more important.

The continued development of the Community's structural policies as well as the further growth, from what is still too low a level, of the Community's expenditure in such areas as research and industrial innovation policy are particularly necessary. This is not so much in order to provide short-term economic stimulus but as a way of enabling the Community to make its proper contribution to an industrial and economic infrastructure for Europe which will be capable of withstanding the challenge of non-member trading partners and competitors. In this context, the Commission's budget proposals relating to research and to telematics are of particular relevance.

The Commission also considers that the Community should respond directly to the current economic climate. Unemployment in our Member States is very high and still growing. The greater part of the financial burden will have to be borne by governments. It is, however, also right that the Community should make a special effort, and it is for this reason that an increase in commitment appropriations of 40% for the Social Fund has been proposed. The Commission also underlines, once again, the importance and increasing urgency that it attaches to action by the Council on its proposals concerning the social aspects—the loss of employment—relating to the crisis in the European steel industry.

The Commission's proposals mean that in 1982 the Community's budget will grow by 15% in commitment appropriations and 16% in payment appropriations — which represents a rate of growth lower than in recent years. Despite this necessary austerity, the Commission has been able to continue to propose substantial increases in expenditure in the structural funds and the other priorities just mentioned. An important element in the rebalancing of Community expenditure has been the continuing slowdown in the rate of growth of agricultural guarantee expenditure, a situation which results in part from relatively favourable world market conditions but also from strict management of funds.

Although the Commission was not able to incorporate into its preliminary draft budget for 1982 the conclusions which it will submit before the end of June 1981 in accordance with its mandate of 30 May 1980, it will be noted that the proposals achieve a much more satisfactory balance between the largest areas of expenditure. Agricultural guarantee spending now accounts for under 60% of appropriations for commitment while structural measures, including special measures in favour of the United Kingdom, have risen to more than 25%. Of course, further restructuring is still required, but what has been proposed is a step in the right direction. The Commission will introduce a letter of amendment if its proposals under the mandate of 30 May can be given immediate effect in budgetary terms.

1.2.3. The Commission's forecast is that EAGGF guarantee expenditure will rise by 12.2% in 1982; this is a continuation of the decline in the growth rate which began in 1979. Since then the average annual rate of increase has been only a little over 10%, whereas it was 23% during the period from 1975 to 1979. It should, however, be stressed that the check on agricultural spending which this trend suggests is only in part a consequence of policy decisions, since other factors tending to reduce Community expenditure such as world market conditions and the agri-monetary situation have also played a part.

It is vital that the slowdown already achieved should continue, and efforts to get to the root of the problem, in particular by reducing structural surpluses on certain markets, will be pursued. For its part, the Commission has already made proposals to this end, only some of which have been favourably received. It will continue to strive for complete implementation of this policy, but Council decisions will be required.

1.2.4. In the area of structural spending, the Commission has been most generous with the Social Fund, where appropriations for commitment have been increased by 40%. This reflects the high priority being given to attempts to provide more jobs throughout the Community economy. Special attention is being given to certain sectors — the Commission has been particularly concerned with the social measures required by the restructuring of the steel industry.

Commitment appropriations for the Regional Fund have been increased by 26%; the EAGGF Guidance Section continues to develop normally, having reached the level intended in the five-year plan.

The 1982 budget will provide for payments to the United Kingdom in accordance with the decisions of 30 May 1980 on its net contribution to the 1981 Community budget. The amount entered includes the advance of 150 million ECU contained in the amended 1981 budget.

Commitment appropriations for specific sectoral policies (research, energy, industry, industrial innovation and transport) have increased overall by 50%. Although this is a substantial increase, it should be remembered that in absolute terms the total funds involved are small compared with the importance of these projects for the future of the Community. The increase is largest in the case of work on new information techniques, industrial innovation and research.

Appropriations for development cooperation, which now form a substantial part of the Community budget, have risen less sharply. This is because a number of Mediterranean protocols have expired and there will be a purely temporary slowdown in expenditure until they are renegotiated. Food aid in volume terms has increased substantially, as has aid to non-associated developing countries.

1.2.5. The Commission has calculated the payment appropriations required to meet commitments entered into before 1982 or to be made in 1982 as accurately and stringently as possible and with strict regard for the principle of annuity. It must therefore warn against any attempt to 'underbudget'. Experience in 1980 and 1981—confirmed by the amendment of the 1981 budget which is being proposed together with the 1982 budget—shows that this expenditure becomes unavoidable once commitments have been made.

The Commission therefore calls on the budgetary authority not to turn the technical question of the ratio between payments and commitments into a matter of political bargaining during the budget process.

The Commission's line on the entry of new policies and actions into the budget has not changed: it has entered appropriations only where it can guarantee that they will be used or where it has the firm belief that the legal basis will be provided in time for the appropriations to be used. In view of Parliament's attitude to the implementation of the appropriations entered in the budget, it has applied this policy restrictively. Nevertheless, the Commission must point out that in its view certain items of expenditure—for example, on fisheries, research, microelectronics—require the adoption by the Council of a separate legal basis before they can be put into effect.

1.2.6. As can be seen from its budget proposals, the Commission believes that in view of the scale of the problems facing the Community it cannot, even by a strict application of priorities, keep the increase in non-compulsory expenditure within the maximum rate of 14.5%. Since, in the Commission's view, the Community is in the situation provided for in Article 203(9) of the Treaty, it proposes that this rate should be increased to 22.57% for commitment appropriations (this increase represents 1 089.8 million ECU) and to 27.04% for payment appropriations (953.7 million ECU). The maximum rate would therefore be exceeded by 389.6 million ECU in commitment appropriations and 442.3 million ECU in payment appropriations. In the case of payment appropriations, the increase above the maximum rate represents only about 1.97% of the budget total.

1.2.7. The Commission also considers it essential to propose in its preliminary draft budget for 1982 a change in the way the appropriations are presented. The present layout is unsatisfactory since it is mainly the result of historical developments which have not always permitted the structure and nomenclature to be organized in a rational and uniform manner which clearly shows the impact of each policy.

The Commission therefore proposes that the administrative expenditure of the Commission as an institution be distinguished from expenditure on the operation of the Community. The former would remain in Section III, while the latter would be entered in a new Section VI. A further reform would be achieved by reorganizing the nomenclature in this new section, the main aim being to establish a direct link between the budget and the financial impact of the various policies. These changes would also make a considerable improvement to the presentation of the budget, both technically and from the point of view of the policies.

1.2.8. Finally, the Commission reiterates its proposal, originally made on 13 June 1978 in presenting its preliminary draft budget for 1979, that a Part Two of the general budget should be established for all budget headings concerning borrowing and lending operations. This second part includes the new 6 000 million ECU ceiling for borrowing and lending operations to help the Member States to overcome balance-of-payments difficulties caused by the rise in price of oil products.

3. The Community and Japanese car imports

1.3.1. The serious concern generated by the Community-Japan trade situation and its likely future development has produced further reactions in the Community, prompted in particular by the situation in a number of sensitive sectors, notably Japanese car exports to the Community.

The Commission,¹ Parliament² and the Council³ have made their opinions known on this matter. In a firm statement adopted at its meeting of 18 and 19 May, following on from those of 25 November 1980⁴ and 17 February this year,⁵ the Council expressed its concern and approved the Commission's intention of holding discussions with the Japanese authorities on a unilateral undertaking to be given by Japan on a series of points, particularly its car exports.

Background

1.3.2. Imports of Japanese passenger cars into the Community increased by 19% from 1979 to 1980, almost reaching the 790 000 mark. The increase was particularly marked in the Federal Republic of Germany (57%) and on certain of the Community's smaller markets (Greece 32%, Ireland 16%). This trend was maintained during the first quarter of 1981, when the rate of increase was again 18% up on the first three months of 1980, the number of Japanese cars imported into the Community totalling some 240 000.

The increase was 59% in the Federal Republic, 29% in Belgium and Luxembourg, 41% in The Netherlands and 24% in Greece.

1.3.3. The Community has made several attempts, since the adoption of the Council statement of 25 November 1980, to obtain a limitation of Japanese exports to the Community (particularly of cars). The Japanese delegation did point out at the six-monthly high-level consultations held at the end of January that its Government had asked Japanese manufacturers to exercise moderation in their exports to the Federal Republic and the Benelux countries.⁶ However, it also stated that Japan did not intend to impose restrictions and would not provide forecasts for exports to the Community as a whole, in view of the restrictions applied in France, Italy and the United Kingdom. This led the Council to reaffirm on 17 February the content of its statement of 25 November 1980,⁷ in which it had expressed its serious concern at the present situation of trade between Japan and the Community in a number of sectors, particularly cars. On 24 February the Commission introduced statistical surveillance of imports of motor vehicles and other products.¹

The arrangement between Japan and the United States: initial reactions from the Commission and Parliament

1.3.4. The new development in the month under review was the Japanese authorities' decision announced on 1 May to limit exports of Japanese cars to the United States over the next three years.

Commission statements

1.3.5. This news led the Commission to publish the following statement on 2 May:

'The Commission of the European Communities has noted the announcement of the Japanese Government concerning the limitation of Japanese car exports to the United States over the next three years. The Commission has asked urgently for clarification from the Japanese and United States authorities and will be considering the details and the implications for world trade.'

On Thursday, 30 April, the Commission stressed to the Japanese and United States authorities, as it had done on earlier occasions, the importance it attached to this matter and the need that European interests should be fully taken into account. The Commission will consider the issue at its meeting on Wednesday, 6 May, and will be making a report to the Member States immediately thereafter.'

At its 6 May meeting the Commission considered a document on imports of Japanese cars into the Community underlining the serious nature of the situation and published the following short statement:

'The Commission will ask that an arrangement be made between the Community and Japan which will result in Japanese car exports to the Community being submitted to a limitation analogous to the one decided by Japan vis-à-vis the United States.'

Parliament's resolution

1.3.6. Parliament adopted the following resolution on 7 May:

The European Parliament

'Having regard to the agreement concluded between the United States and Japan concerning the limitation of car imports into the United States, alarmed at the adverse effect this could have on the European automobile industry and the employment situation,

1. Requests the Commission to state whether it was in any way informed of this agreement;
2. Asks the Commission what steps it intends to take in this matter;
3. Draws the Commission's attention to the fact that, on 18 February 1981, the Japanese Foreign Trade Minister Mr Tanaka gave an assurance, in reply to a specific question from the European Parliament delegation for relations with Japan, that the conclusion of an agreement between Japan and the United States would under no circumstances result in the vehicles not sold on the American market being added to sales on the Community market;
4. Instructs its President to forward this resolution to the Council and Commission.'²

The Commission's position

1.3.7. In the light of the above situation, the Commission sent a communication to the Council on 15 May on imports of passenger cars from Japan, pointing to the factors which should guide the Community's attitude. It reached the following conclusions:

'The Commission therefore has in mind to discuss with the Japanese authorities a unilateral Japanese undertaking with the following main features:

- (a) recognition of the continuing efforts being made to restructure the European car industry;
- (b) an undertaking that there should be no diversion of Japanese passenger cars to the Community in consequence of the measures taken in relation to the United States;
- (c) a commitment that exports of Japanese passenger cars to the Community should be subject to a limitation analogous to the one decided by Japan vis-à-vis the United States.'

The Commission would of course continue its existing surveillance action on a Community basis for passenger cars.

² OJ C 144, 15.6.1981.

The Commission would report back to the June meeting of the Council on the progress of the discussions thus envisaged with the Japanese.'

Council statement

1.3.8. The Council, meeting on 18 and 19 May, adopted a further statement, the third in seven months, following an exchange of views in which emphasis was laid on the need for a firm attitude with regard to Japan in the light of the new developments. The text of the statement was as follows:

'1. The Council reaffirmed its statements of 25 November 1980 and 17 February 1981, in which it expressed its serious concern at the present state of trade between Japan and the Community and its likely future development. It is of special importance at the current juncture:

- (i) that the Community should emphasize once more to the Japanese authorities its preoccupations over the level and excessive concentration of Japanese exports in sensitive sectors; and
- (ii) that the Japanese Government should take positive steps to increase imports by Japan of Community products.

2. The Council noted that the situation as regards Japanese car exports continued to give rise to concern, in particular the position in certain regions of the Community, especially the Benelux countries. The situation in this sector also had to be viewed in the light of the measures which the Japanese authorities had decided to take vis-à-vis exports to the United States. A response by the Community was called for.

The Community car industry was itself facing a difficult situation. Though the difficulties were different in kind from those in the United States, a major effort of modernization and adaptation to the changing conditions of world trade and competition was already in progress and would be maintained over the next few years.

It was also recalled that, in its statement of 25 November 1980, the Council had declared that, in relation to Japanese exports in sensitive sectors to the Community:

"there needs to be effective moderation designed to produce early and tangible results. This should apply towards the European Community as a whole and not only to certain markets".

3. The Council noted with approval the Commission's intention to discuss with the Japanese authorities a unilateral Japanese undertaking with the following main features:

- (a) recognition of the continuing efforts of modernization and adaptation to the changing conditions of world trade and competition being made by the European car industry;
- (b) an undertaking that there should be no diversion of Japanese passenger cars to the Community in consequence of the measures taken in relation to the United States and a commitment that exports of Japanese passenger cars to the Community should be subject to measures analogous to those decided by Japan vis-à-vis the United States, with special attention being paid to regions of the Community where difficulties in the car sector are particularly marked.

4. The Commission was requested to report back to the June session of the Council on the progress of the discussions envisaged with the Japanese authorities.'

In the light of these discussions—which will be continued when Mr Suzuki, the Prime Minister, and Mr Tanaka, the Minister of International Trade and Industry, visit the Commission on 15 and 17 June—the Commission will report to the Council.

4. Second Community programme for a consumer protection and information policy

1.4.1. A new Community programme for a consumer protection and information policy—the second to date—was approved by the Council on 19 May.¹ This follows on from the preliminary programme adopted on 14 April 1975.²

The purpose of the second programme—which the Commission transmitted to the Council on 27 June 1979³—is to enable the Community to continue and intensify its measures in this field and to help establish conditions for improved consultation between consumers on the one hand and manufacturers and retailers on the other. It both updates the preliminary programme so as to ensure that action already undertaken is continued and provides a basis for tackling new tasks over the period 1981 to 1986. The items appearing in the second programme were selected for their Community dimension.

Objectives and basic principles

1.4.2. This five-year programme retains in their entirety the purpose, objectives and underlying principles of the preliminary programme, including the five basic consumer rights acknowledged by the latter: the right to protection of health and safety, the right to protection of economic interest, the right of redress, the right to information and education, and the right of representation.

Action relating to the quality of goods and services, the conditions on which they are offered and the provision of information about them is particularly important in the present difficult economic climate. Greater attention than in the past will therefore be given in particular to prices and the quality of goods and services.

The second programme also aims to establish the conditions in which the consumer can become a partner in the preparation and implementation of major economic decisions which are important to him as a buyer or user and which very largely determine his living conditions as an individual or as a member of society. In particular, the Community will try to encourage consultation between representatives of consumers, manufacturers and distributors and suppliers of public or private services.

Although legislation at both national and Community level will still be needed in many cases to ensure that the consumer may exercise the fundamental rights listed above and that the common market operates properly, the application of certain principles may also be sought by other means such as specific agreements between the parties concerned. As part of its work under the second programme, the Commission is asked to facilitate the drafting and conclusion of such agreements, which would have the advantage of giving consumers additional assurances of good trading practices. By way of example, this approach might be attempted on an experimental basis in certain fields of after-sales service and in areas involving aspects of professional ethics.

Priority measures

1.4.3. The programme approved on 19 May sets out the priority measures to be continued or commenced during the coming years. These can be summarized as follows:

Protection of consumers against health and safety hazards

- (i) Harmonization of laws on certain products (foodstuffs, cosmetics, textiles, toys, pharmaceutical products, dangerous substances, tobacco and alcohol, manufactured products);
- (ii) Monitoring product safety and information on products.

Protection of consumers' economic interests

Consumer protection in the context of commercial services and public and quasi-public services.

² OJ C 92, 25.4.1975.

³ OJ C 218, 30.8.1979; Supplement 4/79—Bull. EC.

Improvement of consumers' protection at law

Advice, assistance and right to seek legal remedy.

Improvement of consumer information and education

- (i) Action with a view to guaranteeing that consumers receive proper information;
- (ii) Development of a voluntary labelling system;
- (iii) Cooperation as regards comparative testing;

- (iv) A more intensive general information campaign at national and Community level.

Appropriate consultation and representation of consumers in the preparation of decisions affecting their interests

- (i) Recognition of the role of consumers in this context;
- (ii) Development of consultation procedures;
- (iii) Regular dialogue with consumer representatives;
- (iv) Increased aid to organizations representing consumers.

5. Mr Edgard Pisani appointed to the Commission

1.5.1. On 26 May the Representatives of the Governments of the Member States appointed Mr Edgard Pisani Member of the Commission for the period 26 May 1981 to 5 January 1985.¹ He succeeds Mr Claude Cheysson, who has been appointed Minister of External Relations in the new French Government. 6. Mr Cheysson leaves the Commission

1.6.1. On 23 May Mr Cheysson left the Commission, of which he had been a Member since April 1973, to become the Minister of External Relations in the French Government. His eight years at the Commission were marked by a number of major initiatives and events in the area of relations with the Third World, the portfolio which he held.

In development matters Claude Cheysson was in his element: very early on in his career he had had occasion to familiarize himself with such problems and to deal with them in depth. Having been political adviser to the Vietnamese Government, in 1954—as chef de cabinet to Mr Mendès-France, the Prime Minister—he was a member of the French delegation to the Geneva Conference on Indochina and in 1956 adviser to the State Secretary for Moroccan and Tunisian Affairs at the time of the negotiations which led to independence for Morocco and Tunisia. His career continued on the same course in the French civil service, where he was primarily concerned with development, before a tour as French ambassador to Indonesia (1966-70).

In 1973 there came a turning point, though it did not break the thread of continuity. On 19 April he was appointed Member of the Commission of the European Communities by the Representatives of the Governments of the Member States meeting within the Council and given the same portfolio as his predecessor: development and (until 1977) the budget and financial control.

On the budget side, he was instrumental in leading the Commission to embark on a number of initiatives which were later to bear fruit, particularly in the important matter of Parliament's budgetary powers.

In the eight years which Mr Cheysson spent in Brussels, it was at his instigation and with the help of his experience that the Commission came to play a major role in developing a meaningful policy of cooperation with the Third World.

As a result the Community, at the Commission's initiative, has been able to:

(i) provide itself with increasingly diversified and significant instruments at world level (aid to the non-associated developing countries; food aid; humanitarian emergency aid, etc.) and at regional level (Lomé Convention; agreements with the Maghreb and Mashreq countries and Israel; Euro-Arab Dialogue); and

(ii) assume increasingly important responsibilities which are recognized in the international discussions aimed at establishing a new balance in North-South relations, by its efforts to proclaim — more often than not through a single spokesman — its measured, realistic message in favour of a meaningful, open and constructive dialogue.

PART TWO

ACTIVITIES

IN MAY 1981

1. Building the Community

Economic and monetary policy

Economic situation

Renewed signs of recovery in business sentiment

2.1.1. The business surveys for April and May reflect an improvement in the business climate in Community industry.¹ They thus confirm the evidence of earlier months that an end to the recession in industrial activity is imminent. The general impression is, however, that a sustained recovery in industrial production is not yet firmly assured, even though signs of an end of destocking and a better short-term production outlook indicate that the phase of declining industrial activity is ending. A recovery in total order books is still required before the conclusion can be drawn that an upturn is imminent.

Monetary Committee

2.1.2. The Monetary Committee held its 270th meeting in Luxembourg on 7 May with Mr Haberer in the chair. After a brief look at the operation of the European Monetary System it discussed international monetary problems in preparation for the IMF Interim Committee meeting in Libreville on 20 and 21 May;² it adopted the draft statement which the President of the Council was to make on behalf of the Community and discussed each of the items on the agenda of the IMF meeting.

Economic Policy Committee

2.1.3. The Economic Policy Committee held its 109th and 110th meetings in May:

(i) On 6 and 7 May it met in its reduced 'medium-term' composition to examine a number of chapters in the preliminary draft of the fifth medium-term economic policy programme; the Committee also examined all the analytical chapters which had been submitted to it.

(ii) On 21 May it held a plenary meeting to examine in detail the content of the chapter entitled 'Summary and conclusions' and to give its views on the quantitative elements included in the programme. The Committee reviewed the preparatory texts as a whole before transmitting the preliminary draft to the Commission.

Internal market and industrial affairs

Free movement of goods

Removal of technical barriers to trade

2.1.4. On 8 May Parliament delivered its opinion³ on the proposal which the Commission had sent to the Council on 25 August 1980⁴ concerning the establishment of a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical standards and regulations. It also asked the Commission to prepare new measures, in conjunction with the relevant European institutes, which would ensure that Community Directives referred as frequently as possible to European standards, so that the Community institutions would no longer be responsible for technical details.

Industrial products

2.1.5. At its 26 and 27 May plenary session the Economic and Social Committee adopted opinions on five proposals for Directives on the approximation of laws (wheeled agricultural or forestry tractors, measuring instruments, clinical mercury-in-glass thermometers, tyre pressure gauges and instruments designed to determine the content by volume of carbon monoxide in the exhaust gases of motor vehicles with spark ignition). The Commission had sent these proposals to the Council on 22 December 1980.¹

Pharmaceuticals

2.1.6. At its 26 and 27 May session the Economic and Social Committee adopted an opinion² concerning a Commission proposal to amend Council Directives 65/65/EEC, 75/318/EEC and 75/319/EEC on the approximation of the provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action relating to proprietary medicinal products.³

Small businesses—Business cooperation—Distributive trades

Distributive trades

2.1.7. On 20 May the Commission formally decided⁴ to establish on a permanent footing the Committee on Commerce and Distribution, initially set up for an experimental three-year period in 1978 to establish contact with the business circles concerned. The Commission felt that, overall, the Committee had achieved its purpose, helping to forge close organic links between all the relevant commercial interests and fostering close relations between the Commission and the various branches of the distribution business.

Industry

2.1.8. The Commission published a report entitled 'Industrial policies in the Community: State intervention and structural adjustment', which had been drawn up by a working party headed by Mr Maldaque, the Belgian Commissaire au Plan. The report takes stock of national and Community experience and thinking on the policies adopted and instruments employed to influence economic structures, particularly in industry.

2.1.9. On 7 May Parliament adopted a resolution on industrial cooperation between the Member States.⁵

Steel

State of the steel industry

Production quotas

2.1.10. There has been no change in the situation on the steel market since the second half of 1980 (a drop in crude steel production of almost 20% over the year), though not all categories of products have been affected to the same extent. The production of coils and coil-derived products (cold-rolled thin sheets) has been particularly hard-hit by the downturn in production in the motor industry.

In addition, whereas production quota systems applied on a voluntary basis by producers have been or will in all probability be introduced in the case of products in Groups II, III and IV,⁶ the partial agreement relating to Group I products that has been reached between the producers will not necessarily, in the Commission's view, bring about an improvement in the market.

For these reasons, the Commission arrived at the conclusion that the mandatory quota system—which was to come to an end on 30 June—should be extended for one year in the case of Group I products (coils). On 25 May the Commission therefore requested the assent of the Council and the opinion of the ECSC Consultative Committee on action along these lines.

Price policy

2.1.11. The communication of 25 May incorporates, as regards steel price policy, another communication transmitted by the Commission on 26 March, which was the subject of wide-ranging discussions within the ECSC Consultative Committee⁷ and in which the Commission develops the measures it is intending to take in this area: restructuring and adaptation of price lists, reinforced checks not only on sales completed but also at the time of the conclusion of a sales contract and of payment, and extension of the obligation to respect the price lists to all categories of persons liable to affect the market, in particular dealers.

Community rules governing aid to the steel industry

2.1.12. On 26 May, acting under the resolution on steel recovery policy¹ adopted by the Council at its 26 and 27 March meeting, the Commission sent a draft Decision laying down Community rules for aid to steel to the Council for its assent and to the ECSC Consultative Committee for its views; this instrument was to replace the Commission Decision of 1 February 1980² before 30 June 1981. The draft Decision is based on experience gained from the implementation of the existing Decision in the context of the worsening crisis and the resultant financial consequences facing steel companies. One of its objects is to strengthen the existing rules, in particular by tightening up the relevant criteria in such a way as to establish a precise link between aid and restructuring and by gradually reducing the level of aid, terminating it altogether within a relatively short period; it also aims to ensure complete transparency in respect of aid.

2.1.13. On 7 May Parliament adopted a resolution³ on the policy for restructuring the steel industry.⁴

Motor vehicles

2.1.14. On 15 May the Commission sent the Council a communication⁵ notifying its intention to discuss the conclusion of an arrangement with the Japanese authorities which would place limits on the export of Japanese motor vehicles to the Community similar to those adopted by Japan in respect of the USA.

2.1.15. Parliament adopted a resolution on 7 May concerning restrictions on US imports of Japanese motor vehicles.³

Electronics and information technologies

2.1.16. On 7 May Parliament delivered its opinion³ on the Commission proposal of 4 September 1980 for a Council Regulation concerning Community actions in the field of microelectronic technology.⁶ Although it fully approved the proposal, Parliament asked that more specific attention be paid to the development of software.

Telecommunications

2.1.17. On 7 May Parliament also delivered its opinion³ on the recommendations concerning telecommunications which the Commission sent to the Council on 4 September 1980.⁶ While approving the general aims outlined by the Commission, Parliament felt that insufficient attention had been paid to certain points. It asked the Commission to commence work immediately on the drafting of new, more detailed measures than those originally proposed.

Industrial innovation and the information market

Three-year plan of action

2.1.18. Subject to a number of amendments, Parliament approved³ the proposal for a Decision concerning the third plan of action (1981-83) in the field of scientific and technical information and documentation.⁷

Customs union

Common Customs Tariff

Preferential tariff arrangements

2.1.19. In May the Commission published details in the Official Journal on the whole range of preferential tariff arrangements applied by the Community (with the exception of Greece during the transitional period and the generalized preferences system).¹ This reflects the situation at 1 January 1981, updating the compendium published in November 1978² on the basis of the texts in force on 1 July 1978.

Economic tariff matters

Tariff suspensions

2.1.20. On 19 May the Council adopted two Regulations, one on the tariff treatment of certain products intended for use in the construction, maintenance and repair of aircraft,³ the other temporarily suspending the autonomous Common Customs Tariff duties on certain industrial products.⁴

Tariff quotas

2.1.21. On 19 May the Council amended⁵ its Regulation of 22 December 1980 opening, allocating and providing for the administration of a Community tariff quota for apricot pulp originating in Israel (1981),⁶ and adopted a Regulation opening, allocating and providing for the administration of a Community tariff quota for processing work in respect of certain textile products under Community outward processing arrangements.⁷

Community surveillance of imports

2.1.22. On 19 May the Council adopted a Regulation⁸ suspending the application of the ceilings it had established on 22 December 1980⁶ for imports of certain textile products originating in Malta.

General legislation

Mutual assistance between the Member States' administrative authorities

2.1.23. On 19 May the Council also adopted a Regulation⁵ on mutual assistance between the administrative authorities of the Member States and cooperation between the latter and the Commission to ensure the correct application of the law on customs or agricultural matters.⁷ This Regulation, which lays down Community rules for cooperation between the authorities responsible for applying or administering the said law, will ensure that uniform customs measures are taken for the purposes of the application of common policies and fraud detection. The Regulation will enter into force on 1 July.

2.1.24. At its 26 and 27 May plenary session the Economic and Social Committee gave its opinion⁸ on the Commission proposal of 29 January 1981 for a Council Directive on the harmonization of provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action concerning the exercise of the right of appeal in respect of customs matters.⁹

2.1.25. At the same session the Committee delivered an opinion⁸ on the Commission proposal of 11 March 1981 for a Council Directive on the harmonization of procedures for the release of goods for free circulation.¹⁰

Competition

State aids

Regional aids

Denmark

2.1.26. On 14 May the Commission decided to terminate the Article 93(2) procedure which it had initiated in December 1980¹ in respect of the Danish Government's proposal that the municipality of Kalundborg should continue to be scheduled as an assisted area until 31 December 1981. After studying the observations put forward by the Danish Government in the course of the procedure, the Commission took the view that in spite of the improvement in the socio-economic situation in the area which appeared to have taken place since the assessment made in 1977, it was difficult to draw definitive conclusions on the trend of unemployment there because of changes made in 1979 in the method of measuring unemployment in Denmark. The Commission nevertheless made it a condition of its decision that the Danish Government must give it prior notification of all investment projects of more than 600 000 ECU in the area. It also told the Danish authorities that its attitude on this matter was not to be taken as meaning that it would accept that Kalundborg could continue to be scheduled as an assisted area beyond 31 December 1981 when the general revision of assisted areas was submitted to it.

Industry aids

Community rules for aids to the steel industry

2.1.27. On 26 May the Commission transmitted to the Council for its assent and to the ECSC Consultative Committee for consultation the text of a draft Decision establishing Community rules for aids to the steel industry.²

Belgium

2.1.28. On 13 May the Commission decided to terminate the Article 93(2) procedure which it had initiated in October 1980³ in respect of a Belgian plan to assist the ship-repair industry. A thorough examination of the plan, along with detailed information supplied by the Belgian Government regarding the very strict conditions on which assistance will be granted, enabled the Commission to withdraw the reservations it had expressed regarding the existence of a link between the assistance and the reorganization plan. The measures are aimed at reducing the merged firm's fixed and variable costs, in order to boost its competitiveness: they would have the effect of substantially reducing the administrative staff, by means of early retirement; reducing the salaries of both management and manual workers; and ending employment practices under which assistants were systematically allocated to qualified workers.

The merger of the two Antwerp firms should also allow more rational use of plant. The reorganization would not increase production capacity, and given the reasonable scale of the operation in relation to traffic in the port of Antwerp (third in Europe in number of vessels), the assistance planned should not adversely affect trading conditions to an extent contrary to the common interest; it would promote qualitative development in the industry and can thus be exempted under Article 92(3) of the EEC Treaty.

Aids to small and medium-sized firms

The Netherlands

2.1.29. On 11 May the Commission decided not to raise any objection to the implementation of three planned measures to assist small and medium-sized firms:

(i) The first measure concerns management methods and technical development, and has two objectives: it would develop management methods in the firms concerned by promoting the organization of courses in marketing and the use of outside consultants, and would encourage technological innovation in the creation of new products and the improvement of existing products and production processes by promoting feasibility studies. When a firm introduces a measure of the kind defined in the scheme it qualifies for a grant covering up to 40% of the costs it incurs, subject to certain ceilings. The scheme is an experimental one and is to operate for two years up to 31 December 1982. A budget of HFL 7.5 million has been set aside for 1981.

(ii) The second measure concerns aid for the application of microelectronics at the manufacturing stage. To qualify a firm must commission the report of an outside consultant on the possibility of applying microelectronics in a product which it manufactures or plans to manufacture, and in the production process used or planned. The assistance would take the form of a grant of up to 40% of the costs invoiced by the consultant, with a ceiling of HFL 10 000. A budget of HFL 3 million has been set aside for 1981; the scheme is to last for two years.

In assessing both these measures the Commission bore in mind its generally favourable approach to aids which encourage the introduction of new technologies in the management and production methods of small and medium-sized firms, and particularly the use of the services of consultants.¹

(iii) The third measure would provide State guarantees for equity investment companies set up with the sole object of contributing risk capital to small and medium-sized firms. The State would provide a guarantee covering 50% of any losses on such operations. This guarantee would apply to each holding individually. It would not, however, apply to holdings in banking, insurance, agricultural or property firms. The holding taken in a firm could not exceed HFL 4 million or 50% of the firm's capital. The Commission considered that the measure would make new sources of financing available to small and medium-sized firms, in the form of capital holdings to which they would not otherwise have access; financial structures throughout the Member States, both existing and proposed, do not always allow such firms to obtain the risk capital they need. The planned system of State guarantees would bridge this gap. The Commission therefore decided, as it had already done in a similar case in the Federal Republic of Germany (Wagnisfinanzierungsgesellschaft),² that the planned assistance could be exempted under Article 92(3) of the EEC Treaty.

Financial institutions and taxation

Financial institutions

Insurance

2.1.30. On 25 May the Commission decided to publish in the Official Journal the list of the authorities and bodies competent to issue and to receive certificates relating to the nature and duration of activities carried out in their country of origin by insurance agents and brokers, and documents evidencing good repute and the fact that there has been no previous declaration of bankruptcy.³ The list was published pursuant to the Council Directive of 13 December 1976 on measures to facilitate the effective exercise of freedom of establishment and freedom to provide services in respect of the activities of insurance agents and brokers.⁴

Taxation

Indirect taxes

2.1.31. On 20 May the Commission sent to the Council a communication on the programme for the simplification of value-added tax procedures and formalities in intra-Community trade.

The programme describes the various Community measures that will need to be taken in the years ahead to simplify substantially the operation of the common VAT system in intra-Community trade. Some of these measures relate to transactions carried out by undertakings subject to VAT, while others apply to transactions carried out by individuals.

The first group of measures covers in particular the method of collecting value-added tax due on imports carried out by taxable undertakings. As requested both by members of Parliament and by trade associations, the intention is to ask all the Member States to apply the principle of deferred payment of the tax due on imports from Member States on the basis of taxable persons' periodical returns, in line with the arrangements already applied in some countries, notably in the Benelux countries. Bearing in mind the requirements of simplification, such deferral seems to offer the most satisfactory solution since frontier formalities are reduced to a minimum (oral declaration and presentation of invoice), since the procedure operates under the responsibility of the taxable persons (who calculate, declare and deduct the tax) and since only one declaration and only one payment are made in respect of imports and in respect of transactions carried out within the Community.

Among the specific measures benefiting individuals, the Commission is contemplating various proposals for reducing the number of cases of double taxation still encountered in the Community in connection with a range of individual transactions and for simplifying the customs formalities with which individuals have to comply when engaging in certain import transactions, e.g. in the event of removal. The Commission also underscores the importance it attaches to adoption by the Council of the proposals on the temporary importation of certain means of transport and on the permanent importation of personal property.¹ These proposals, which have been examined meticulously in the Council, would introduce new tax-free allowances upon importation and a strict definition of the concept of normal residence, thereby putting an end to most of the inconvenience that individuals have to put up with when carrying out transactions of this kind.

There are two limitations to what such a programme can achieve. The first arises from the existence of tax frontiers: their eventual removal will become possible only after rates of tax have been aligned, and this means that until then imports from other Member States will continue to be taxed while exports will remain exempt. The second lies in the need to combat tax fraud. The chances of success of a programme aimed at simplifying tax formalities and procedures at the Community's internal frontiers also depend, of course, on the progress made by the Community in other fields, including the customs field.

Excise duties

Manufactured tobacco

2.1.32. On 20 May the Commission sent to the Council a proposal for a Directive extending for six months, i.e. until 31 December 1981, the second stage of harmonizing the structure of excise duties on cigarettes, an initial six-month extension having been decided by the Council on 22 December 1980.² This move was prompted by the fact that the Council will be unable to take a decision before 30 June on the proposal presented by the Commission on 12 July 1980 aimed at establishing the basis for a third stage (1981-86) of harmonization of the structure of excise duties on cigarettes,³ since it will not receive Parliament's opinion in time.

2.1.33. On 7 May Parliament gave its opinion⁴ on two proposals for Directives concerning tax exemptions and reliefs.⁵ One of the proposals amends the Directive of 28

May 1969 on tax exemptions in international travel¹ and the Directive of 19 December 1978 on tax exemptions on imports of small consignments of a non-commercial character from third countries.² The other amends the Directive of 19 December 1974 on tax reliefs on the importation of goods in small consignments of a non-commercial character within the Community.³ While endorsing the proposals, Parliament stressed that the Council should, in the interests of travellers, ensure that the real value of these exemptions and reliefs in terms of their purchasing power will be maintained.

Employment, education and social policy

Employment

Standing Committee on Employment

2.1.34. The Standing Committee on Employment met in Brussels on 19 May with Mr Albeda, the Dutch Minister of Social Affairs, in the chair.

On behalf of the Commission, Mr Richard presented an introductory report on unemployment in the Community. Using the communication⁴ sent by the Commission to the Council in April — together with a more detailed paper — as a basis, the Committee then engaged in detailed discussions by way of preparation for the joint Council meeting (Ministers of Economic Affairs and Finance and Ministers of Employment and Social Affairs) which the Presidency has announced for the near future, once employers' and workers' representatives have been consulted.

Following these discussions, the chairman drew the following conclusions from the meeting:

'It was noted that the overall economic and social situation is likely to get worse in spite of efforts to improve it.... This situation should be improved by an overall strategy quickly put together at Community level and implemented if possible at short notice which should be designed to meet both economic and social needs.'

In the spirit of the declarations of the European Council, the need for all parties concerned to make an effort was emphasized, on the understanding that the resulting burdens should be equitably divided. The hope was expressed that these key points would be discussed in the same spirit by the joint meeting of Ministers for Economic Affairs and Finance and for Labour and Social Affairs, and that to this end the Commission should take these into account in the communication which it was preparing for that meeting.

The workers' representatives stated that the strategy adopted to overcome the present crisis and make a worthwhile contribution to the fight against unemployment should be based on the six principles contained in the action programme of the European Trade Union Confederation.⁵

The employers' representatives argued that the strategy to combat unemployment should be based on growth in private investment in order to adapt the economy to current structural changes and thus regain competitiveness both internationally and nationally. It would thus be possible to return to economic growth and therefore increase employment.

The chairman's conclusions also included the following points:

(a) While accepting that the fight against inflation was a major matter for concern in the Member States, the Committee rejected the idea that increased unemployment was the inevitable consequence. The Member States should accordingly examine their current economic and financial policies in the light of this principle and should also endeavour to coordinate their policies on interest rates.

(b) It was pointed out that investments should be increased and the competitiveness of Community businesses improved, as this latter was a prerequisite for a return to healthy growth. This implied a balance of measures between those sectors

⁵ The six principles are as follows:

1. More active role of governments in assuring higher levels of investment designed to create new jobs.
2. Stepping up of employment creation and vocational training programmes.
3. Reduction of working hours.
4. Substantial increase in aid to developing countries.
5. More equitable sharing of the burden resulting from changes in the economy.
6. Combating inflation by specific, socially equitable policies and not by means of unemployment.

of the economy which were declining and those which were expanding. For certain speakers it also meant that everything possible should be done to ensure that the basic requirements of workers' dignity and their protection were not threatened, and to continue improving the position of the least well-off workers.

(c) The opinion was expressed that, in the current difficult economic situation, public expenditure intended to create new jobs should not only be increased when this proved to be necessary, but should also be carried out in conjunction with the necessary sectoral restructuring. Any loss of employment resulting from such restructuring should be suitably compensated. In this context the effectiveness of the various Community financial instruments should also be examined, in particular the European Social Fund, which should be brought more into line with the current employment situation.

(d) The Commission was asked to submit proposals, after consulting the employers' and workers' representatives, concerning adjustment of working hours (flexible retirement, temporary work, part-time work) and to continue its consultations on overtime and the annual total of working hours.

(e) Attention was drawn to the importance of the Commission's work in the fields of education and training for young people and adults in order to increase their vocational qualifications on the labour market with particular reference to the requirements of the new technologies. The Commission was asked to press on with its work in this field, taking account of the role of the European Social Fund in this connection.

(f) Attention was also drawn by several speakers to the importance which Europe should attach to a rapid development of the economies of Third World countries.

(g) The Commission was asked to continue its work on social security costs.'

Labour market policy

Social aspects of steel policy

2.1.35. In a communication on the state of the steel industry¹ transmitted to the Council on 25 May the Commission, while abiding by its previous communications² on the social aspects of steel policy, gives the first indications of its proposed additional guidelines concerning social measures to accompany its restructuring policy: an increase in the volume of loans granted under Article 56 (2) (a) of the ECSC Treaty; introduction of a range of aids specifically aimed at job creation under Article 95 of the ECSC Treaty; and, in the longer term, assistance from the European Social Fund for job creation.

European Social Fund

2.1.36. Subject to a number of amendments, Parliament approved³ the Commission proposal of 20 November 1980 for a Council Regulation concerning operations qualifying for a higher rate of intervention by the European Social Fund.⁴

Education and vocational training

2.1.37. In May the Commission organized or attended, at either Community or international level, various meetings concerning education problems. Topics covered included: the role of the media and distance learning in basic education for adults, the study of the European Community in schools, the preparation of handicapped children and young people for an active adult life, and the teaching of native languages and culture to migrants.

Education Committee

2.1.38. In preparation for the meeting of the Council and of the Ministers of Education scheduled for 22 June, the Education Committee met on 7 and 22 May and finalized texts on two priority items: the employment situation and demographic change.⁵ The Committee also agreed to prepare an item for the Ministers' agenda on the academic recognition of qualifications and of periods of study, which was the subject of a Commission paper sent to the Council on 5 May.⁶

Academic recognition of diplomas and of periods of study

2.1.39. On 5 May the Commission sent to the Council a communication on the academic recognition of diplomas and of periods of study, the aim of which is to resolve the problems caused by the lack of adequate information at European level on the mutual recognition of higher education diplomas. In particular, the Commission proposes setting up an information network capable of providing answers to the questions raised by students, their parents, teachers and employers. Such a system would form part of Eurydice, the education information network, which became operational in September 1980.¹

Higher education

2.1.40. The Commission helped to organize a meeting in Dublin on 25 May which was devoted to an assessment of Irish experience with the joint study programmes in higher education.

2.1.41. On 5 May Parliament adopted a resolution on the European University Institute.²

On 7 May the High Council of the Institute appointed Mr Maihofer Principal of the Institute to replace Mr Kohnstamm, whose term of office is due to expire. The new Principal will take up his duties on 1 October.

Social security—Living and working conditions

Social protection and security

Paul Finet Foundation

2.1.42. In May the Executive Committee of the Paul Finet Foundation examined 375 applications and awarded 276 scholarships totalling some BFR 3 million.

Migrant workers and their families

Social security for self-employed workers

2.1.43. On 12 May the Council formally adopted³ the Regulation which it had approved in November 1980⁴ extending to self-employed workers and members of their families the provisions of Regulation (EEC) 1408/71 of 14 June 1971 on the application of social security schemes to employed persons and their families moving within the Community.⁵ This represents an important step towards Community social security legislation covering all insured persons, whether or not gainfully employed.

2.1.44. On 8 May Parliament endorsed⁶ the greater part of the proposal⁷ amending the basic Regulations (1408/71 and 574/72)⁸ on the application of social security schemes to migrant workers. The House expressed its resolute opposition, however, to the change in the rules applying to medical treatment received abroad, in respect of which the Commission recommended greater discretionary powers for the insurance institutions.

Equal treatment for men and women

2.1.45. As a follow-up to the conclusions of the Manchester Conference,⁹ the Commission has set up a Standing Liaison Group for Equal Opportunities, made up of representatives of committees or commissions for the employment of women or for equal opportunities or equivalent bodies in the ten Member States.

The meeting of this Group on 21 and 22 May concentrated on preparing a new action programme for women which the Commission intends to put forward at the end of the year. The Group also examined current Community work on employment, the new technologies and the reorganization of working time, specifically as regards its effects on women.

Living and working conditions

Housing

2.1.46. Under the eighth and ninth housing loan schemes (first and second instalments) for workers in ECSC industries, the Commission approved building projects for a total amount of 1 660 227 ECU to finance the building of 370 housing units in the United Kingdom, France and the Federal Republic of Germany.

2.1.47. Also under the eighth scheme (second instalment), the Commission granted an additional loan of some 2 million ECU from the loan fund to finance the completion of a complex of 218 housing units for employees of the Italsider steel concern in Taranto, Italy.

Health and safety

Health and safety (ECSC)

2.1.48. At its meeting on 5 May the Steel Industry Safety and Health Commission adopted its annual report for 1980 and outlined its programme for 1981-83. The latter provides for the quarterly publication of an information bulletin on characteristic steel industry accidents. The meeting also adopted the recommendations of the working parties on gas blowers, pollution emanating from rolling mills and the safety training of management and supervisory staffs. The conclusions of two studies, the first relating to the causality of serious accidents in Lorraine between 1970 and 1976 and the second to the preventive measures to be taken when replacing blast furnace tuyeres, were likewise endorsed.

Health and safety (Euratom)

2.1.49. In May the Commission gave its opinion on the projects relating to the disposal of radioactive effluents from the Saint-Laurent-des-Eaux and Le Blayais nuclear power stations in France.

Regional policy

Coordination and programmes

Regional development studies

2.1.50. The Commission has helped in the preparation of a study on the 'mobilization of indigenous potential' in the regions, which examines how technical innovation is influenced at regional level by socio-economic disparities, how it is disseminated and how it can be applied in less-favoured regions. The study, which has now been completed, lays down a scheme for classifying regions according to their industrial structure, defines the concept of 'innovation potential', which is based on the concept of 'functional deficiencies', and looks at the obstacles to innovation and to the internal and external adaptability of firms in the light of their location. It also contains a number of proposals on how the Community might frame a regional policy centred on innovation.

Financial instruments

European Regional Development Fund

Fund Committee

2.1.51. At its meeting on 25 and 26 May the European Regional Development Fund Committee gave its opinion on the draft decisions for grants from the Fund's 'quota' section under the second allocation for 1981. It also gave its opinion on the first four programmes submitted for assistance from the 'non-quota' section, namely:

- (i) a specific Community regional development measure contributing to the improvement of the economic and social situation of the border areas in Ireland;
- (ii) a specific Community regional development measure contributing to the improvement of the economic and social situation of the border areas in Northern Ireland;

(iii) a specific Community regional development measure contributing to the development of certain French regions in the context of Community enlargement;

(iv) a specific Community regional development measure contributing to improving security of energy supply in certain Community regions by way of improved use of new techniques for hydroelectric power and alternative energy sources.

negotiate the Community's accession to the Bonn Agreement of 9 June 1969 on Cooperation in dealing with Pollution of the North Sea by Oil, which would allow the Community to play a part—alongside the contracting Member States—in achieving the purpose of the Agreement. It also adopted a Decision concluding, on behalf of the Community, a Protocol to the Barcelona Convention for the Protection of the Mediterranean Sea against Pollution, concerning cooperation in combating pollution by oil and other harmful substances in emergencies.

Conversion loans

2.1.52. The conversion loans¹ paid out by the Commission in May under Article 56 of the ECSC Treaty totalled 5.2 million ECU.

Environment and consumers

Environment

2.1.53. The first conference ever devoted to the scientific bases of environmental legislation was held in Rome from 11 to 13 May. The conference—which was organized jointly by the Commission and the Italian National Research Council—discussed how these scientific bases could be used for decisions to prevent pollution by discharges from industrial, municipal or domestic sources. It also looked at ways of exploiting scientific knowledge in monitoring methodologies and explored the relationship between scientific knowledge and environmental legislation and the possibilities of strengthening it.

Prevention and reduction of pollution and nuisances

Freshwater and marine pollution

Oil pollution at sea

2.1.54. On 19 May the Council formally adopted² two Decisions concerning international agreements on environmental matters. The Council authorized the Commission to

Protection of the Mediterranean against pollution

2.1.55. The Commission was represented at an international meeting held at Valbonne, in France, from 25 to 27 May under the 'blue plan', one of the three components of the action programme to protect the Mediterranean set out in the United Nations environment programme. The purpose of the meeting was to furnish information and provide an opportunity for discussion about ways and means of implementing an integrated plan for the Mediterranean coast. The papers presented to the meeting gave the participants an insight into the specific problems of the Mediterranean basin (development and potential) and the problems involved in implementing the 'blue plan'. The Commission representative explained the Community's system of ecological mapping, an information instrument covering large areas of land.

Water resources and transfrontier pollution

2.1.56. The Commission took part as an observer in two meetings held by the Economic Commission for Europe on 11 and 15 May—one on the qualitative and quantitative aspects of water resources, the other on the regular monitoring and evaluation of transfrontier water pollution. Discussions centred on a draft decision on international cooperation on water resources shared by several countries.

Chemicals

Chlorofluorocarbons in the environment

2.1.57. On 26 May the Commission adopted for transmission to the Council a communication on the problem of chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) emissions which could upset the atmospheric balance with deleterious effects on man and the environment. The aim of the communication, which provides the latest scientific, technical and economic information and evaluations is to lay down guidelines for future Community policy in this area.

The Commission stresses the need for a preventive and precautionary policy taking into account all the aspects of the problem and the impact on industry and employment. In the Commission's view the Community measures to be taken with regard to CFCs are: maintenance and consolidation of the precautionary measures adopted by the Council on 26 March last year;¹ improvement in the collection of scientific, technical and economic data as a basis for a periodic review of Community policy; engagement in projects, notably with the industry concerned, to decrease CFC emission in sectors other than the filling of aerosol containers; and proposal of and support for suitable international measures.

Inventory of chemical substances

2.1.58. In a Decision adopted on 11 May the Commission defined the four phases required to compile an inventory of chemicals on the Community market as provided for by the Council Directive of 18 September 1972.²

In the first phase the Commission would draw up a list of 34 000 chemicals on the basis of information supplied by the Member States which would be supplemented by declarations by manufacturers and importers of substances not included in the list but on the Community market, compile three indexes, a compendium of known substances, and declaration forms accompanied by an explanatory brochure. This phase has virtually been completed.

In the following three phases, declarations (forms to be completed by informants for national authorities and the Commission) will be drawn up, the declaration forms examined and the inventory published in the Official Journal of the European Communities.

Pollution by cadmium

2.1.59. An international symposium on the ecotoxicology of cadmium was organized by the Commission at Neuherberg, in the Federal Republic of Germany, from 6 to 8 May.

The problems of environmental pollution engendered by cadmium were discussed at the symposium, which had been convened to discuss and analyse the latest data available on the subject. The Commission representative outlined the proposal for a Community Directive on discharges of cadmium into the aquatic environment.³ The discussions highlighted the need to control cadmium pollution and to reduce all cadmium emissions by 50% over the next 10 years. This could not be achieved without the assistance of industry, waste disposal authorities and national and international bodies.

Consumers

Second Community action programme

2.1.60. At its 18 and 19 May meeting the Council formally adopted a resolution⁴ approving the guidelines set out in the second Community programme for a consumer protection and information policy proposed by the Commission in June 1979.⁵

Agriculture

Council meeting

2.1.61. On 12 May the Council held a short meeting to examine the market situation in the light of statements by several delegations. The discussions served to clarify the implications of certain conclusions drawn during the 1980/81 agricultural price fixing session and to confirm the decisions taken on cereals, tobacco, sugar and beef and veal at the beginning of April.¹

The Council also gave general provisional approval to a proposal for the reorganization of the agricultural survey system in Italy.

Significant headway was made towards the adoption of the Commission's proposals on the restriction and control of the administration of substances with a hormonal effect to livestock.²

Supply of agricultural products to Poland

2.1.62. On 7 May the Council decided to offer Poland a number of additional options to purchase the following products and quantities (tentative figures) at favourable prices and on the same terms as those offered in its decision of 1 April:³

Compound feedingstuffs	200 000 tonnes
Rice	25 000 tonnes or
(Pearled barley	12 000 tonnes)
(Flour	13 000 tonnes)
Oats	30 000 tonnes
Rolled oats/barley	5 000 tonnes

An initial set of low-price purchase options had been offered to Poland as a result of a Council decision taken on 16 December 1980 following the Luxembourg meeting of the European Council.⁴

Economic aspects of the common agricultural policy

Agrimonetary measures

2.1.63. In the interests of administrative clarity the Commission adopted two Regulations⁵ on 19 May to consolidate the detailed rules for applying the monetary compensatory amounts first laid down in the Regulation of 29 May 1975,⁶ which had since been frequently amended.

Market organizations

Prices and specific measures

Fruit and vegetables

2.1.64. In May the Commission fixed the reference prices for peaches, lemons and table grapes in the 1981 marketing year, together with the Community offer prices applicable to Greece for the same products.⁷

Pigmeat

2.1.65. The Commission adopted⁸ certain measures on aid to private storage of pig carcasses and various cuts of pigmeat. The purpose of these temporary measures is to support producer prices for slaughtered pigs during a period of the year which is particularly critical for the pigmeat market.

Wine

2.1.66. Because of the state of the market for table wines in Greece, the Commission adopted⁹ measures allowing distillation of a higher percentage of production than in other parts of the Community.¹⁰

2.1.67. During its May session the Economic and Social Committee gave its opinion on the proposal for a Regulation on collective projects for the restructuring of vineyards.¹¹

Milk and milk products

2.1.68. The Commission also raised the level of aid to private storage of certain varieties of Italian cheese and long-keeping cheese.¹

2.1.69. On 19 May the Council fixed the premium for maintaining suckler cows at 20 ECU/cow.²

Beef and veal

2.1.70. The Commission adjusted the coefficients used for calculating Community prices for adult cattle on the representative markets on the basis of recent figures for cattle herds in the Member States.

2.1.71. In view of the current market situation and the outlook, the Commission decided to suspend intervention buying of rear quarters of beef from 1 June.³

Sheepmeat

2.1.72. The Council adopted decisions concluding voluntary restraint agreements with the following exporters of sheepmeat and goatmeat: Austria, Iceland, Poland, Romania,⁴ Yugoslavia⁴ and Hungary.⁵

2.1.73. On 27 May the Commission adopted, for transmission to the Council, a proposal for a Regulation amending the Regulation on the common organization of the market in sheepmeat and goatmeat. The object is to lower the guide level (below which the special sheep slaughter premium is applied) from 85 to 80% of the basic price; lowering the premium will bring a corresponding reduction in the clawback on exports from the United Kingdom to other Community countries; at its present level the clawback presents an obstacle to the expansion of trade and the alignment of prices between the various Community markets.

Tobacco

2.1.74. On 19 May the Council fixed the target prices, intervention prices, premiums and reference qualities in the tobacco sector.⁶

2.1.75. It also adopted special measures for certain varieties of raw tobacco to be harvested in 1981, 1982 and 1983.⁶

Hops

2.1.76. The Community hop harvest in 1980 was very small (17% lower than the nine-year average), and there has been a considerable increase in the area planted with hops in the rest of the world. Consequently, in its annual report on the hop market situation—sent to the Council on 20 May—the Commission said it would pursue its discussions with hop-producing countries outside the Community with a view to a more restrained policy on new plantings.

The Commission's report concludes with a proposal that the Council should fix aid to the 1980 harvest at the same level as in 1979 in order to ensure growers a fair level of income despite very poor yields in some hop-growing areas.

Structures

New proposals and amendments to Directives

2.1.77. The Commission adopted⁷ detailed rules for applying the aid measures adopted by the Council on 21 April⁸ in respect of livestock production in Ireland and Northern Ireland.

Implementation of socio-structural Directives

2.1.78. On 26 May the Commission sent the Council a proposal on the designation of less-favoured agricultural areas in Greece.

Agricultural legislation

Veterinary legislation

2.1.80. On 12 May the Council adopted measures³ to implement its Directive of 18 July on the protection of livestock in international transport.⁴

Plant health legislation

2.1.81. In a Decision dated 8 May⁵ the Commission authorized the Member States to allow temporarily the marketing of forestry reproductive material of a lower quality standard in order to offset the current shortage of such material.

Competition

2.1.82. In the context of Articles 92 to 94 of the EEC Treaty, the Commission has decided not to comment, at the present time, on the implementation of measures notified by:

- (i) the Federal Republic of Germany (Bavaria): adjustment of aid for the improvement of horse breeds;
- (ii) Denmark: State contribution towards the costs of founding, launching and operating associations of farm assistants qualified to stand in for farmers who are prevented by illness from working;
- (iii) Ireland: replacement of the export sales relief scheme by a new tax arrangement for manufacturing undertakings, to apply to fish-farming firms and mushroom growers. However, the Commission may, as appropriate, examine these measures in the light of the rules on the common organization of the markets;

(iv) Italy (Latium): certain aid measures in horticulture and floriculture. These measures are intended to encourage the improvement and modernization of production. Among various measures covered by other Community provisions, the project provides for the grant of low-interest loans for setting up research centres to develop new plant varieties and breeding stock, subsidies for the establishment of a market intelligence centre and for senior staff training, and the grant of operating subsidies for one year. In its decision the Commission took account of additional information supplied by the Italian authorities; it may, as appropriate, review the low-interest operating subsidy at a later date;

(Sardinia): aid in the wine-growing, fruit-growing and cheese-making sectors. In addition to measures covered by the socio-structural Directives, this project provides for subsidies towards a number of schemes for land improvement and wind protection in less-favoured areas, a pilot scheme to test new methods of DOC vine planting and cultivation and a subsidy to offset some of the increases in costs occurring between the placing of orders and the completion of the installations. In its decision the Commission took account of the additional information supplied by the Italian authorities;

(Abruzzi): the grant of a low-interest operating loan in agriculture for one year. The Commission will review this type of aid in the light of Article 93(1) of the Treaty at a later date.

(v) Luxembourg: partial compensation for income losses suffered by winegrowers and cooperative wineries as a result of the very poor harvest due to bad weather at flowering time in 1980. The aim of the measure is to remedy damage due to natural disasters;

(vi) The Netherlands: State contribution towards the setting up of research projects concerning farm improvements to achieve energy savings.

European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund

Guarantee Section

2.1.83. On 12 May the Council amended the general rules on the financing of intervention by the EAGGF Guarantee Section.¹ The new Regulation updates the basic Regulation of 2 August 1978² by providing a new Annex listing the various measures ranking as 'intervention' eligible for EAGGF financing.

Fisheries

2.1.84. On 7 May the Council published³ the resolution formally adopted on 3 November 1976, following agreement reached at the Hague meeting of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, on certain external aspects of the creation of a 200-mile fishing zone in the Community with effect from 1 January 1977.

Resources

Internal aspects

2.1.85. In a judgment given on 5 May⁴ in an action brought by the Commission in July 1979,⁵ the Court of Justice declared that the United Kingdom had failed in its obligations under the EEC Treaty by introducing certain unilateral conservation measures on 1 July 1979, without appropriate prior consultation and in spite of the Commission's objections, and by maintaining in force in the Irish Sea and the waters of the Isle of Man⁶ a system of fishing licences on which the Commission had not been consulted.⁶

National measures

2.1.86. On 5 May the Commission approved an Irish measure extending from 31 March to 30 June 1981 the prohibition on herring fishing in ICES division VIa (west of Scotland).

2.1.87. On 12 May the Commission took note of four Dutch measures extending a temporary catch quota system and decided to raise no objection to their implementation. In order to make an overall assessment of their conformity with its 1981 TAC proposals, the Commission asked the Dutch authorities to provide an estimate of the overall quantitative effect of the measures in 1981 and made final approval conditional on the proposed catch quotas conforming with the catches of the species in question allocated to The Netherlands when the 1981 TACs are allocated between the Member States. On 20 May the Commission decided not to approve a draft decision of the Government of The Netherlands amending the decision setting temporary catch limits on sea fish other than sole and plaice in order to open certain North Sea zones to herring fishing from 1 June 1981.

2.1.88. On 25 May the Commission noted the conformity with paragraph 1 of the Council Decision of 21 July 1980 of a Danish measure on restrictions that Greenland may impose on the purchase of cod, in so far as the various quantity restrictions laid down were consistent with those in the Council TAC Regulation of 26 March 1980.⁷

2.1.89. On the same date the Commission took note of two Danish decrees regulating fishing during the first quarter of 1981, one in the north-east Atlantic, the other in the Baltic Sea and the Belts, and decided to raise no objection to their application in so far as their provisions are limited to laying down maximum catch quotas for Danish boats and to other quantitative measures. In order to make an overall assessment of the confor-

The Commission made final approval conditional on the catch quotas conforming with the catches of the species in question allocated to Denmark when the 1981 TACs are allocated between the Member States.

External aspects

Bilateral relations

2.1.90. The Council formally adopted on 19 May a Regulation laying down for 1981 certain measures for the conservation and management of fishery resources applicable to vessels flying the flag of Norway.¹

2.1.91. On 8 May Parliament approved² the Commission proposal of 24 March for a Council Regulation fixing for 1981 certain measures for the conservation and management of fishery resources applicable to vessels flying the flag of Spain.

Multilateral relations

2.1.92. The Community took part in a meeting at Reykjavik from 6 to 9 May convened by the Icelandic Government to discuss improvements to the International Whaling Convention. The Icelandic Government is to send participants a document summarizing the progress achieved at the meeting so that further action can be planned.

2.1.93. Delegations from the Community, Canada, the United States, Norway, Sweden, Iceland and the Faeroe Islands took part in negotiations in Oslo from 19 to 21 May on the establishment of an international convention for the conservation of Atlantic salmon. Considerable progress was made, and discussions are to continue during the summer to prepare a draft convention for submission to a diplomatic conference.

Markets and structures

Structures policy

2.1.94. With regard to national aid, the Commission decided to raise no objection to the continuation in 1981 of the aid granted in the Federal Republic of Germany and in Denmark to encourage structural adjustments in sea-fishing capacity. It also made no comment on the new Irish tax system for fish-farming undertakings which with effect from 1 January 1981 replaces the export sales relief scheme in force since 1958.

2.1.95. At its 26 and 27 May plenary session the Economic and Social Committee delivered its opinion³ on the communication which the Commission sent to the Council on 18 November 1980 on social aspects in the Community sea-fishing sector;⁴ the measures in question are designed to supplement structural policy.

Transport

Inland transport

Infrastructures

2.1.96. On 7 May Parliament adopted a resolution⁵ on a memorandum on the role of the Community in the development of transport infrastructure which the Commission sent to the Council on 16 November last year.⁶

Relations and agreements with non-member countries

Information and consultation procedure

2.1.98. At its plenary session on 26 and 27 May the Economic and Social Committee gave its opinion on the proposal for a Decision setting up an information and consultation procedure for relations and agreements with third countries in the field of transport by rail, road and inland waterway which the Commission had sent to the Council on 19 December last year.¹

Approximation of structures

Technical projects

2.1.99. On 13 May the Commission held a meeting of government experts to discuss the axle weight of tandem and tri-axles and the wheelbases of commercial vehicles in conjunction with their impact on roads and bridges. Their conclusions will be submitted to Council bodies in anticipation of a resumption of discussions on the proposal for a Directive on the weight of road haulage vehicles.²

2.1.100. On 7 May Parliament gave its opinion³ on the Commission proposal of 30 December 1978 for a Council Directive on the weights and certain other characteristics (not including dimensions) of road vehicles used for the carriage of goods.² It approved the Commission's proposal subject to one amendment excluding vehicles with a total weight of over 40 tonnes at this initial stage.

2.1.101. On 12 May there was a meeting of government experts at the Commission on the introduction of a standard multilingual form for applications and authorizations for the carriage of abnormal indivisible loads between Member States. Discussions highlighted a number of problems regarding presentation and procedure which need to be resolved before a formal proposal is put to the Council.

Operation of the market

Observation of markets

2.1.102. At its plenary session on 26 and 27 May the Economic and Social Committee gave its opinion on the Commission's amended proposal of 11 December 1980 for a Council Regulation concerning a system for observing the markets for the carriage of goods by rail, road and inland waterway between the Member States.⁴

Access to the market

2.1.103. On 7 May Parliament gave its opinion⁵ on the proposal to amend the Regulation on the Community quota for the carriage of goods by road between Member States and the proposal for a Directive on the standardization of certain rules relating to authorizations for the same type of transport operation.⁶ The two proposals, transmitted to the Council on 15 December last year, were endorsed.

Sea transport

2.1.104. The Commission sent an opinion⁶ to the German Government on the implementation of the Council Directive of 21 December 1978 concerning minimum requirements for certain tankers entering or leaving Community ports.⁷ The Commission concluded from its scrutiny of the documents which had been sent that the Directive has been implemented in full in the Federal Republic of Germany.

2.1.105. The Commission sent an opinion¹ on the implementation of the Council Directive of 21 December 1978 concerning pilotage of vessels by deep-sea pilots in the North Sea and English Channel² to the Irish Government. It concluded from its scrutiny of the instrument submitted that Ireland will have discharged its obligations to implement the Directive once the instrument is published.

Energy

Specific problems

Oil and gas

2.1.106. When deciding,³ on 24 February, to extend the system of registering prices of crude oil until 31 December 1981 and that for petroleum products until 30 June 1981, the Council noted the Commission's undertaking to submit to it in due course and where appropriate, after consulting the Member States, proposals for changes to the system of registering crude oil prices and new procedures for the collection of information on the prices of imported petroleum products.

Consequently, after consulting the Member States, the other consumer countries following the Tokyo Summit in June 1979,⁴ and the oil industry, the Commission sent to the Council on 20 May a communication in which it proposes:

- (i) that the system of registering prices of imported crude oil should be maintained unchanged, and
- (ii) that the system of registering prices of imported petroleum products should be discontinued on 30 June.

Coal

2.1.107. In its report on 'Medium- and long-term perspectives for coal in the Community',⁵ the ECSC Consultative Committee recommended that the Commission should examine the fuel switching potential on the market for industrial heat production. The findings of this examination are set out in a Commission communication sent to the Council on 11 May on the substitution of coal for oil in 'other industry'. In the report annexed to the communication the Commission comes to the conclusion, taking all the relevant factors into consideration (combustion techniques, distribution and transport networks, environmental considerations and other decision-making criteria specific to each firm), that market forces and further technological improvements will have the effect of increasing the use of coal in this sector. However, on economic and environmental grounds, it will be quite some time before the conversion process in the Community reaches a scale commensurate with the energy policy targets.

The Council is therefore asked to hold a general exchange of views about a number of measures which would make it possible to speed up the substitution of coal for oil. The communication is now of direct importance as far as energy policy is concerned, since in 1980 the European Council and the Economic Summit in Venice⁶ urgently called for changes in the consumption structures, particularly in industry, in order to move away from oil.

2.1.108. On 25 May the Commission published its report on the coal market in 1980 and the outlook for 1981.⁷ The ECSC Consultative Committee was consulted on this document on 6 March.⁸ The Commission emphasizes that the investment programmes initiated several years ago by the coal producers, combined with better productivity, made it possible in 1980 to reverse the previous trend: Community availabilities total 253 million tonnes for 1980 and 247 million tonnes in 1981. Intra-Community trade accounts for around 10% of availabilities in 1980 and 1981, and is still very important where the Community steel industry and certain other sectors, notably households, are concerned. Quantities imported rose to 74 million tonnes in 1980, representing approximately 24% of inland demand. The growth of imports is expected to slow down in 1981, and it is thought that they will amount to some 77 million tonnes. These imports are still subject to Community surveillance. Gross inland coal consumption totalled some 310 million tonnes in 1980 and is expected to rise to 312 million tonnes in 1981. Producer stocks of coal and coke rose by nearly 11 million tonnes in 1980 and are expected to increase by a further 8 million tonnes in 1981, to reach a total of 58 million tonnes by the end of the year. The increases in the price of coal on the world market are at present comparable to the rise in the costs of coal production in the Community.

Technical research

2.1.109. On 20 May, after consulting the ECSC Consultative Committee and after receiving the Council's assent, the Commission decided to grant 16 million ECU for 36 technical research projects in the coal sector, pursuant to Article 55(2)(c) of the ECSC Treaty. These projects come under two programmes, one in the field of mining technology and the other in the field of coal beneficiation.

Electricity

2.1.110. On 8 May Parliament adopted an opinion¹ on the draft recommendation on electricity tariff structures in the Community.² Parliament approves the Commission's draft with the proviso that the Member States regularly report to the Commission on the action taken by the electricity companies to implement the recommendation.

Nuclear safety

Technological problems

2.1.111. Guided by the Council Resolution of 22 July 1975,³ the Commission continued its work on harmonizing safety criteria and standards and coordinating research programmes, notably in regard to light-water reactors and sodium-cooled fast-breeder reactors. In its progress report on the technological problems of nuclear safety for the period from July 1978 to December 1980, which was sent to the Council on 11 May, the Commission points out the three lines of research now being followed in regard to safety and the results this research is aimed at:

- (i) water reactors — enunciation of the general principles which will provide a framework for harmonization;
- (ii) fast breeders — convergence of Member States' safety criteria and common basis for equipment codes and standards;
- (iii) nuclear fuel cycle — plan of action for the management of radioactive wastes.

2.1.112. On 8 May Parliament adopted two resolutions,⁴ the first rejecting a motion calling for the suspension of work relating to fast-breeder reactors and the second opposing a nuclear energy moratorium.

Plant safety

2.1.113. At its 18 and 19 May meeting the Council gave its approval to the continuation of the Super-Sara project,⁵ the object of which is to study the behaviour of light-water reactor fuel when, for example, there is a loss of coolant as occurred in the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power station in the United States.

2.1.115. In May the Commission gave its opinion on the projects relating to the disposal of radioactive effluents from the Saint-Laurent-des-Eaux and Le Blayais nuclear power stations in France.

Research and development

Development of the common policy

Scientific and Technical Research Committee

2.1.116. At a meeting in Brussels on 13 and 14 May the Scientific and Technical Research Committee (CREST) held a detailed discussion with the officers responsible for the FAST project (Forecasting and Assessment in the Field of Science and Technology). The topics examined concerned the development of suitable technologies for the redeployment of existing economic structures in the industrialized countries and the social implications of technological change, since these problems were of fundamental importance for the implementation of the long-term R & D policy. CREST followed up this debate by an exchange of views on the guidelines to be adopted for 1981-86, and stressed the importance of the links between research and industrial innovation and of research in the social sciences.

The Committee also carried out an initial examination of the proposal for a four-year programme in the field of science and technology for development.¹

Advisory Committee on Industrial Research and Development

2.1.117. At a meeting in Brussels on 22 May the Advisory Committee on Industrial Research and Development approved a report on measures designed to promote industrial R & D, making a number of recommendations to the Member States and the Commission. The Committee also discussed a report on the common R & D policy from the industrial standpoint and exchanged views on its future activities.

Multiannual programmes

Joint Research Centre

Direct action

Super-Sara project

2.1.118. At its meeting on 18 and 19 May the Council gave approval for the continuation of the Super-Sara project, which is regarded as an experiment of major significance in the field of nuclear safety.

The Council had already signified its agreement to the implementation of the project when it approved the JRC's programme in March 1980.² At that time, however, it had only released the financial resources required for the 1980 activities, reserving its decision concerning subsequent research. The way is now open for experiments to be conducted at the JRC Ispra Establishment (in the Essor reactor) on the behaviour of nuclear fuels in the event of coolant loss.

The significance of such research, highlighted by the Three Mile Island accident in the USA, has aroused interest in several non-member countries, which are thus potential participants in the Super-Sara project.

State of current activities

2.1.119. During May a number of experts' meetings were held at Ispra on the following topics: the status of the activities involved in the 'risks and reliability' project, particularly in connection with the setting-up of the European reliability data system (ERDS); post-accident residual heat removal and fuel-coolant interaction (breeder reactors); remote sensing, notably as applied to the study of soil utilization in less-favoured regions and to the coastal transport of pollutants; the relationship between energy and the environment; energy conversion, storage and transport systems (meeting of the relevant ACPM).

Indirect and concerted action

Solar energy

2.1.120. On 26 May the Community's solar power station, 'Eurelios', was inaugurated at Adrano, Sicily. Eurelios is the first power station of this size (1 MWe) in the world to come into operation. It was designed and constructed as part of the energy research programme.¹ It is linked to the national grid and has been producing electricity since January. Similar power stations are being built in Spain, France, the United States and Japan.

Controlled thermonuclear fusion

2.1.121. On 19 May the Council increased the appropriation for the JET project from 145 to 195 million ECU.²

Parliament had approved³ the Commission's original proposal⁴ on 5 May, though it considered that provision should be made for adjustment of the statistical data relating to the project within the framework of the annual budget procedure.

2. Enlargement and external relations

Enlargement and bilateral relations with applicant countries

Portugal

Accession negotiations

2.2.1. The fourth ministerial-level meeting of the negotiations for Portugal's accession to the Communities was held in Brussels on 18 May. The Portuguese delegation was led by Mr Barreto, the Minister for European Integration. The Community delegation, led by Mr van der Mei, President of the Council, presented statements on transport and Community secondary legislation. A statement on customs union has yet to be made.

Pre-accession aid

2.2.2. Mr Natali paid an official visit to Portugal from 30 April to 5 May to obtain detailed information on certain infrastructure projects which are to be carried out with the pre-accession aid granted by the Community to Portugal in December 1980.¹ Mr Natali, who was accompanied by Mr Barreto, travelled to the northern part of the central region. Commission and Portuguese experts took the opportunity to hold a meeting to start detailed discussions on the first projects.

2.2.3. Mr Natali also had exchanges of views on the accession negotiations with President Eanes, Mr Balsemao, the Prime Minister, and Mr Barreto.

Bilateral relations

2.2.4. On 13 May the eleventh meeting of the EEC-Portugal Joint Committee, which is responsible for administering the 1972 Trade

Agreement and the various protocols concluded since then, was held in Brussels.

Spain

Accession negotiations

2.2.5. On 25 May the thirteenth deputy-level meeting of the negotiations for Spain's accession to the Communities was held in Brussels. The Community delegation presented statements on economic and financial matters, regional policy and capital movements, while the Spanish delegation presented statements on external relations, the right of establishment and freedom to provide services, and secondary legislation.

Mr Natali's visit to Spain

2.2.6. At the end of May Mr Natali went to Spain, where he met a number of leading political figures and members of the Government, including Mr Calvo-Sotelo, the Prime Minister, and Mr Suarez, the former Prime Minister; the matters discussed were certain substantive problems relating to the accession negotiations and the timetable for the talks.

2.2.7. Mr Natali also officially opened the Madrid Information Office and attended the opening of the proceedings of the European Parliament—Cortes Joint Committee.

Financial cooperation

2.2.8. On 4 May the Board of Governors of the European Investment Bank decided to authorize the Bank to grant loans from its own resources to finance capital projects in Spain to facilitate Spain's economic integration into the Community, for a maximum of 200 million u.a., the amount actually committed not to exceed 100 million u.a. per period of 12 consecutive months. The President of the Council informed the Spanish delegation last March that the Council had decided to recommend to the EIB that financial cooperation of this kind be set up between the Community and Spain.¹

Commercial policy

Implementing the common commercial policy

Import arrangements

Easing of restrictive measures

2.2.9. Under the Council Regulation of 4 December 1980 on import arrangements in respect of State-trading countries,² the Commission approved the exceptional opening of import quotas for the following product:

Italy — Czechoslovakia: Aluminium alloy waste recast into ingots, with an aluminium content not exceeding 97%.

Trade protection

Anti-dumping measures

2.2.10. The Commission initiated an anti-dumping procedure concerning imports of plywood and similar laminated wood products originating in Canada and the United States.³

Also, it accepted an undertaking given in connection with the anti-dumping proceedings concerning louvre doors originating in Malaysia and Singapore and consequently decided⁴ to terminate the proceedings it had initiated in November 1980.⁵

2.2.11. On 25 May the Commission imposed a provisional anti-dumping duty on orthoxylene originating in Puerto Rico and the United States,⁶ and on 15 May it raised the rate of the provisional anti-dumping duty on styrene monomer originating in the United States⁷ from 4% to 14.8%, because of the widespread harm done to Community producers since the introduction of this duty in February.¹ On 18 May the Commission imposed a provisional anti-dumping duty on imports of certain textured polyester fabrics;² in this case, the harm done to the Community industry is clearly attributable to the considerable increase in imports of the fabrics in question into the Community, the United States' share of the market having risen from 8.7% in 1979 to 17.1% in 1980 (imports into the United Kingdom, the most seriously affected country, went up by 23% from one year to the next).

2.2.12. The Council imposed or altered the definitive anti-dumping duties on two products also originating in the United States: vinyl acetate monomer and kraft liner paper.³

Treaties and trade agreements: extension or automatic renewal

2.2.13. On 19 May the Council authorized the extension or automatic renewal of certain trade agreements between Member States and non-member countries (second 1981 batch).⁴ These are agreements expiring or due for renewal between 1 May and 31 July.

Export credits

2.2.14. The Community took part in the meeting of members of the 'consensus' on officially supported export credits, which took place in Paris on 12 and 13 May under the aegis of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. No agreement was reached on an increase in credit rates, and a further meeting will probably take place in July.

Sectoral commercial policy measures

Textiles

Agreements and arrangements with non-member countries

2.2.15. An agreement was reached between the Community and India to extend until the end of 1982 the bilateral voluntary export restraint agreement (concluded under the MFA) which is due to expire on 31 December 1981.

2.2.16. A joint action memorandum, initialised by Spain and the Community on 8 May, also extends until the end of 1981 the current agreement (dating from 1979) on trade in textile products and sets targets for Spanish exports of seven textile and clothing products; the arrangements for three other products will be administered jointly.

2.2.17. Following consultations regarding 1981 and 1982, the Commission has laid down the arrangements applicable to imports into the Benelux countries, France and the Community of certain textile products originating in Macao.

Development

Campaign against hunger in the world

2.2.18. Following the debate held in Parliament on 16 and 18 September 1980,⁵ the resolution adopted by the Council on 18 November 1980⁶ and the exchange of views in the Council on 28 April,⁷ this problem was again up for discussion by Parliament in May, when it debated the Commission proposals to the Council for food aid in 1981;⁸ those proposals were in fact drafted in the light of Parliament's debate on hunger in the world last September.

In the new resolution adopted on 8 May⁹ Parliament stresses that food aid as such can be only a temporary solution to the problem of hunger and emphasizes the link between food aid, rural development policies and national food strategies. In its view, food aid should be linked to a rural development policy and should be integrated into Community-backed development projects.

Generalized preferences

2.2.19. The Community took an active part in the meeting of the Unctad Special Committee on Preferences held in Geneva from 11 to 22 May to examine the operation of the generalized system of preferences (GSP). Informal and private consultations between donor and recipient countries took place at the same time.

In his statement to the Committee, the Community spokesman outlined the conclusions drawn by the Community from the analysis of the operation of the GSP during its initial application period which had led it to make a number of adjustments to the system to enable it to meet the demands of the current international economic situation. The Community had been guided by these conclusions when it extended the system for a further ten-year period. However, the spokesman pointed out that as regards such fundamental features as product coverage, tariff treatment and list of beneficiaries, the new system retained nearly all the positive elements of the old system. Where amendments had been made, he stressed the advantages which the new system could provide.¹

Disturbed at suggestions that the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) was planning to withdraw almost all its financial support from the technical assistance project conducted jointly with Unctad, the participants unanimously adopted a resolution calling on the UNDP to continue to provide the multiannual financing that is essential to provide an infrastructure to ensure the dissemination of information on the various generalized preferences schemes.

2.2.20. During this meeting the Community had informal consultations with representatives from 13 developing countries. A number of aspects of the new Community GSP were explained and further improvements were requested, particularly the inclusion of new products and the widening of margins of preference in the agricultural sector.

Commercial, industrial, financial and technical cooperation

2.2.21. On 8 May Parliament adopted a resolution on the creation of a European Foundation for International Technological and Scientific Cooperation.²

In its resolution Parliament stresses the importance and desirability of giving scientific and technical cooperation a more prominent place in current procedures for cooperation with developing countries. In line with the programme of action adopted by the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development, Parliament lays particular emphasis on the desirability of enhancing the capacity of developing countries to carry out research and development activities themselves rather than merely transferring the results of the work carried out in research establishments in the industrialized countries.

Aid to non-associated developing countries

2.2.22. On 27 May the Commission approved the financing of a new tranche (the fifth) under the 1980 programme of financial and technical aid to non-associated developing countries. The two new projects will cost 4.3 million ECU: 3.8 million ECU for India (Kerala anti-disaster shelters project) and 500 000 ECU for the Maldives (project for improving health conditions). Total commitments under the 1980 programme now total 133.7 million ECU out of the 138.5 million ECU made available.

Food aid

Annual programmes

2.2.23. On 19 May the Council adopted the Community food aid programmes for 1981.¹ These involve 927 663 tonnes of cereals, 150 000 tonnes of skimmed-milk powder and 45 000 tonnes of butteroil. The breakdown by recipient country or organization is given in Tables 1, 2 and 3.

The 1981 cereals programme reflects the increase in the annual commitment of the Community and its Member States under the Food Aid Convention. This overall commitment now amounts to 1 650 000 tonnes of cereals, about 56% of which will be supplied direct by the Community, the remainder being covered by national operations carried out by the Member States.

The distribution pattern is in line with the Community policy of concentrating its food aid on the poorest countries. Hence, 96% of direct allocations of cereals are earmarked for 36 countries where per capita gross national product was less than USD 680 in 1979. Because of the present food crisis there has been a marked increase in the quantities going to Africa: 280 000 tonnes of cereals compared with 168 000 tonnes in 1980, an increase of two thirds.

The three programmes will cost about 656 million ECU (including transport costs in certain cases), 433 million ECU of which will be charged to the food aid budget and the rest to the EAGGF—refunds heading.

Emergency aid

2.2.24. On 12 May the Council formally decided, on the basis of a proposal from the Commission, to grant emergency food aid to the People's Republic of China in the form of 2 000 tonnes of skimmed-milk powder and 8 000 tonnes of colza oil. This aid is to help cope with the consequences of the floods in the province of Hubei and the drought in the province of Hebei.

Relations with non-governmental organizations

2.2.25. During the period 1 January to 31 May the Commission committed 4 601 393 ECU to cofinance 56 projects presented by 44 NGOs in developing countries.

The Commission has also contributed 111 005 ECU to four schemes undertaken by the NGO Liaison Committee to educate European public opinion on development matters.

2.2.26. In 1980 the cofinancing appropriations used by the Commission in its work with the NGOs totalled 14 million ECU. This information comes from the Commission's annual report on relations with NGOs, with special reference to the cofinancing of projects.

International organizations and conferences

Economic and Social Council

Economic Commission for Europe

2.2.27. The Commission participated as an observer in two ECE meetings dealing with environmental issues held from 11 to 15 May in Geneva. Discussions centred on the qualitative and quantitative aspects of water resources and the surveillance of transboundary water pollution.¹

United Nations Conference on Trade and Development

Common Fund

2.2.28. At the first meeting of a Working Group of the Fund's Preparatory Committee, which took place in Geneva from 4 to 8 May, agreement was reached finalizing several administrative measures needed to permit the entry into force of the Agreement on the Common Fund for Commodities. This implementing agreement, which will have to be approved by the Preparatory Committee itself in September, deals in particular with the rules of procedure for the Governing Council and the Executive Board. Should the Community not take part directly in the latter's proceedings, it was agreed that it could be invited to attend meetings as an observer.

Special Committee on Preferences

2.2.29. The Community took part in a meeting of the Unctad Special Committee on Preferences held in Geneva from 11 to 22 May.² The utilization of the generalized system of preferences was examined, and informal and private consultations took place at multilateral and bilateral level between donor and beneficiary countries.

² Point 2.2.19.

United Nations Industrial Development Organization

2.2.30. The Community was represented at the meeting held from 15 to 29 May in Geneva by the Industrial Development Board of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization. The underlying theme was the conversion of UNIDO into a specialized agency. The new Constitution has so far been ratified by 42 States; 80 ratifications are needed for it to enter into force, however. Another point discussed was the need to freeze the growth of UNIDO's expenditure in accordance with the general principles of budgetary restraint obtaining within the United Nations system.

The UNIDO Board had 11 items on its agenda, the two major ones concerning the follow-up to the decisions and recommendations of UNIDO's Third General Conference and the system of consultations.

As part of the follow-up to the General Conference, the Secretariat presented its proposal to set up an international industrial development bank. This new financial institution would have a capital of USD 50 000 million subscribed by governments and an annual lending capacity of USD 30 000 million in the year 2000. One function of the bank could be to subsidize the interest rates of loans taken out by least-developed and other developing countries.

The Community and other members of the industrialized countries group did not agree with this proposal since they felt that UNIDO was not the appropriate place for examining these questions, which would be better dealt with in the existing financial forums, and that the creation of a new financial institution would not lead to an increase in the funds available from other sources for industrial development. It was agreed that, at its 16th session in November, the Board's Permanent Committee would continue examining the proposal discussed at the 15th session and take a decision on it. Discussions on the system of consultations dealt mainly with the 1982-83 programme and the rules of procedure drawn up by an intersessional working party. It was decided to hold six consultation meetings over the two-year period dealing with the training of industrial labour, industrial financing, and the steel, pharmaceutical, agricultural machinery and timber industries. It was also decided that at its May 1982 session the UNIDO Board would study the possibility of including other meetings in the programme; it is unlikely, however, that there will be sufficient funds to finance such meetings.

World Food Council

Ministerial session

2.2.31. The Community took part in the universal session held by the World Food Council at Novi Sad, Yugoslavia, from 25 to 29 May.

The Council examined the development of the food situation, the various aspects of the food problem and the policies to be adopted in order to achieve the aims of the new development strategy. While expressing satisfaction at the progress achieved on food security, it was concerned about the precarious food situation in Africa. It insisted that the developing countries should continue giving top priority to finding a solution to their food problems, particularly through food strategies supported by donor countries.

The Council acknowledged that views diverged on agricultural protectionism and stressed the need for all industrialized countries to step up agricultural imports from developing countries. It recognized the need for a 'food security network' made up of different kinds of measure (food aid, IMF food facility, etc.) in the context of a new Wheat Trade Convention (to be negotiated and concluded as soon as possible). The Council also suggested that each country should adopt a national support strategy covering all aspects of the world food problem, in particular development assistance, trade policies and food security questions.

United Nations Environment Programme

2.2.32. The Commission was represented at the annual session of the UNEP's Governing Council held in Nairobi from 12 to 27 May; during this meeting a medium-term plan of action (1982-83) was adopted and discussions also took place on the implementation of UNEP's programme of activities.

Speaking on behalf of the Community, the Commission representative mentioned the UNEP activities in which the Community took an active part. Two of the main decisions adopted at the end of this session had been proposed by the Community. The first, concerning action programmes for regional seas (which had been received most favourably), stipulated that UNEP would give these programmes greater weight in the medium-term plan of action and the budget; the second provided for the drawing-up of a world framework agreement to protect the ozone layer. The Governing Council also made the final arrangements for a high-level meeting on environmental law which will take place, with the Community participating, in Montevideo in November.

International Monetary Fund

2.2.33. The Interim Committee of the IMF Board of Governors met in Libreville, Gabon, on 21 and 22 May under the chairmanship of the Canadian Minister of Finance, Mr MacEachen, following a ministerial meeting of the Group of Ten on 20 May. The Commission was represented at both meetings by Mr Ortoli. At the end of its deliberations, the Interim Committee adopted a number of decisions concerning in particular the Fund's resources, the allocation of new special drawing rights, and emergency food aid for countries suffering from a temporary shortage. The communiqués issued after these meetings take stock of the matters discussed and give details of the decisions taken.¹

International Atomic Energy Agency

2.2.34. Cooperation between Euratom and the International Atomic Energy Agency was further strengthened with an exchange of letters on 5 May concerning research and development in the field of nuclear safeguards. The letters, which were signed for the Community by Mr Haferkamp and for the IAEA by Mr Eklund, provide for the research capability and expertise of the Joint Research Centre to be made available to the Agency in a number of specified areas, as a contribution to the implementation of the IAEA's internationally accepted system of nuclear safeguards. Regular exchanges of information and a working party to examine the results of the research carried out are also envisaged. The cooperation is based on a Framework Agreement between Euratom and the IAEA signed in 1975.²

General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade

GATT Council

2.2.35. Under decisions taken in March 1980 the Council held a special session on 27 May to review the situation on notification and surveillance within the GATT system. There was a general consensus that this was an important question, affecting the ability of GATT as an organization to play its full role in the management of the international trade system; but the participants recognized there was a need for further analysis of the current situation before any policy conclusions were arrived at. The Council will undertake a further review in due course, and informal consultations will proceed between the chairman and the main delegations concerned.

Textiles Committee

2.2.36. The GATT Textiles Committee met in Geneva on 7 and 8 May. After it was decided to admit the People's Republic of China as an observer, the principal point considered at this meeting was the future of the MFA, which expires on 31 December. In this connection the Community spokesman recalled the view already expressed by the Community that particular arrangements should again be envisaged for international trade in textiles. While the procedures for determining the Community's position regarding such arrangements had not yet been completed, there was no doubt that the Community intended to maintain and foster a viable textile and clothing industry.¹

¹ Points 3.5.1 to 3.5.12.

² OJ L 329, 23.12.1975.

Customs Valuation Committee

2.2.37. The Customs Valuation Committee, which met in Geneva on 5 May, noted that, in addition to the Community and the 16 signatory countries, Spain had just ratified the Agreement and Australia and New Zealand would be in a position to do so shortly. Discussion centred on an examination of the different points contained in a check-list on the implementation of the Agreement.

Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe

2.2.38. The Madrid CSCE review meeting resumed its proceedings at the beginning of May after having adjourned for the Easter vacation. No substantial progress has been made to date, and the outcome of the meeting remains uncertain.

Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development

Executive Committee

2.2.39. At a special session in Paris on 18 and 19 May the OECD Executive Committee reviewed the state of relations with developing countries from the angle of economic interdependence. It noted the vulnerability of the world economic system and the need to seek greater security, particularly for developing countries, while at the same time taking into account the positive effects of allowing market forces to work freely. These concerns are shared by the Community, which for its part is continuing to prepare its position for the next stages in the North-South Dialogue. As regards the future global negotiations, the Executive Committee's discussions revealed something of a questioning wait-and-see attitude and concern for the future of the Dialogue.

The Committee also examined the way in which macroeconomic and trade policies were interrelated. It noted once again that there was no alternative to free trade as a means of guaranteeing low-inflation growth, but that the member countries of the Organization should increase their coordination in all fields of economic activity, though slightly diversified action might be warranted by the way a country operated. The Committee's deliberations were conducted with a view to a forthcoming ministerial meeting of the OECD Council.

Council of Europe

Committee of Ministers

2.2.40. During a session of the Council of Europe's Committee of Ministers in Strasbourg on 14 May, the Secretary-General of the Council of Europe and the Presidents of the Council and Commission of the European Communities laid great emphasis on progress in European cooperation.

The Ministers continued their discussions regarding the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, and the representative of The Netherlands made a statement on the subject on behalf of the 10 Member States of the Community. The Committee's deliberations resulted in the adoption of several texts, including a statement on intolerance and a recommendation on means of facilitating access to legal redress.

Industrialized countries

EFTA countries

Austria

2.2.41. On 11 and 12 May Mr Haferkamp paid an official visit to Vienna, where he met the President, Mr Kirchschläger, the

¹ Bull. EC 4-1981, points 1.2.1 to 1.2.6.

Chancellor, Mr Kreisky, and other members of the Austrian Government. He also met a representative group from the Austrian Parliament.

Discussions centred on Austria's trade deficit with the Community, the closure and possible reopening of a number of Italian customs posts, certain agricultural issues and the possibility of financial participation by the Community in the building of a motorway in Austria.

United States

Talks at the Commission with representatives of the US Administration

2.2.42. The various problems affecting relations between the EEC and the United States were the focal point of the talks held in May in Brussels between Commission officials and representatives of the US Administration. The main points raised were:

- (i) the high interest rates prevailing in the United States (this aggravates the problems of the European countries, since they are obliged to keep up with this 'escalation' in rates in order to defend their currencies);
- (ii) the trigger prices affecting steel imports (these are higher than the prices set by most American producers, leaving virtually no scope for European exporters to penetrate the US market);
- (iii) the initiation of anti-dumping procedures by the United States against exports of European fine and special steels;
- (iv) the dual pricing of natural gas (which puts American manufacturers of synthetic fibres at an advantage);
- (v) the agreement limiting Japanese car exports to the American market for a three-year period.¹

Other more general topics were also discussed: relations with the Third World and the North-South Dialogue, preparations for the Ottawa western economic summit, renewal of the Multifibre Arrangement and plans to revise the GATT.

During these discussions the Commission representatives were careful to stress the importance which the Community attaches to genuine cooperation and consultation with the United States, and to the triangular relations between the EEC, the United States and Japan.

2.2.43. Mr Haig, the American Secretary of State, visited the Commission on 5 May after taking part in the North Atlantic Council meeting in Rome. During preliminary talks Mr Haig informed Mr Thorn of the outcome of the NATO meeting and gave him an outline of US domestic policy, thus underlining the essentially political nature of their discussions.

A number of world issues and problems of EEC-US bilateral relations were raised at an extended meeting at which the two sides stressed the need for wide-ranging consultations at a high level. Accordingly, the Ottawa western economic summit could be preceded by a further meeting between Mr Haig and Mr Thorn.

2.2.44. The US Secretary of Commerce, Mr Baldrige, visited the Commission on 11 and 12 May, where he met Mr Thorn and Mr Davignon. He agreed with them on the need for each side to make a serious and thoroughgoing examination of the problem of the decline in American imports of steel products from the Community. In Mr Baldrige's opinion this decline could mainly be attributed to a falling-off in domestic demand for steel in the United States, which was to a large extent the result of the slump in the automobile industry.

As regards the difficulties being encountered by the motor industry in Europe, Mr Davignon said that the Commission felt the recent arrangement between Japan and the United States should not be allowed to have a prejudicial effect on the European market.

The Americans and Europeans also agreed to hold bilateral consultations prior to the preparatory talks on the renewal of the Multifibre Arrangement.

2.2.45. Talks were held from 23 to 25 May between Commission representatives and Mr Brock, the US representative for trade negotiations. Mr Brock outlined US economic and trade policy, particularly in relation to the main issues currently being discussed by the two parties. The topics of discussion included the GATT talks on the revision of the safeguard clause (the industrialized countries want Article XIX to be made more flexible); the extension of the GATT principles to the services sector (which is often subjected to restrictive national regulations); and the need to convene a ministerial meeting. Mr Brock also raised the problem of export credits. The United States has already cut down on Eximbank credits, wants export credit rates to be increased and is looking to the Europeans to pursue a similar policy. Mr Brock said that because of its export subsidies, the Community's agricultural policy gave European farmers a decided advantage over their American competitors.

2.2.46. Mr Block, the US Secretary of Agriculture, visited the Commission on 26 May: he drew attention to the US Administration's two main concerns as regards the common agricultural policy, namely: the amount of support given by the Community, leading to production surpluses which it is obliged to export on the world market, and the Community's rumoured intention of imposing a tax on soya and restricting imports of cereal substitutes.

Six-monthly high-level consultations

2.2.47. The first 1981 round of the six-monthly high-level consultations between the US Administration and the Commission was held in Brussels on 21 and 22 May. Mr Rashish, Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, headed the American delegation. These consultations provided an opportunity for an exchange of views on the economic situation in the United States and the Community, the new economic programme of the Reagan Administration, the North-South Dialogue, commercial, energy and nuclear questions, and cooperation agreements in the fields of science and technology. Particular attention was given to commercial problems. On several occasions the Commission representatives emphasized the concern felt at the lack of effective consultations between the Community and the US Administration.

Seminar on relations between the EEC and the United States

2.2.48. A seminar on relations between the EEC and the United States was organized in Brussels from 23 to 25 May by the Foundation Paul-Henri Spaak and Georgetown University. The topics covered were: political relations between the EEC and the United States, the problems of adjustment in the monetary, trade and industrial fields and priorities for society in the United States and Europe in the 1980s.

Japan

2.2.49. At its meeting on 18 and 19 May the Council adopted a statement on trade between the Community and Japan, with particular regard to the motor industry.¹

Mediterranean countries

Turkey

2.2.50. At its 18 and 19 May meeting the Council reached unanimous agreement on the draft of the fourth EEC-Turkey financial protocol. This protocol, which will have an appropriation of 600 million ECU (as against 310 million ECU for the current protocol expiring on 31 October), is in implementation of the decisions reached at the last Association Council ministerial meeting on 30 June and 1 July 1980.²

2.2.51. At the request of the Turkish Government, a meeting of the Association Council at ambassador level will take place on 5 June to discuss the functioning of the Association.

Yugoslavia

2.2.52. At the same meeting the Council failed to adopt negotiating directives for an adaptation protocol to the EEC-Yugoslavia agreement¹ to take account of Greece's accession, the main reason being the problems raised by an increase in the baby beef quota granted to Yugoslavia. Accordingly, the Council decided² to further extend, until 31 July, the autonomous arrangements currently applicable³ to products originating in that country.

Developing countries

ACP States and OCTs

ACP-EEC Conventions

Implementation of the new Convention

2.2.53. In an own-initiative opinion delivered at its session of 26 and 27 May⁴ the Economic and Social Committee took stock of the measures to be adopted to ensure optimum application of the second Lomé Convention. In a chapter-by-chapter examination of the text of the Convention, a number of suggestions were made, with particular emphasis on agricultural cooperation, a chapter which represents a major innovation compared with the first Convention.

Ratification

2.2.54. The Federal Republic of Nigeria ratified the second ACP-EEC Convention on 12 May, which means that the procedures for the ratification of the Convention, which entered into force last January,⁵ have now been completed for all ACP States.

Regional cooperation

2.2.55. On 7 and 8 May the Commission organized a meeting with the East African ACP States to study road, rail and waterway (lake) transport between the port of Dar-es-Salaam in Tanzania and the landlocked countries of the region (central corridor). At this meeting, attended by delegations from Burundi, Rwanda, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia (with observers from Kenya, Malawi, Zimbabwe and Sudan), a programme of priority schemes which can be implemented rapidly was drawn up.

Association of OCTs

2.2.56. On 15 May the Commission transmitted to the Council a communication on the financial adjustments resulting from the change of status whereby two OCTs became ACP States: Saint Vincent and the Grenadines and the Republic of Vanuatu. The Commission proposes that the share of the fifth EDF granted to the OCTs and allocated to the two newly independent States in question should be transferred to the share earmarked for the ACP States.

Export earnings

Stabex

2.2.57. On 20 May the Commission decided to pay an advance of 1 million ECU to Gambia, to offset losses of earnings on groundnut products during 1980.

Sugar protocol

2.2.58. Negotiations on the fixing of guaranteed prices for sugar from the ACP States for 1981/82 opened at ministerial level on 21 May.

European Development Fund

Financing decisions

2.2.59. In May the Commission decided that 12 410 000 ECU from the fourth and fifth EDFs would be used to finance operations breaking down by sector as follows:

Bangladesh

2.2.60. The Joint Commission set up under the 1976 EEC-Bangladesh Commercial Cooperation Agreement met in Brussels on 6 and 7 May. After examining in detail the 1981 trade promotion programme, it discussed the broad lines of the 1982 programme, which, both sides agreed, should include more production-oriented projects.

The Joint Commission stressed the need to monitor closely the results of the round-table meeting in April attended by about 60 European businessmen and a high-level delegation from Bangladesh.¹ The Joint Commission also examined the use made by Bangladesh of the Community's GSP, food aid and financial aid programme, and the operation of the textile and jute agreements. Following an exchange of views on the opportuneness of a new commercial cooperation agreement, the two sides agreed to keep the matter under review.

Sri Lanka

2.2.61. The Joint Commission set up under the 1975 EEC-Sri Lanka Commercial Cooperation Agreement held its fourth meeting in Brussels on 4 and 5 May. It discussed and drew up the trade promotion programme for Sri Lanka for 1981, which includes support for the trade and investment centres, two trade fairs, two trade missions, one consultancy and an investment guide.

In the field of economic cooperation the Community agreed to provide technical assistance to help produce the skeleton of a medium-term energy programme. The Joint Commission also examined the operation of the Community GSP, the agreements for textiles, coir and handlooms and handicrafts,

Community food aid and the financial assistance programme.

Latin America

Nicaragua

2.2.62. Mr Marenco and Mr Blandon, Nicaragua's Minister of Internal Trade and Deputy Minister of Agriculture respectively, had talks with the Commission on 22 May; particular attention was paid to the implementation of Community food aid and technical and financial aid for 1981, and to the development of the general situation in Nicaragua.

2.2.63. During a visit by a Nicaraguan delegation to the Commission on 7 and 8 May it was agreed that Nicaragua should present to the Commission a number of specific financing proposals in the context of Community aid to non-associated developing countries.

EEC-Latin America Dialogue

2.2.64. After the ad hoc ambassadors' meeting on 9 February,² agreement was reached by the two sides in May concerning the procedure for the 'renewed dialogue' between the EEC and Latin America. This is now to comprise two successive sets of discussions: meetings between the Commission and the GRULA (Group of Latin American Heads of Mission), followed by meetings involving the relevant Council bodies.

A Commission/GRULA meeting on 25 May dealt with the following topics: trade in general and in particular the external repercussions of the common agricultural policy; international trade in textiles (problems linked with the renewal of the MFA); and energy.

Diplomatic relations

2.2.65. The President of the Council and the President of the Commission received Their Excellencies Mr Babou Ousman Jobe,

They also received Their Excellencies Mr Daouda Kourouma and Mr Carlo Lamur, who presented their letters of credence as Head of Mission of the Popular and Revolutionary Republic of Guinea and the Republic of Suriname to the European Communities with effect from 19 May.¹

The new Ambassadors succeed Mr Ebou Momar Taal (Gambia), Mr Mohamed A.K. Al-Wazir (Yemen), Mr Lambert Messan (Niger), Mr N'Faly Sangare (Guinea) and Mr R.A. Ferrier (Suriname).

European political cooperation

Ministerial meeting

2.2.66. On 9 and 10 May the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the Member States and the President of the Commission, Mr Thorn, held their traditional informal meeting (on the Gymnich model) at Venlo, in The Netherlands.

According to the briefing given to the press by the President of the Council, Mr van der Klaauw, at the end of the meeting, discussions covered various European political cooperation issues and a number of Community problems:

- (i) improved political cooperation methods ('without setting up a new bureaucracy'), strengthened involvement of the member governments in foreign policy and possible extension of cooperation to certain security aspects;
- (ii) Middle East, notably the position as regards Mr van der Klaauw's contacts with parties involved;
- (iii) Turkey;
- (iv) CSCE (position of and projects for the Madrid review meeting);
- (v) East-West relations (notably Afghanistan and Poland).

As regards strictly Community topics, Mr Thorn mentioned trade relations with Japan and Yugoslavia, and took stock of the work being done by the Commission to implement the May mandate.

3. Institutional and political matters

Institutional developments and European policy

Ministerial meetings

2.3.1. An informal meeting of Foreign Ministers on the Gymnich model was held at Venlo, in The Netherlands, on 9 and 10 May under the chairmanship of the Dutch Foreign Minister, Mr van der Klaauw. The agenda included Community activities and European political cooperation.¹

Institutions and organs of the Communities

Parliament¹

Strasbourg: 4 to 8 May

2.3.2. Except for the rather 'political' debate on the situation in Ulster, which ended with the adoption of a resolution calling for measures to improve the economic situation of Northern Ireland, Parliament's business during its May sittings was largely technical: industrial policy in general and specific industries (steel, technologies of the future, the motor industry); transport policy and competition policy.

Industrial policy (6 and 7 May)

2.3.3. The report on industrial policy by Mr Delorozoy (Lib/F) maintained that Community action for industry must not be confined to the sectors to be restructured. But the Member States were not at the moment showing any great determination to cooperate in that field. Moreover, in the advanced technology industries the Community countries were falling behind. This was largely because of the lack of coherence of individual action by Member States. True, the Community must not usurp the position of the States or the undertakings. But it was up to the Commission to prompt the consensus required to produce genuine industrial cooperation.

Mr Moreau (Soc/F) felt that the challenges of the third industrial revolution must be taken up without delay and this no Member State was able to do alone. He was notably in favour of the idea of floating a massive Community loan. He also felt that the Commission must take steps to mount an industrial policy which was not merely defensive but would fulfil the hopes of the people by embracing all the industries of the future. The Commission must not find institutional pretexts for not acting.

Mr Herman (EPP/B) contended that the best of industrial policies lay in first having a sound economic policy. In Community terms this meant laying the emphasis on convergence of economic policies in order to set the stage for development.

Mr Bonaccini (Com/I) called on the Commission to present a real programme for industrial cooperation, believing that a common market was not enough to ensure convergence of economies and reduce regional imbalances.

Mr Deleau (EPD/F) looked at the Community's record on industry and found it wanting. Contacts must be encouraged between companies, particularly between the small and medium-sized firms.

Mr De Clercq (Lib/B) maintained that pouring aid into outdated firms to keep them alive was no solution. The Community must invest in the industries of the future, the only ones which could resist competition

For the Commission, Mr Davignon found that something was woefully lacking in defining the constituents of an aggressive policy, a policy of development and not withdrawal. Moreover, a policy of innovation initiated five years behind our rivals did no more than make up the leeway and was not enough for the Community. Industrial policy was a key to what the Community would, or would not, be in future. The cost of failing to act far exceeded what the Community would have spent if it had moved in time.

At the end of the debate Parliament adopted, with slight amendments, the resolution contained in the Delorozoy report, which states notably:

'It is the duty of the Commission, with the support of the European Parliament and the two sides of industry, to use the institutional powers defined in the Treaties and the administrative and financial instruments already in existence and those to be created, to achieve the consensus necessary for real industrial cooperation in the Community: this should be done with a view to institutional reform resulting in an increase in the responsibilities of these two institutions.'

Steel: competition and employment (6 and 7 May)

2.3.4. Presenting his report, Mr Friedrich (EPP/D) stressed that any lasting solution to the problems of the steel industry would require a policy which had to have three facets: fundamental restructuring, accompanying social measures and the creation of replacement jobs. As for the present system of production quotas, Mr Friedrich hoped this would end on 30 June 1981 and that the steel companies would voluntarily curtail production for a limited period.

Mr Schnitker (EPP/D) called for an end to subsidies as soon as possible.

Mr Wagner (Soc/D) claimed that the behaviour of the steelmakers had wrecked confidence and destroyed discipline. Steel policy, however, was more than just a question of management: the problem of employment simply had to be solved. Mr Wagner's feelings were echoed by Mr Bonaccini (Com/I), who hoped that the accompanying social measures would at last be applied. Mr Damseaux (Lib/B) contended that the big mistake had been to base economic growth on a steel industry which, unlike its Japanese counterpart, had failed to adapt in time. The Liberals were pressing for strict programming of modernization and a voluntary agreement between the steel producers.

The lack of any such voluntary agreement for the period after 30 June was worrying a number of speakers, particularly Miss Forster (ED/UK). Mr Deleau (EPD/F) suggested falling back on Article 58 of the ECSC Treaty if such an agreement, once made, failed to settle the market.

Speaking for the Commission, Mr Davignon said that there must be a plan for solidarity between steel companies. For 1 July the Commission and the industry must have a joint plan, a voluntary agreement enabling everyone to weather the storm during the period of reorganization. Demand for steel in the 1980s had been overestimated, hence the overcapacity. Both the Europeans and the Japanese had made the same mistake, but the Japanese had seen it first and made the necessary adjustments. What the Commission could not accept was the Council's refusal to plan accompanying social measures. The tragedy of the steel industry was that the rescaling of plant had come too late. That was not the Community's fault. The Commission was trying to prevent the mistakes from causing undue personal hardship. An agreement in principle in the Council meant nothing. The necessary funds were in reserve in the budget. All that was needed was a decision on a transfer from the Community budget to the ECSC budget. At that point Mr Davignon asked the House what it would do if, with a voluntary agreement in hand, there was still no decision from the Council on the social measures. The Commission would refuse to take any blame for the inadequacy of its social policy if the Gordian knot of the transfer to the ECSC budget was not cut.

At the end of the debate Parliament passed the resolution moved by Mr Friedrich.

Microelectronics and telecommunications (6 and 7 May)

2.3.5. Despite the economic and social consequences in the short term, the rise of the new microelectronic technologies must be regarded as a positive development. That was the feeling of the rapporteur, Mr Leonardi (Com/I), who urged that the Community should not let itself be outdistanced by its main industrial rivals. Europe's share in the production of integrated circuits now stood at 6%, whereas its share of world consumption was 25%. Although he was sorry that the Community was not really doing much by way of financing, he approved the Commission's proposals¹ for coordinating national programmes and establishing a Community-wide information and consultation system. Mr Leonardi also stressed the need to train specialists.

The other rapporteur, Mr Herman (EPP/B), approved the Commission's broad objectives² in respect of telecommunications using new information techniques (integrated services digital networks, data communications terminals, etc. He nevertheless criticized the Commission for not being bold enough. Mr Herman also maintained that more emphasis must be laid on communications by satellite, the heavy use of which would be revolutionizing transmission systems in the next few years. He regretted the lack of recommendations for harmonizing the administrative structures for network management in each of the Member States. In conclusion, he called for the creation of a Community market for data communications terminals and equipment.

The President of the Council, Mr van der Klaauw, emphasized that the Community ought to have a strategy for the new technologies. The Council would give close attention to the Commission's proposals. The Commission should also look carefully at the social consequences of the introduction of microelectronics technology.

Mr Seal (Soc/UK) wanted to see some economic and social planning in microelectronics in order to prevent massive unemployment, particularly in telecommunications.

Mrs Le Roux (Com/F) was scathingly critical of both reports. If new technologies had to come in, they must be to serve the workers.

Mr Remilly (EPD/F) declared that the only valid industrial strategy was one based on the greatest possible economic independence for Europe. To attain that, new growth paths must be developed.

At the end of the debate the House adopted the Leonardi and Herman reports.

Transport policy

2.3.6. In May Parliament held several debates on transport. It gave opinions on the Commission's memorandum on transport infrastructure,³ on two technical proposals concerning transport of goods by road,⁴ which it wholeheartedly approved, on a proposal for a Directive on the weights of lorries⁵ and on building the Channel tunnel.

Transport infrastructure

(7 May)

2.3.7. Recalling that Parliament had constantly called for a real common transport policy, Mr Klinkenborg (Soc/D) approved the Commission's memorandum. He specifically asked the Commission to consider a number of priority items: main traffic routes within the Community and links with non-member countries; transit routes between Member States through non-member countries; major regional projects. Mr Klinkenborg wanted to prevent Community funds being used improperly to finance purely national projects.

Except for Mr Damette (Com/F), who felt giving special treatment to international routes and links was an unacceptable solution, most of the other speakers focused on the financial aspect of an infrastructure policy: what would be the budget cost of opting for such a policy? (Mr Seefeld—Soc/D); what about a loan? (Mr Albers—Soc/NL); where exactly was the money to come from? (Mr Doublet—EPD/F; Mrs von Alemann—Lib/D).

Channel tunnel

(7 and 8 May)

2.3.8. Mr De Keersmaeker called for a tunnel to be built under the Channel, which would be of benefit not only to France and the United Kingdom but also to the entire Community. Such a project, financially profitable, would be a political and psychological fillip to Community activities by its impact on public opinion.

Mr De Keersmaeker's report found a very broad consensus, most of the speakers highlighting not only the psychological aspect but also the many other benefits accruing from such a project: regional impact, 'physical' unification of Europe, creation of jobs, financial interests, etc.

The resolution in the report was passed by a very large majority.

Northern Ireland

(7 May)

2.3.9. Parliament having decided by a narrow majority to discuss the hunger strikes in Northern Ireland, the debate began on the basis of two motions for resolutions: one tabled by Mr Lalor (IRL) for the EPD Group, which urged the British Government, as recommended by the European Commission of Human Rights, to be more flexible in applying regulations in order to make desirable improvements in prison conditions; the other proposal was from Mr Capanna (Ind/I) and other members, including French and Italian Communists, Mr Gendebien

(NI/B) and Mr Verroken (EPP/B). The second resolution stressed the fact that the hunger strikers were trying to secure treatment compatible with respect for their fundamental rights; they were asking the President of Parliament to convey to the British authorities Parliament's concern and its hope that steps would swiftly be taken to rectify the situation.

But the Liberal, European Democrat and EPP Groups jointly tabled an amendment to replace the two resolutions. They urged the House to express its condemnation of acts of terrorism whatever the circumstances in which they were committed, recognize that the Community was not competent to suggest changes in the constitution of Northern Ireland, express its sympathy with the bereaved families of civilians, soldiers and policemen murdered since the outset of the disturbances and urge the Council and the Commission to support Parliament in saying that they were ready to help in any way which could ease the tension.

Mr Glinne (B) and other members of the Socialist Group moved amendments to Mr Lalor's resolution, which would have taken the middle road of urging the British authorities to show more compassion in the issue of the hunger strikers while strongly condemning the terrorism of the IRA.

At the end of the debate Parliament passed by 107 votes to 67 with 17 abstentions the amendment proposed by the Liberal, European Democrat and EPP Groups in place of the two resolutions.

2.3.10. The House also approved Commission proposals relating to:

- (i) a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical standards and regulations;¹
- (ii) a third plan of action (1981-83) in the field of scientific and technical information and documentation;²

² Point 2.1.18.

- (iii) certain tax allowances and reliefs on imports of goods;¹
- (iv) operations qualifying for a higher rate of intervention by the European Social Fund;²
- (v) application of social security schemes to migrant workers;³
- (vi) electricity tariff structure in the Community;⁴
- (vii) controlled thermonuclear fusion;⁵
- (viii) regulations concerning food aid in 1981.⁶

2.3.11. The House also passed resolutions concerning:

- (i) the Commission's Ninth Report on Competition Policy: the House made a number of observations in favour of genuine, controlled and beneficial competition;
- (ii) international technological and scientific cooperation: the House considered that scientific and technological cooperation could be strengthened within existing cooperation procedures and that it was not worth creating a new Community agency (such as a foundation) for the purpose;
- (iii) Community aid for the Naples metropolitan area hit by the earthquake in November 1980;
- (iv) extension of the advantages of the Directive on less-favoured farming areas to all the districts affected by the earthquake;
- (v) aid to farmers hit by storms;
- (vi) economic aid to Mount Athos, Greece.

2.3.12. In a resolution passed on 7 May Parliament asked the Commission what steps it intended to take following the agreement on the limitation of Japanese car imports into the United States.

2.3.13. On nuclear energy, Parliament believed that it would not be appropriate for it to call on the governments concerned to suspend all work connected with breeder reactor projects; the House was also against any proposal for a nuclear energy moratorium.

2.3.14. Lastly, Parliament reviewed the situation of the European University Institute in Florence: this prompted the House to make several proposals for enhancing the influence of the Institute; it believed that the Institute should be a Community rather than an intergovernmental institution and that its activities should be financed directly by the Community budget.

nary draft amending budget No 1 for 1981.¹ It also considered the latest developments in the steel industry and adopted a code for aid² which will be one of the key items for discussion at the next Council meeting concerned with that sector. It decided that the system of mandatory production quotas should end as scheduled on 30 June except in the case of coils, where the current arrangements (based on Article 58 of the ECSC Treaty) are to continue for a further year.³

After considering the situation created by the recent Japanese decision to make a substantial reduction in car exports to the United States, the Commission decided to seek an arrangement that would limit Japan's car exports to the Community.⁴

Discussions, policy debates and work in hand

2.3.19. The bulk of the Commission's work in the month under review was concerned with carrying out the May 1980 mandate. Fairly general agreement on the outline was reached, and progress was made on a number of aspects of the report. The outline adopted is based on the view that the exercise is not mainly a matter of the budget but is an opportunity to review Community policies. The Commission paid particular attention to structural and agricultural policies and tackled the financial and budgetary matters which arise from the mandate. It also adopted a timetable for its future work.

Relations with workers' and employers' organizations

2.3.20. At a meeting between Mr Giolitti and regional policy experts from the European Trade Union Confederation, the main topics discussed were the first report on the social and economic situation in the regions of the Community and a memorandum which is being prepared on a new regional policy for the Community. The ETUC considers that the new slant of regional policy requires regular discussions with the trade unions.

2.3.21. ETUC representatives were briefed on the latest developments in Community environment policy.

2.3.22. During preliminary consultations the trade unions were given up-to-date information on the activities of the European Foundation for the Improvement of Living and Working Conditions and its future programme.

Appointments at Director-General level

2.3.23. There was a change during May at the head of what had hitherto been the Environment and Consumer Protection Service, now a Directorate-General covering a broader range of activities.

Court of Auditors

2.3.26. On 14 May the Court of Auditors adopted an opinion on the proposal for a financial regulation on the application of the provisions of the agreement in the form of an exchange of letters between the European Economic Commission and the Portuguese Republic on the implementation of pre-accession aid for Portugal.

On 21 May it adopted an opinion on the proposal for a Council Regulation (ECSC, EEC, Euratom) amending the Financial Regulation of 21 December 1977 applicable to the general budget of the European Communities.

Economic and Social Committee

International DNA conference

2.3.27. About one hundred scientists and sociologists from 10 countries took part in the Conference on Safety Aspects of Genetic Engineering organized by the Economic and Social Committee in Brussels on 14 and 15 May. Participants examined the economic, social and ethical implications of research into genetic engineering involving recombinant DNA work. It was opened by the Committee's President, Mr Tomás Roseingrave, and chaired by Dr Hedda Heuser, a German member of the Committee and author of an earlier study on genetic engineering, adopted by the Committee in December 1980.¹

The main topics discussed were the development potential of genetic engineering, risk assessment, safety measures at the place of work, health protection for the general public, ethical questions and public information.

Rapid progress in genetic engineering on a number of fronts has shown the urgent need for the European Community to remain abreast of developments. That is why the Community is currently embarking on a major five-year research and development programme costing 26 million EUA which will coordinate Europe's research effort in this important field.²

188th plenary session

2.3.28. The 188th plenary session of the Economic and Social Committee was held on 26 and 27 May. Mr Roseingrave presided, and the session was attended by Mr de Koning, Dutch Minister of Development Cooperation, and Mr van der Mei, State Secretary in the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in their capacity as President of the Council. Most of this session was devoted to the preparation of an own-initiative opinion on the implementation of the second Lomé Convention; in his introductory statement Mr Roseingrave drew attention to the danger that the present crisis might lead the Community countries to seek solutions which would be damaging to the developing world.

Opinions

Internal market

2.3.29. The Committee approved a Commission proposal³ to amend Council Directives of 1965 and 1975 on the harmonization of legislation relating to proprietary medicinal products.

The Committee agreed with the proposal that recognition should be given to marketing authorizations issued on a harmonized basis by national authorities in preference to the establishment of a European body to issue Community authorizations.

The Committee also drew attention to the unsatisfactory situation which still exists four years after the entry into force of the most recent harmonization Directives and the impossibility of achieving the goals set by merely patching up the present procedures without getting to the root of the problem. It hoped that the Commission would put forward concrete proposals on the advertising and pricing of medicinal products as soon as possible.

Customs union

2.3.30. By a large majority the Committee adopted an opinion on a proposal¹ for a Directive on the harmonization of provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action concerning the exercise of the right of appeal in respect of customs matters.

The Committee approved the proposal, noting that, although it deals only with harmonizing the initial stage of the appeal procedure, it will go some considerable way towards facilitating the resolution of disputes between customs authorities and traders as the bulk of such disputes are dealt with at a purely administrative level.

Fisheries

2.3.31. The Committee unanimously approved the guidelines in a Commission communication on social aspects in the Community sea-fishing sector.² The Committee made several remarks with regard to the absence of a coherent fisheries policy and the economic and social risks inherent therein, the inadequacy and vagueness of the financial aids, the very limited scope of the IMCO Torremolinos Convention on the Safety of Fishing Vessels and the delays in implementing the proposed guidelines.

The Committee also stressed that structural and social policies had to go hand in hand in fisheries and that an adequate and harmonized social framework had to be created to enable the sector to adapt to a changing environment while respecting the diversity of local conditions. The need for medium- and long-term solutions in economic, social and other spheres could not be allowed to impede the search for short-term remedies.

Implementation of the second Lomé Convention

2.3.32. In an opinion adopted unanimously with three abstentions, the Committee made a number of suggestions for improving the implementation of the second Lomé Convention.³ It laid particular stress on the chapter on agricultural cooperation, a subject which had not appeared in the first Convention.

The Committee noted that the results of Lomé I had not been entirely satisfactory and that, while Lomé II was an improvement, it could not solve all the problems of the ACP countries, especially those whose economic and social situation was deteriorating. Unfortunately, neither Convention made any significant provision for involving economic and social interest groups.

The Committee also stressed that pursuit of the new Convention's cooperation policy should not be allowed to impede cooperation with other countries in the Third World. It considered that, to be truly effective, the Community's development aid policy had to be properly coordinated with all its other policies in economic, social and agricultural matters. A major information drive was needed to ensure that the ACP countries made the best use of the resources available from the Community.

The Committee highlighted the following priorities in the area of agricultural cooperation:

- (i) the diversification of agricultural output to achieve self-sufficiency in food production;
- (ii) local processing of farm produce by expanding agri-food industries;
- (iii) a rational exploitation of forestry resources coupled with modernization of fishery methods and equipment;
- (iv) proper management of water resources so as to help overcome the all-important problem of drought and its consequences;
- (v) the construction of the technical and social infrastructure and facilities essential for rural development.

Since the agricultural chapter also covered food aid, the Committee requested that the CAP should be used to help stabilize food supplies, as advocated in the EEC declaration attached to the Convention, and that food aid should be coordinated more satisfactorily with rural development projects.

2.3.33. Finally, the Committee approved a number of Commission proposals dealing with the removal of technical barriers to trade, agricultural policy and transport.

ECSC Consultative Committee

217th meeting

2.3.34. On 8 May the ECSC Consultative Committee held an extraordinary meeting in Luxembourg. Mr Coosemans was in the chair, and the meeting was attended by Mr Thorn, President of the Commission, who gave an address to mark the 30th anniversary of the signing of the ECSC Treaty.¹ The Committee spent most of its time discussing the future of coal and examining the position of the steel industry and its pricing policy.

Future of coal

2.3.35. The Committee discussed the need to increase the amount of coal used by other industries and finished by unanimously adopting a resolution. During discussions, Mr Davignon informed the meeting that the Commission had adopted a document very similar in approach to their draft resolution. He felt, however, that, as the Community's budget stood at present, it would be difficult to enter into new commitments. The Committee closed its discussions by unanimously adopting the draft resolution and a number of amendments. The document reiterates the main ideas contained in the Committee's report on coal policy adopted at its meeting in Edinburgh on 11 May 1979² and concludes by urging the Commission to agree with the Council to waste no time in implementing practical measures to encourage investment in new coal-based capacity in the 'other industries' sector of the Community, chiefly by means of:

(a) financial incentives (e.g. direct aid or low-interest loans) to encourage industry to convert oil-fired boilers to coal;

- (b) financial aid for the building of coal-fired demonstration plants;
- (c) a Community-wide campaign to provide information on existing and future coal-burning technology;
- (d) recommendations that Member States encourage the conversion to coal of heating plant in public buildings; and
- (e) the promoting of investment into the requisite development of transport and handling equipment.

The steel industry and its pricing policy

2.3.36. According to an oral report made to the Committee on behalf of its subcommittee on market and prices, most producers considered that, as far as the application of Article 58 of the ECSC Treaty (production quotas) was concerned, there was no immediate likelihood of an improvement on the steel market. The workers' representatives on the other hand asked for a policy to revive the industry. In connection with the application of Article 60 of the Treaty (pricing), the members of the subcommittee approved all the objectives stated by the Commission in its communication on steel pricing policy. The producers' and dealers' representatives confirmed their agreement with the measures proposed by the Commission, although the producers, hedging a little, stressed the need to make price scales relatively flexible to take account of differences between individual positions.

Mr Davignon put the Commission's point of view, giving details of how the market situation had deteriorated, thus justifying a high abatement rate on production for the first two quarters of 1981. He went on to say that after 30 June next, when the production quota system set up in October 1980 was supposed to expire,³ there was no question of changing suddenly from a system where the Commission had full responsibility to one where firms had a free rein.

The Committee had further been officially consulted by the Commission (under Article

¹ Points 1.1.1 to 1.1.7.

60 of the ECSC Treaty) on steel pricing policy and the measures the Commission was intending to take in conjunction with the Member States to support the market: restructuring list prices, bringing them into line with the real situation by stepping up control, prohibiting dealers from engaging in unfair practices, etc. At the end of this consultation, the Committee published the following opinion (with five abstentions and one person voting against):

The Consultative Committee

1. Agrees with the principles on which the European Commission's proposals are based and the procedures it intends to adopt to implement them;
2. Supports the European Commission in its wish to adjust price scales to the real pricing situation, but asks that it do this circumspectly, taking into account in particular all the provisions of Article 60;
3. Emphasizes that the total supply on the steel market must be governed by common non-discriminatory rules and that this supply should come from producers or dealers, irrespective of type or activities, and that they be guaranteed reasonable remuneration for the service they provide;
4. Points out that imported products should be subject to the same rules, notably the price rules established by the European Commission or those officially agreed with non-Member States;
5. Insists that the European Commission should remain, or be made, responsible for checking all those concerned, to ensure that inspections are conducted to the same level and according to the same rules;
6. Asks the European Commission to waste no time in taking suitable steps to achieve stability on the steel market as soon as possible.'

218th meeting

2.3.37. An extraordinary meeting of the ECSC Consultative Committee was scheduled for 27 May, but as the Committee did not have a quorum it held a working session instead. It was to have given its opinion on the problems mentioned on the agenda of the Council meeting on the steel industry to be held on 4 June.

Those members present were addressed by the chairman of the subcommittee on market and prices on the measures proposed by the Commission for after 30 June, when the production quota system in the steel industry was to expire.

They had no objections to the application of Article 58 (quotas) to coils and derived products, nor to the classification of dealers together with sales organizations under certain circumstances. These were only unofficial conclusions, however, and the Consultative Committee would have to wait for its following meeting to issue a legally valid opinion.

The Commission representative informed the working session that the situation would not have changed appreciably by the end of June. Demand would remain slack, which would continue to mean very low prices and limited use of production capacity (around 60%), so there would have to be special pricing measures as well as the voluntary restrictions.

European Investment Bank

Operations in May

2.3.38. In May the European Investment Bank announced loans totalling 372.1 million ECU¹ for investments in the Community—274.8 million ECU in Italy, 37.1 million ECU in the United Kingdom, 24.6 million ECU in France, 24.1 million ECU in Ireland and 11.5 million ECU in Denmark. Outside the Community the Bank lent 10 million ECU in the United Republic of Cameroon and 700 000 ECU in Liberia (two ACP countries).

Community

Italy

2.3.39. Eleven loans totalling the equivalent of LIT 348 000 million were granted in

¹ The conversion rates at 31 March 1981 used by the EIB in statistics for the second quarter were: 1 ECU = DM 2.54, UKL 0.54, FF 5.98, LIT 1 267, HFL 2.81, BFR 41.58, LFR 41.58, DKR 7.99, DR 62.1, IRL 0.70, USD 1.21.

Italy, chiefly to help finance investment in the Mezzogiorno (LIT 283 000 million). Most of this money (LIT 235 000 million) was to be spent on energy projects; LIT 48 000 million was to go to small and medium-sized industrial firms, LIT 45 000 million to air and road transport and LIT 20 000 million to irrigation and drainage projects in Sicily. Interest subsidies of 3% were granted on LIT 246 000 million of the total amount under arrangements agreed when Italy joined the European Monetary System.¹

Energy. LIT 123 000 million was granted for the construction of gaslines: LIT 100 000 million towards construction of a 285-km section of the Algeria-Italy gasline between Calabria and Campania and of a compression station at Messina in Sicily. The EIB has already lent LIT 300 000 million (including LIT 50 000 million from NCI resources)² towards construction of other stretches of the gasline in Sicily, Calabria and Tunisia, LIT 12 000 million for 90 km of pipeline between Chieti and San Salvo (Abruzzi) to pipe gas from the fields in the Adriatic and, more recently, the gas imported from Algeria and LIT 11 000 million for a 40-km stretch of gasline between Ripalta (Lombardy) and Cortemaggiore (Emilia-Romagna) and a compression station at Ripalta. This stretch will connect the gaslines from The Netherlands, Algeria and the USSR to intermediate storage sites in the Cortemaggiore area. Another sum of LIT 17 000 million was allocated for the first stage of work to allow natural gas (chiefly from Algeria) to be used in the Rome distribution network instead of gas manufactured from oil products. Lastly, the EIB lent LIT 95 000 million for electrical power lines—LIT 55 000 million for more than 1 000 km of high-tension lines to improve links between the country's central and southern networks, where production is not sufficient to meet demand, and LIT 40 000 million for 400 km of line in Sicily and Calabria, including a submarine cable across the strait of Messina.

All these investments are directly concerned with attempts to diversify or reduce the Community's dependence on imported energy. Most of them are also helping regional development.

Industry and agriculture. The Bank granted LIT 48 000 million (LIT 40 000 million to the Istituto Mobiliare Italiano and LIT 8 000 million to the Banco di Sicilia — Sezione di Credito Industriale) in the form of global loans for small- and medium-scale industrial investment projects in the Mezzogiorno, selected by agreement with the EIB. Another LIT 20 000 million will go to help finance the installation of an irrigation and drainage network covering more than 1 200 hectares in the Gela plain in Sicily.

Transport. A total of USD 35 million (some LIT 37 000 million) is to be used to purchase eight A 300 airbuses which will help build up Alitalia's fleet and will operate on intra-Community routes and to the Middle East. The Bank has already lent USD 105 million for this purpose. Another LIT 8 000 million was granted for a ring road around Palermo, for which the EIB has already provided LIT 7 800 million. This scheme should improve communications with the industrial suburbs.

United Kingdom

2.3.40. In the United Kingdom UKL 20 million was granted to help finance construction of a motorway through Glasgow and improvements to water supply, sewerage and sewage disposal systems in Glasgow and the southern part of the Strathclyde region. These projects—for which the EIB has already lent UKL 32 million—will improve the conditions for development in an area of Scotland which has been hit by the decline of industries such as steel, shipbuilding and heavy engineering.

France

2.3.41. In France FF 147 million was granted for motorway and port infrastructure projects: two loans for the Poitiers-Bordeaux section of the A10 Aquitaine motorway between Poitiers and St-André-de-Cubzac (78 km). This amount includes FF 72 million from the resources of the New Community Instrument for borrowing and lending (NCI or 'Ortoli facility') and FF 60 million from the resources of the EIB. Another FF 15 million was lent to modernize the commercial port of La Rochelle-Pallice in Charente-Maritime. This aid has helped regional development, since Aquitaine and Poitou-Charentes have a higher level of unemployment than the national average.

Ireland

2.3.42. In Ireland IRL 16.8 million was granted for the development of the national telecommunications network (IRL 7.8 million), to finance water supply and sewerage schemes in Counties Cork and Kerry (IRL 6 million) and to finance schemes to drain some 58 000 hectares of land in Counties Meath, Limerick and Mayo (IRL 3 million). These three loans were granted as regional development aid and carry interest subsidies of 3% under arrangements agreed when Ireland joined the European Monetary System.

Denmark

2.3.43. Lastly, the EIB lent DKR 67 million to help connect a district heating system in Denmark in Herning and Ikast in West Jutland to a new coal-fired CHP plant, which is to replace two smaller oil-fired plants. Another global loan of DKR 25 million will assist small- and medium-scale industrial ventures in the less prosperous regions of Denmark.

Outside the Community

ACP States

2.3.44. The EIB granted the equivalent of 10 million ECU under the second Lomé Convention towards the modernization of the Edea-Eseka section of the Trans-Cameroon railway in the United Republic of Cameroon. This rail link is of prime importance for the country's economy, and the Community has already provided almost 65 million ECU under the first and second Yaoundé Conventions and the first Lomé Convention to help modernize it and adapt it to today's traffic requirements.

2.3.45. The Bank lent 700 000 ECU towards construction of two small palm-oil mills at Bruto in Liberia (250 km south-east of the capital, Monrovia), and towards associated foreign technical assistance during the running-in period. The funds are made available from risk capital resources provided for under the second Lomé Convention and managed by the Bank.

Financing Community activities

Budgets

General budget

Preliminary draft amending budget for 1981

2.3.46. On 25 May the Commission adopted a preliminary draft amending budget for 1981. Its main purpose is to reallocate some surplus appropriations from the EAGGF Guarantee Section to other policies, where extra needs which cannot be met from existing budget resources have arisen.

By adopting this amending budget at the same time as the preliminary draft budget for 1982,¹ the Commission has demonstrated its concern to observe the Financial Regulation's principle that the budget should be an annual budget: the resources released will cover expenditure in the current financial year, which would otherwise have had to be charged to the 1982 budget.

The net result of the Council decisions on agricultural prices, savings achieved by the Commission in its management of agricultural markets (already notified to the budgetary authority) and the favourable situation on world markets is a reduction in expenditure of some 500 million ECU compared with the appropriations originally entered in the budget.

The amending budget will therefore have the following main components:

- (i) a reduction of 520 million ECU in EAGGF Guarantee Section appropriations;
- (ii) increases in appropriations elsewhere, as follows:

	Appropriations for payment (million ECU)
European Regional Development Fund	250
Food aid	127
Aid to non-associated developing countries	60
EAGGF Guidance Section	55

Increased world prices have made the appropriations for financing food aid programmes inadequate. The increase, however, is offset by a corresponding reduction in food aid refunds.

The amending budget reduces expenditure for 1981 by 28 040 000 ECU in appropriations for payment and 337 130 000 ECU in appropriations for commitment, and enters the balance from 1980, 82.5 million ECU, as supplementary revenue for the present financial year. As a result, the VAT rate required has fallen from 0.89% to 0.88%.

1982 preliminary draft budget

2.3.47. At the same time as it adopted amending budget No 1/1981 on 25 May, the Commission also adopted the general budget of the European Communities for 1982, the introduction to which is discussed elsewhere.¹ Comparisons of appropriations between 1981 and 1982 are now based on the 1981 budget as it will be amended. As pointed out above,² the amended budget reflects a reduction in total appropriations for 1981 and the allocation of EAGGF Guarantee Section appropriations to other areas, mainly regional policy and development aid, where extra requirements have arisen.

2.3.48. The 1982 preliminary draft budget comprises 23 919.1 million ECU in appropriations for commitment and 22 373 million ECU in appropriations for payment. These figures represent a moderate increase of, respectively, 15.08% and 15.92% over the amended 1981 budget.

The reduction in expenditure on agricultural market support has reduced the share of this sector in the total budget by 1.17% in appropriations for commitment (58.24%) and by 1.74% in appropriations for payment (62.25%). This has released substantial extra appropriations to finance structural policies—some 26% in appropriations for commitment for the Regional Fund and some 40% in the case of the Social Fund. The 12.2% increase over 1981 in EAGGF Guarantee Section appropriations means that the annual average rate of growth since 1979 has been 10.2%, compared with an annual average of 2.3% for the previous five years. The Commission's proposed figures therefore represent a considerable increase in non-compulsory expenditure, the area on which Parliament has the last say, where appropriations for commitment have risen by 22.6% and appropriations for payment by 27.0% while the corresponding figures for compulsory expenditure are 12.8% and 13.4%. By comparison, the maximum rate of increase in non-compulsory expenditure calculated by the Commission in accordance with the Treaty is 14.5% for 1982.³

2.3.49. With maximum revenue estimated at 22 988 million ECU, the VAT rate required is 0.95%, which leaves an available margin of some 600 million ECU.

Expenditure

2.3.50. Like its two predecessors, the Commission's proposed budget for 1982 aims at restructuring to achieve a better balance between policies. These proposals do not, however, reflect the positions which the Commission will adopt in carrying out the May mandate, and it will introduce a letter of amendment to give effect to these in budget terms.

¹ Points 1.2.1 to 1.2.8.

² Point 2.3.46.

³ Bull. EC 4-1981, point 2.3.58.

EAGGF Guarantee Section

2.3.51. Estimates of expenditure under the EAGGF Guarantee Section show a moderate increase of 12.21% over the 1981 figure. This is after account has been taken of the reduction in appropriations for 1981 made by amending budget No 1/1981 following the reduction in expenditure and remains close to the annual average for the last three years of 10.2%.

Structural funds

2.3.52. As in previous years, the Commission has given priority to increasing the resources of the structural funds.

In the case of the European Regional Development Fund, the Commission has proposed an increase in appropriations for commitment of 26% compared with 1981 (1 940 million ECU compared with 1 540 million ECU). Commitments for payment are 1 120 million ECU, an increase of 29%.

The Commission considers that the worsening employment situation in the Community justifies increases of 40% in Social Fund appropriations for commitment (1 350 million ECU) and 55% in appropriations for payment (960 million ECU).

The appropriations proposed for the EAGGF Guidance Section reflect the quickening pace of investment in most of the Member States. They amount to 770 million ECU for commitment and 760 million ECU for payment (an increase of 45%).

Other policies

2.3.53. The appropriations for sectoral policies are still modest (2.60% of appropriations for commitment and 2.04% of appropriations for payment) compared with those available to agricultural and structural policies. Total appropriations for commitment for research and development, energy, innovation and transport amount to some 621 million ECU (a 50.4% increase on 1981) and those for payment to 456 million ECU (a 45.2% increase). This increase is particularly large in the case of new information technologies, industrial innovation and research. In the case of energy policy, the Commission is proposing a substantial increase for oil and gas and for uranium prospecting.

The Commission's main aim in development cooperation and food aid has been to strengthen and diversify the food aid programme. A particular effort has also been made to increase financial and technical cooperation with the non-associated developing countries. After two years at much the same level, appropriations for commitment have been increased from 158 million ECU in 1981 to 210 million ECU. Overall, proposed appropriations for commitment have increased by 11.55% and those for payment by 12.09%.

Measures in favour of the United Kingdom

2.3.54. The cost of the measures adopted by the Council on 30 May 1980 concerning the United Kingdom contribution to the budget is estimated at 1 658 million ECU, producing a net payment to the United Kingdom of 1 288 million ECU. This includes the advance of 150 million ECU (a net payment of 122 million ECU) which the Commission proposed should be made to the United Kingdom.

Resources

2.3.55. To turn to the financing of the 1982 budget, forecasts of own resources (customs duties, agricultural and sugar levies, and the VAT base) show a rise of about 11.68% on 1981. Since expenditure has risen by 15.92%, the amount to be financed from VAT own resources has increased by almost 22%. Forecasts of the total of the VAT base indicate that the VAT rate will rise from 0.88% to 0.95%, leaving a margin of some 615 million ECU available within the 1% VAT limit. Tables 5, 6 and 7 give the estimates of revenue and expenditure contained in preliminary draft amending budget No 1/1981 and the preliminary draft budget for 1982.

4. Common fisheries policy: publication of resolution adopted by Council in 1976

3.4.1. Four and a half years after formally adopting it at the beginning of November 1976¹—following an agreement on 30 October 1976 by the Ministers of Foreign Affairs meeting in The Hague¹—the Council has now published in the Official Journal the resolution reproduced below.²

COUNCIL RESOLUTION of 3 November 1976

on certain external aspects of the creation of a 200-mile fishing zone in the Community with effect from 1 January 1977

With reference to its Declaration of 27 July 1976 on the creation of a 200-mile fishing zone in the Community, the Council considers that the present circumstances, and particularly the unilateral steps taken or about to be taken by certain third countries, warrant immediate action by the Community to protect its legitimate interests in the maritime regions most threatened by the consequences of these steps to extend fishing zones, and that the measures to be adopted to this end should be based on the guidelines which are emerging within the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea.

It agrees that, as from 1 January 1977, Member States shall, by means of concerted action, extend the limits of their fishing zones to 200 miles off their North Sea and North Atlantic coasts, without prejudice to similar action being taken for the other fishing zones within their jurisdiction such as the Mediterranean.

It also agrees that, as from the same date, the exploitation of fishery resources in these zones by fishing vessels of third countries shall be governed by agreements between the Community and the third countries concerned.

² OJ C 105, 7.5.1981.

It agrees, furthermore, on the need to ensure, by means of any appropriate Community agreements, that Community fishermen obtain fishing rights in the waters of third countries and that the existing rights are retained.

To this end, irrespective of the common action to be taken in the appropriate international bodies, it instructs the Commission to start negotiations forthwith with the third countries concerned in accordance with the Council's directives. These negotiations will be conducted with a view to concluding, in an initial phase, outline agreements regarding the general conditions to be applied in future for access to resources, both those situated in the fishing zones of these third countries and those in the fishing zones of the Member States of the Community.

5. International Monetary Fund: the meetings in Libreville

3.5.1. On 20 and 21 May a number of meetings were held in Libreville, Gabon, within the framework of the International Monetary Fund (IMF). The meetings, at which the Commission was represented by Mr Ortoli, were chaired by Mr MacEachen, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance of Canada. The outcome and conclusions were outlined in press communiqués from which the essential extracts on the meeting of the Interim Committee and that of the Group of Ten are given below.

rial countries have been bringing their monetary aggregates under better control. The increase in wages has been more restrained than after 1973-74. The Committee considered that, although these positive factors are significant from the standpoint of contributing to a balanced assessment, the current picture of the world economy does not afford cause for complacency in view of the problem areas mentioned above.

The Committee reaffirmed its conviction that the fight against inflation must continue to receive the highest priority. A reduction of inflation and inflationary expectations was considered a necessary condition for lower interest rates, more buoyant private investment and sustained achievement of faster economic growth. At the same time, it expressed concern with current and prospective rates of increase in real output, and with the associated levels of unemployment and unutilized productive capacity. The Committee urged that monetary and fiscal policies aimed at restraint on expansion of nominal demand be supplemented by appropriate supply-side policies designed to improve the climate for investment and economic efficiency. It recognized that increased productivity, moderation in growth of incomes, and a better matching of supplies with the structure of demand could contribute in due course to an easing of inflation and to establishment of a basis for stronger growth with relative price stability.

The Committee was concerned about the magnitude and speed of changes in exchange rates for major currencies during the latter part of 1980 and so far in 1981, attributable to problems of high inflation, large payments imbalances, sharply fluctuating interest rates, and wide yield differentials among the principal financial markets. The Committee considered that quantitative targets

Meeting of the Interim Committee of the IMF Board of Governors on the International Monetary System (21 May)

3.5.2. The Committee discussed the world economic outlook and the policies appropriate in the difficult current situation facing most countries. The Committee's attention was focused on several broad problem areas: worldwide inflation, growing unemployment, slow growth of output and world trade, high level and volatility of interest rates and associated movements in exchange rates in the major industrial countries, and the financing of large external payments imbalances, particularly among non-oil developing countries.

The global picture does, however, contain certain encouraging aspects. Private markets have so far functioned well in the recycling process. Adjustment to the second increase in energy prices has been managed better than was the adjustment to the first increase, and a break in the previous close link between economic growth and oil consumption has begun to emerge. The major industfor the growth of the money supply are an essential element of anti-inflation policies in major economies, and must not be abandoned. At the same time, the need for an appropriate mix of fiscal and monetary and other policies was emphasized. Restraint in government expenditures and containment of budgetary deficits would alleviate pressures in financial markets and lessen the burden placed on monetary policy.

The Committee was disturbed about the large external deficits on current account that remain in prospect for the next few years in many of the non-oil developing countries, and noted that appropriate adjustment policies must be pursued in order to bring these deficits to a level that can be financed on a sustainable basis. At the same time, the Committee emphasized the need for an enlarged flow of aid and concessional loans to developing countries, especially to low-income ones, financed by all countries in a position to do so, particularly in view of the increase in external debt and in the cost of servicing it.

Another concern of the Committee was the increasing domestic pressure for protectionism. Constant vigilance against protectionism was considered essential. Maintenance of an open trade and payments system among all countries, the Committee stressed, was important for the prosperity of developed and developing countries alike. Non-discriminatory access to financial markets is also essential and should be maintained.

3.5.3. The Committee noted with satisfaction the important developments since its meeting last September that had placed the Fund in a better position to provide financial assistance to its members for the purpose of facilitating the adjustment process...

3.5.4. The members of the Committee noted that, following these developments, it was now possible for member countries encountering balance-of-payments difficulties to obtain substantially larger amounts of assistance from the Fund than in previous years. More specifically, member countries making strong efforts to correct their balance-of-payments problems can draw from the Fund up to 450% of their increased quotas over a three-year period, not counting any amounts that could be obtained under the Fund's low-conditionality facilities, such as the compensatory and buffer-stock financing facilities. In this connection, attention was drawn to the fact that the Fund has now an increased number of financial arrangements with member countries in effect, committing a substantial amount of its resources, and that a higher proportion of its commitments is being provided to support strong adjustment policies.

The Committee endorsed this major emphasis being placed on effective adjustment policies in connection with enlarged access to Fund resources.

3.5.5. The Committee noted the steps that the Fund had taken, or was in the process of taking, in order to be able to finance the enlarged access of member countries to its resources in current circumstances. The Committee took this opportunity to express its warm appreciation to the Saudi Arabian authorities for the major contribution that they had made towards that objective under the borrowing agreement of 7 May 1981 between the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency and the Fund, which made the policy of enlarged access operational. The Committee also welcomed the recent arrangements with the monetary authorities of 13 industrial countries that will enable the Fund to obtain shorter-term financing either directly or through the Bank for International Settlements. The Committee endorsed the efforts currently under way to obtain for the Fund additional medium-term loans from several other member countries whose balance of payments is strong, as well as shorter-term financing from the monetary authorities of other members...

3.5.6. While recognizing the need of the Fund to resort to borrowing in current circumstances, the Committee reiterated its view that the Fund should continue to place reliance on subscriptions under members' quotas as the basic source of financing of its operations.

3.5.7. The Committee welcomed the recent adoption by the Executive Board of a decision enabling the Fund to extend balance-of-payments assistance to member countries that are experiencing temporary increases in the costs of their cereal imports, either because of a crop failure or an increase in the world prices of such food items. The new decision integrates assistance in respect of increases in the costs of cereal imports with the assistance that is available in respect of export shortfalls under the Fund's compensatory financing facility. Under this integrated policy, an eligible member would be able to draw up to 100% of its quota to compensate for increases in costs of cereal imports and up to the same quota limit to compensate for shortfalls in export receipts, subject to an overall limit of 125% of its quota for all such drawings. The members of the Committee noted that the assistance under the new decision would be of particular benefit to low-income countries, and expressed their appreciation for the efforts of the Managing Director and the Executive Directors for having devised this new policy.

3.5.8. The Committee welcomed the establishment of a subsidy account designed to reduce the cost to low-income member countries of the use of the Fund's resources under the supplementary financing facility and the arrangements made by the Executive Board for the transfer to that account, in due time, of a part of the proceeds from repayments from Trust Fund loans. It was pleased to note that subsidy payments were expected to begin soon. It endorsed the efforts of the Managing Director to obtain for the account voluntary contributions from countries that are in a position to make such contributions. The Committee expressed its appreciation to those countries that had made or had pledged to make a contribution. The Committee also expressed its appreciation to the host country for the announcement during the Committee's meeting of its contribution to the account. At the same time, it reiterated its appeal to other countries to contribute.

3.5.9. The Committee noted that a number of important actions had been taken by the Fund since last September's meeting that enhanced the attractiveness of the SDR as an international reserve asset and promoted its use as a unit of account in private financial transactions. Included among these actions were the simplification of the SDR, the abrogation of the reconstitution requirement, and the increase in the interest rate to 100% of the relevant interest rates.

3.5.10. The members of the Committee considered the question of allocations of SDRs in the next, i.e., the fourth, basic period which is scheduled to begin on 1 January 1982. The members of the Committee discussed this matter on the basis of the provisions of the Fund's Articles of Agreement and in the light of the various relevant factors, including the importance of strengthening the role of the SDR as a reserve asset, and the need to avoid an undue increase in international liquidity. Many members supported the continuation of allocations in the fourth basic period and expressed the view that every effort should be made to achieve a consensus on this matter. Some other members considered that no case had been established in accordance with the principles laid down in the Articles of Agreement for an allocation in the near future.

3.5.11. The Committee noted that the Executive Board had pursued, as requested by the Committee, its study of a possible link between SDR allocations and development financing. The Committee, recognizing that there was still a wide divergence of views regarding the advisability as well as the form of such a link, agreed to request the Executive Board to continue its studies on the matter in the context of the proper role of the SDR in the system.'

Ministerial meeting of the Group of Ten¹

(20 May)

3.5.12. '... Reviewing the world economic situation, the Ministers and Governors noted with concern that the outlook remained clouded by high rates of inflation, the slow growth of output, rising unemployment, and large payments imbalances. At the same time, however, progress had been made in a number of industrial countries in lessening their dependence on oil and in maintaining a satisfactory level of fixed investment as a result of wage moderation. Moreover, some further headway was recorded in the fight against inflation. These encouraging signs were regarded as an indication that the pursuit of anti-inflationary policies was beginning to bear fruit and that these policies should be continued. The Ministers and Governors re-emphasized the need to maintain an open trade and payments system and to resist mounting protectionist pressures.

The Ministers and Governors expressed particular concern about the deterioration in the current-account balance of a large number of developing countries. In this context, they welcomed the recent actions taken by the IMF to supplement its resources in line with its new policy of enlarged access. They agreed that the Fund should rely primarily on resources contributed through quotas and noted that the Executive Board had begun the preparatory work for the eighth review of quotas. They stressed that increased Fund assistance should not alter the monetary role of the Fund and the main characteristics of its lending policies, especially with respect to the promotion of adjustment on terms of appropriate conditionality. This also implies the necessity of maintaining the liquidity position of the Fund.

The Ministers and Governors welcomed the efficiency with which the international financial markets have contributed to the financing of payments deficits and expressed confidence that they will continue to play a major role in the future. They noted, however, the importance of ensuring that the growth of international bank lending should remain consistent with the maintenance of sound banking standards. In the context of discussing recent developments in the field of international liquidity the Ministers and Governors felt that the question of an SDR allocation in the fourth basic period needed to be examined further before a decision could be taken...'.

Publications of the European Communities

5 — 1981

Introductory note

This catalogue includes the newly published monographs and series issued during the period to which it relates by the Institutions of the European Communities, and also their current periodicals.

Arrangement. The catalogue is divided into three parts as follows:

Part I — The classified list provides a subject classification of the titles included under 20 headings (see below). Under each subject-heading monographs and series are listed first, alphabetically by title in mixed language order; there then follows a similar list of periodical titles. Full entries for monographs and series appear only once; otherwise cross-references are given to the full entries, identifying them by the sequence numbers appearing in the left-hand margins. (Those numbers should not be used for ordering purposes.) Periodical titles only appear in the classified list as cross-reference entries, full entries being found in Part II.

Part II — The list of periodicals presents full details of each current Community periodical listed alphabetically in mixed language order.

Part III — The indexes of titles and series, presented in separate sequences for each language, provide alphabetical keys to the monographs and series included in Part I, identifying them by the sequence numbers already described. These indexes cumulate throughout the year.

How to obtain publications. Publications may be priced for sale, gratis, or of limited distribution. Those of the last two classes may be obtained from the issuing Institutions, or, where they are published by the Information Offices of the Commission, from those Offices, whose addresses are given in the lists on pp. 9 and 11. Publications of limited distribution are however generally only for the attention of governments of Member States, Community departments and other authorities concerned.

Orders for priced publications should be directed to the Sales Offices listed on the last page.

All orders should quote the full title, as well as the ISBN or ISSN where such a number precedes the prices in the catalogue.

Abbreviations and conventional signs. The text languages of publications are indicated by the following abbreviations:

DA	Danish	GA	Irish
DE	German	IT	Italian
GR	Greek	NL	Dutch
EN	English	ES	Spanish
FR	French	PT	Portuguese

A string of such symbols separated by diagonal strokes denotes a publication in which different language versions of the same text appear under one cover.

The abbreviation 'multi' indicates a publication with a mixed multilingual text.

Prices, which exclude any value-added tax which may be chargeable, are fixed in various currencies, using the following abbreviations:

BFR	Belgian franc	HFL	Dutch guilder
DKR	Danish crown	IRL	Irish pound
DM	German mark	LIT	Italian lira
DR	Greek drachma	PES	Spanish peseta
ESC	Portuguese escudo	UKL	Pound sterling

Publications des Communautés européennes

5 – 1981

Introduction

Ce catalogue comprend les monographies et séries publiées dans le mois par les institutions des Communautés européennes ainsi que les périodiques de l'année.

Structure. Le catalogue est divisé en trois parties:

Partie I — La liste thématique fournit une classification des titres par sujet en 20 rubriques (voir ci-dessous). Dans chaque rubrique, les monographies et séries sont indiquées d'abord par ordre alphabétique, par titre, toutes langues confondues. Les périodiques sont ensuite répertoriés de la même façon. Une notice descriptive complète n'est donnée qu'une fois par titre et par langue; partout ailleurs, il est fait référence à cette notice, grâce au numéro séquentiel imprimé dans la marge de gauche (ce numéro ne doit pas être utilisé pour commander des ouvrages). Dans la liste thématique, les références aux périodiques renvoient à la partie II.

Partie II — La liste des périodiques donne une notice descriptive complète pour chaque périodique en cours, par ordre alphabétique, toutes langues confondues.

Partie III — Les index des titres et des séries sont divisés par langue. Classés par ordre alphabétique, ils renvoient par le numéro séquentiel déjà mentionné aux notices de la partie I. Ces index sont cumulés tout au long de l'année.

Pour obtenir une publication. Une publication peut être vendue, gratuite ou de diffusion restreinte. Dans les deux derniers cas, elle sera obtenue auprès des institutions éditrices ou, si la publication dépend d'un Bureau de presse de la Commission, auprès de ce Bureau. Les adresses figurent page 9 et 11 respectivement. Cependant, les ouvrages en diffusion restreinte sont en général destinés uniquement aux gouvernements des États membres, aux services des Communautés et aux autres organisations concernées.

Les commandes d'ouvrages en vente doivent être adressées aux Bureaux de vente mentionnés en dernière page.

Toute commande doit indiquer le titre complet aussi bien que l'ISBN ou l'ISSN au cas où ce numéro est indiqué dans le catalogue.

Abréviations et signes conventionnels. La version linguistique d'un ouvrage est identifiée par les abréviations suivantes:

DA	Danois	GA	gaélique
DE	allemand	IT	italien
GR	grec	NL	néerlandais
EN	anglais	ES	espagnol
FR	français	PT	portugais

Une séquence de tels sigles entre barres de fraction obliques indique que plusieurs traductions du même texte sont rassemblées sous la même couverture.

L'abréviation «multi» signale une publication comportant des textes différents dans diverses langues.

Les prix sont des prix publics au Luxembourg, TVA exclue. Ils sont exprimés dans les monnaies suivantes:

BFR	Franc belge	HFL	Florin néerlandais

Pubblicazioni delle Comunità europee

5 — 1981

Introduzione

Questo catalogo comprende sia i titoli delle monografie e serie pubblicate nel periodo di riferimento dalle istituzioni delle Comunità europee, sia quelli delle pubblicazioni periodiche.

Struttura. Il catalogo è diviso in tre parti:

Parte I — La lista per soggetto classifica i titoli in venti rubriche (vedi sotto). In ogni rubrica sono indicati prima le monografie e serie in ordine alfabetico e senza tener conto della lingua, quindi i titoli delle pubblicazioni periodiche secondo lo stesso ordine. Nelle venti rubriche, la nota esplicativa del contenuto delle monografie e serie è indicata una sola volta per titolo e per lingua. Nel caso in cui la pubblicazione appaia in diverse rubriche, il numero di riferimento alla nota esplicativa è indicato a sinistra sul margine della lista (tale numero di riferimento non deve apparire negli ordini di acquisto). Nella lista per soggetto i periodici hanno solo i numeri di riferimento che permettono di trovare nella parte II la nota esplicativa del contenuto.

Parte II — La lista delle pubblicazioni periodiche, è redatta in ordine alfabetico; essa contiene per ogni titolo una nota esplicativa del contenuto.

Parte III — Gli indici dei titoli e delle serie delle monografie e serie sono divisi per lingua.

Tali elenchi in ordine alfabetico permettono di riferirsi alla parte I a mezzo dei numeri di riferimento già citati. Questi indici compendiano tutti i titoli e le serie pubblicati durante l'anno.

Come ottenere una pubblicazione. Le pubblicazioni con l'indicazione del prezzo sono in vendita. Le altre possono essere gratuite o di diffusione limitata e possono essere richieste alle istituzioni che le pubblicano o, ove si tratti di pubblicazioni degli Uffici stampa e informazione della Commissione, a questi uffici. Le liste degli indirizzi di tali uffici si trovano a pag. 9 e 11. Le pubblicazioni di diffusione limitata sono generalmente destinate solo ai governi degli Stati membri, ai servizi delle Comunità europee e alle altre autorità interessate.

Gli ordini delle pubblicazioni con l'indicazione del prezzo devono essere inviati agli uffici di vendita, il cui elenco si trova nell'ultima pagina.

Tutti gli ordini devono indicare il titolo completo e, se è indicato in catalogo, anche il riferimento ISBN o quello ISSN, che precede il prezzo.

Abbreviazioni e segni convenzionali. Le lingue del testo delle pubblicazioni sono indicate dalle seguenti abbreviazioni:

DA	danese	GA	gaelico
DE	tedesco	IT	italiano
GR	greco	NL	olandese
EN	inglese	ES	spagnolo
FR	francese	PT	portoghese

La presenza di vari simboli fra barre di frazione obliqua indica che lo stesso volume include lo stesso testo tradotto in varie lingue. L'abbreviazione «multi» contraddistingue una pubblicazione comprendente contenuti diversi in diverse lingue.

I prezzi sono al netto di IVA e sono espressi nelle seguenti monete:

BFR	franco belga	HFL	fiorino olandese
DKR	corona danese	IRL	sterlina irlandese
DM	marco tedesco	LIT	lira italiana
DR	dracma	PES	peseta
ESC	escudo	UKL	fiorino olandese

Publikaties van de Europese Gemeenschappen

5 — 1981

Inleiding

Deze catalogus bevat de monografieën en series welke door de instellingen van de Europese Gemeenschappen gedurende de periode waarop zij betrekking hebben worden uitgegeven, alsmede periodieke publikaties.

De catalogus is in drie afzonderlijke delen verdeeld:

Deel I — De indelingslijst geeft een classificatie naar onderwerp der titels, samengevat onder twintig hoofdtitels (zie onder). Onder iedere onderwerp-titel zijn allereerst de monografieën en series — in alfabetische volgorde naar taal — opgenomen, gevolgd door een overeenkomstige lijst van periodieke publikaties. De volledige titels van monografieën en series worden slechts éénmaal vermeld, voor het overige wordt door trefwoorden verwezen naar de volledige titels, welke door middel van in de linker marge afgedrukte, opeenvolgende nummers zijn terug te vinden. Bij bestellingen kan niet naar deze nummers worden verwezen. De classificatielijst vermeldt alleen titelverwijzingen van tijdschriften, de volledige titels zijn opgenomen in deel II.

Deel II — De lijst van tijdschriften geeft een volledig overzicht van alle periodieke publikaties van de Gemeenschappen en wel in alfabetische volgorde.

Deel III — Het alfabetische register van titels en series, eveneens samengevat in afzonderlijke volgorde naar taal, geeft alfabetisch trefwoorden van de monografieën en series in deel I, welke zijn terug te vinden aan de hand van de reeds vermelde, opeenvolgende nummers. Deze registers worden in de loop van het jaar bijgehouden.

Hoe kunnen de publikaties worden verkregen? De publikaties zijn ofwel in de verkoop, ofwel gratis verkrijgbaar, of worden slechts beperkt verspreid. De beide laatste categorieën kunnen bij de publicerende instelling worden verkregen, of, indien uitgegeven door de informatiediensten van de Commissie, bij de betreffende dienst, waarvan de adressen zijn vermeld in de lijst op bladzijden 9 en 11. Publikaties die slechts beperkt worden verspreid zijn gewoonlijk voorbehouden aan de regeringen van de Lid-Staten, diensten van de Gemeenschap of instellingen waarop zij betrekking hebben.

Bestellingen voor publikaties welke ter verkoop worden aangeboden, dienen te worden gericht aan de verkoopkantoren, opgenomen in de lijst op de laatste bladzijde.

Alle bestellingen dienen de volledige titel te vermelden en tevens het ISBN- of ISSN-nummer indien dit vóór de prijzen in de catalogus is aangegeven.

Afkortingen en conventionele tekens. De talen waarin de publikaties zijn gepubliceerd worden door de volgende afkortingen aangeduid:

DA	Deens	GA	Iers
DE	Duits	IT	Italiaans
GR	Grieks	NL	Nederlands
EN	Engels	ES	Spaans
FR	Frans	PT	Portugees

Een opeenvolging van deze afkortingen, gescheiden door diagonale lijnen, heeft betrekking op een publikatie waarin verschillende talen welke hetzelfde onderwerp behandelen, in één omslag zijn samengevat.

De afkorting „multi” verwijst naar een publikatie welke in meerdere talen is afgedrukt.

De prijzen zijn, zonder BTW, in de verschillende valuta, volgens onderstaande afkortingen, aangegeven:

BFR	Belgische frank	HFL	Nederlandse gulden
DKR	Deense kroon	IRL	Iers pond
DM	Duitse mark	LIT	Italiaanse lire
DR	Griekse drachme	PES	Spaanse peseta
