R. GLENN BRADLEY ASSUMES DUTIES AS DEPUTY FOR EURATOM AFFAIRS IN THE U.S. MISSION TO THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

US B10
Book

R. Glenn Bradley, an official of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, today assumed his duties as Deputy for Euratom Affairs to Ambassador J. Robert Schaetzel in the U.S. Mission to the European Communities, and also as Senior AEC Representative at Brussels, Belgium.

In his new capacity, Mr. Bradley will serve as principal adviser to Ambassador Schaetzel in the conduct of U.S. relations with Euratom concerning U.S.-Euratom programs on the peaceful uses of atomic energy. He will also advise the U.S. Ambassadors in Belgium, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and The Netherlands on U.S. bilateral cooperative atomic energy programs with those countries. He succeeds Dixon B. Hoyle, who is returning to AEC headquarters.

Mr. Bradley has been the Assistant Director for Supply and Market Development in the AEC's Division of International Affairs since July 1966. He joined the AEC in 1958 as a facilities and equipment specialist in the Division of International Affairs. He was promoted to the position of Chief of the Division's Euratom Affairs branch in April 1962 and served in this capacity until his appointment as an Assistant Director in 1966. Before coming to the AEC, he was employed as a research physicist by the Phillips Petroleum Company, Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

Mr. Bradley, a recipient of an AEC radiological physics fellowship for graduate work in the Physics Department of Vanderbilt University, received his B.S. in Engineering Physics in 1951 from the University of Tulsa. In 1954 he received an M.S. in Industrial Hygiene Engineering from Harvard University.

He is married and has four children.
