BIOGRAPHY

Richard Cawley is currently employed as Principal Administrator in the Telecommunications Directorate of DG XIII of the European Commission, where he is responsible for economic and financial aspects of European telecommunications regulation.

He has a degree in mathematics from Leicester University, UK and a Masters in Economics from Simon Fraser University, Canada. He has held posts at City University Business School and at Commodity Research Unit, London.

He began his career at the European Commission at the end of 1983 and worked in the group that in 1988 produced the "Economics of 1992 Report" which laid the foundation for the "internal market" initiative. He moved to telecommunications policy in 1989 and has worked on a range of policy documents, culminating in being responsible for the production of the second part of the Infrastructure Green Paper, which was published at the beginning of 1995.
