Recommendation for a
COUNCIL DECISION

authorizing the Commission to negotiate fishing agreements with certain third countries in the Carribean region in the waters of which Community fishermen have traditionally fished

(submitted to the Council by the Commission)

COM(82) 891 final

1. The fisheries sector constitutes a fundamental part of the economic balance of the French departements of the Antilles and Guiana. About 15 % of the working population of these departements (nearly 25 % in certain communities of the Antilles) are employed in fisheries, which is one of the main resources of the region, along with agriculture.
2. Fishermen from these departements have been traditionnally fishing in waters that have come under jurisdiction of third countries as a consequence of the evolution of the law of the sea. Fishermen from Martinique catch about 33 % of the total catches of the departement in the waters of neighbouring third countries; fishermen from Guiana follow the stock of shrimps during its seasonal migration, in the waters of Surinam.
3. Until now, the interests of Community fishermen have been safeguarded by means of provisional autonomous regimes granted by the third countries concerned. In the present situation, in which these regimes may be reconsidered, the Commission considers its necessary to negotiate fishing agreements with these countries with a view to guaranteeing the fishing rights of Community fishermen, in particular those of the local populations concerned.
4. In addition, the Commission considers that such agreements will constitute the basis of a global fisheries policy for the West Central Atlantic region.

As far as relations between the Community and third countries are concerned, the Commission finds it necessary to act along the following lines :

- To reduce the number of vessels flying the flag of third countries that do not belong to the region and to increase consequently the number of vessels flying the flag of Member states of the Community, with a view to ensuring the development of the local industry. A first step in this direction has been made by reducing the number of licences granted to third Countries vessels fishing in Guiana.

- to conclude fishing agreement with third countries in the region .

- to develop multilateral cooperation for the conservation and rational exploitation of sea resources in the region. This can be achieved in particular by developing the activities of the West Central Atlantic Fisheries Commission, which is the FAO body competent for that region, in whose works the Community will actively participate.
