ASYLUM-SEEKERS IN EUROPE IN THE FIRST NINE MONTHS OF 1996

This issue provides an overview of the evolution of asylum seeking in Europe during the first nine months of 1996 and a comparison with the situation during the first nine months of 1995. The focus is on changes within and between the reporting countries.

Highlights*

- The total number of asylum applications in the EU member states during the period January-September 1996 was some 164 000. This compares with 192 000 for the same period in 1995, representing a decrease of 28 000 or around 15%. The overall downward trend that began across the EU in 1993 therefore continued in the first nine months of 1996.
- Germany remained the country with the largest number of applications accounting for some 87 000 of all applications registered in the EU. The most significant changes in the third quarter of 1996 were seen in Denmark and Belgium where the highest number of asylum-seekers were registered on a quarterly basis since 1993 and 1994 respectively. Significant decreases continued in the Netherlands, France and Sweden.

This first quarterly bulletin on asylum-seeker statistics for 1997 is a product of the continued collaboration between Eurostat and the Secretariat of the Inter-governmental Consultations on Asylum, Refugee and Migration Policies in Europe, North America and Australia (IGC), initiated with the publication of Statistics in Focus 1996-1 "Asylum-seekers in Europe 1985-95".

* It should be noted that a significant number of Yugoslavs from the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia are under Temporary Protection or other status, and do not always appear in the data on asylum applications. Applicants coming from Bosnia, Croatia and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia can sometimes be erroneously included in the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Asylum applications by quarter, 1992-1996

Decreases in the EU 15 during the first nine months of 1996.

57 000 asylum applications were recorded in the 15 EU Member States in the third quarter of 1996 compared with 58 000 and 49 000 in the first and second quarters respectively. In total, 164 000 asylum applications were recorded in the EU in the first nine months of 1996 and 14 000 applications in Norway and Switzerland (Figure 1).

Data for the 15 EU Member States do not include Greece, Ireland, Luxembourg or Portugal. The numbers for these countries are comparatively low.

Compared with the overall number of asylum applications for the first nine months of 1995, a slight decrease was noted in 1996 (some 28 000 or 15% in the number of asylum applications to the EU Member States). The overall trend that started in 1993 thus continued but would in general seem to have been less pronounced in the first nine months of 1996 than in the whole of 1994 or 1995.

Compared with 1995, the relative position of the three most important receiving countries remains unchanged. Germany was the recipient country of the largest number of asylum claims (53%), followed by the United Kingdom (13%) and the Netherlands (10%). These three countries, Germany, the UK and the Netherlands accounted for more than two thirds of all asylum claims in the EU during the first nine months of 1996.

Most of the EU reporting countries followed the overall downward trend in the first nine months of 1996 while three countries (Belgium, Denmark and Austria) witnessed an increase.

The most significant changes in the third quarter of 1996 were seen in Denmark and Belgium with the highest number of asylum seekers registered on a quarterly basis since 1993 and 1994 respectively. In Denmark especially there has been a reversal of the overall downward trend which began in mid-1993.

The number of asylum applications remained relatively stable in Germany. Although the absolute number is lower than that of the first nine months of 1995, its relative importance is small for Germany itself but has an impact on the total number of asylum applications in the whole of the EU. Significant decreases continued in the Netherlands, France, Sweden and the United Kingdom in the third quarter of 1996, compared with the third quarter of 1995.
