

THE EUROPEAN COUNCIL

LONDON
29-30 JUNE 1977

Documents in the dossier include:

Conclusions

Session of the European Council
Reproduced from The European Council
Dossier of the Group of the European People's Party
Luxembourg 1990

European Council: Cooperation Necessary to Fight Economic Malaise
European Community Background Information No.11/1977
European Community Information Service
Washington DC

European Community: Council Statement on Growth, Inflation and Employment
British Information Services
New York NY

Institutional and political matters: Organization of European Council Meetings
Reproduced from the Bulletin of the European Communities, No. 6/1977

Session of the European Council

London, 29 and 30 June 1977

Conclusions

Statement on growth, inflation and employment

1. The European Council reviewed progress and on-going work on the range of problems which it had identified at its March meeting in Rome, including both action within the Community itself and cooperation at wider international levels.
2. At its March meeting the European Council agreed to seek action on specific labour market problems particularly for young people and women; to encourage high levels of investment in Member States; to halt divergence and promote convergence in their economic performance. The European Council noted the action taken within the Community on all these points.
3. The European Council welcomed the agreement reached on 28 June by the Council (Social Affairs) to improve the effective operation of the European Social Fund. It noted that the Commission would soon be submitting proposals to use the Fund for a scheme directed to the employment problems of women.
4. The European Council attaches particular importance to the problem of structural unemployment among the young. It received a report from the Commission on Community action in the field of the labour market and has called on it to continue its work on the problem. The Council (Social Affairs) was asked to meet in early autumn to consider, in the light of this work and of the results of national measures, what common action might be necessary.
5. The European Council noted with satisfaction the spirit of cooperation between governments, institutions and the social partners which marked the work of the tripartite Conference of 27 June. The Council hopes that the joint study programme, announced at the end of the Conference, may lead to a strengthening of this spirit of cooperation.
6. The European Council noted the responses of the Commission and the Board of Governors of the EIB to the invitation which it made to them on 26 March 1977 to suggest ways in which the Community might increase and intensify its activities to promote convergence, investment and employment in the Community.

7. The European Council invited the Board of Governors of the EIB to implement its proposals.
8. The European Council also invited the Council (Ministers of Finance and Economic Affairs) to examine as early as possible the Commission's communication on investment and borrowing in the Community.
9. The European Council affirmed the necessity for the Member States to arrive at a common energy policy.
10. The European Council reaffirmed the importance of cooperative efforts by industrial countries to seek a sustained expansion of world economic activity, consistent with further reduction of the rate of inflation and thereby to help reduce unemployment. The European Council expressed its determination that the Community and its Member States should play their appropriate part in this worldwide cooperation. In this connection the European Council noted the commitments made by some Heads of Government to the achievement of specified growth targets in 1977 and to the review of policies and progress to this end. It also noted that other governments have expressed their intention of continuing their stabilization policies. The European Council was concerned that adequate international financing should be available to support this expansion of world economic activity, and expressed the hope that the efforts being made to this end in the IMF and elsewhere would be successful.
11. The European Council expressed its concern at the employment situation in certain sectors adversely affected by structural changes in the economy. It invited the Commission to continue studying all factors whether structural or otherwise and to indicate the conclusions which it draws from these studies. The European Council also concerned itself with the effects on the employment situation of the open and liberal commercial policy of the Community to which the Community, as the world's largest importer and exporter, remains strongly attached.

Statement on the Middle East

1. At the present critical stage in the Middle East, the Nine welcome all efforts now being made to bring to an end the tragic conflict there. They emphasize the crucial interest which they see in early and successful negotiations towards a just and lasting peace. They call on all the parties concerned to agree urgently to participate in such negotiations in a constructive and realistic spirit; at this juncture in particular all parties should refrain from statements or policies which could constitute an obstacle to the pursuit of peace.

2. The Nine set out on many occasions in the past, for example, in their statements of 6 November 1973, 28 September 1976 and 7 December 1976, their view that a peace settlement should be based on Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338 and on:
- (i) the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force,
 - (ii) the need for Israel to end the territorial occupation which it has maintained since the conflict of 1967,
 - (iii) respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and independence of every State in the area and their right to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries,
 - (iv) recognition that in the establishment of a just and lasting peace account must be taken of the legitimate rights of the Palestinians.

It remains their firm view that all these aspects must be taken as a whole.

3. The Nine have affirmed their belief that a solution to the conflict in the Middle East will be possible only if the legitimate right of the Palestinian people to give effective expression to its national identity is translated into fact, which would take into account the need for a homeland for the Palestinian people. They consider that the representatives of the parties to the conflict, including the Palestinian people, must participate in the negotiations in an appropriate manner to be worked out in consultation between all the parties concerned. In the context of an overall settlement, Israel must be ready to recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people: equally, the Arab side must be ready to recognize the right of Israel to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries. It is not through the acquisition of territory by force that the security of the States of the region can be assured; but it must be based on commitments to peace exchanged between all the parties concerned with a view to establishing truly peaceful relations.
4. The Nine believe that the peace negotiations must be resumed urgently, with the aim of agreeing to and implementing a comprehensive, just and lasting settlement of the conflict. They remain ready to contribute to the extent the parties wish in finding a settlement and in putting it into effect. They are also ready to consider participating in guarantees in the framework of the United Nations.

Organization of European Council meetings

Prior to the European Council meeting in Rome at the end of March, the Presidency circulated a paper which sought to establish points of agreement which had emerged from the correspondence between Heads of Government about the ways in which the organization of European Council meetings might be improved. In the light of the discussion at that meeting, which was followed up by the Foreign Ministers on 5 April, the following points are understood to represent a generally acceptable framework for the organization of future meetings:

A - Types of discussion

There is general agreement that the European Council should have both:

- (i) informal exchanges of view of a wide-ranging nature held in the greatest privacy and not designed to lead to formal decisions or public statements,
- (ii) discussions which are designed to produce decisions, settle guidelines for future action or lead to the issue of public statements expressing the agreed view of the European Council.

It is also recognized that the European Council will sometimes need to fulfil a third function, namely to settle issues outstanding from discussion at a lower level. In dealing with matters of Community competence the European Council will conform to the appropriate procedures laid down in the Community Treaties and other agreements.

B - Advance preparation of the agenda

For informal exchanges of view, it is generally agreed that little preparation is necessary, although some limited prior clarification of the questions is not to be excluded if it would facilitate discussion. Heads of Government should inform each other or the Presidency, a few days beforehand, of the subjects which they will wish to discuss. There is general agreement that there should be adequate preparation of those discussions which are aimed at taking decisions or issuing statements. Foreign Ministers should have responsibility for such preparation, which could take place in the Council or the political cooperation machinery as appropriate, and will wish to meet at an appropriate time, and if necessary to hold a special meeting before the European Council, for this purpose.

C - The issuing of statements

It is generally agreed that the European Council will wish to make public its decisions on some subjects or sometimes to issue a statement registering a concerted Community opinion on a topic of international concern. Such statements should not, other than in exceptional circumstances, be issued without advance preparation. A list of the subjects on which it is proposed statements should be issued should be drawn up two to three weeks in advance.

D - The recording of conclusions

There should be no record of the informal exchanges of view between Heads of Government. For the discussions aimed at reaching decisions or issuing statements there should be a written record of conclusions, which should be issued on the authority of the Presidency.

E - Attendance of officials

There is general agreement that the exchanges of views should be as intimate as possible and that attendance should be restricted as at present.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY INFORMATION SERVICE

2100 M Street NW, Washington DC 20037 Telephone (202) 872-8350

New York Office: 245 East 47th Street, New York NY 10017 Telephone (212) 371-3890

BACKGROUND NOTE

No. 18/1977

July 1, 1977

EUROPEAN COUNCIL: COOPERATION NECESSARY TO FIGHT ECONOMIC MALAISE

Unemployment and the economic situation in the European Community were the major topics of discussion at the two-day European Council meeting that concluded yesterday. The heads of government of the nine Common Market nations, meeting in London for the concluding session of the British Council presidency, announced no specific action to deal with the continuing economic malaise, but in a joint statement "reaffirmed the importance of cooperative efforts by industrial countries to seek a sustained expansion or world economic activity, consistent with further reduction of the rate of inflation and thereby to help reduce unemployment."

A declaration on the Middle East, issued on Wednesday, the first day of the meeting, aligned the European Community with the policy for that area expressed by the United States. Urging all parties concerned to pursue negotiations promptly "in a constructive and realistic spirit," the declaration asked Israel to pull back within pre-1967 borders, called for "secure and recognized boundaries" for all states in the area, and for the first time called for a Palestinian homeland. The statement added that Palestinian representatives should be included in Mideast peace talks, and the nine nations offered to consider participation in U.N. guarantees for a Mideast settlement.

On other issues, the European Council:

- * agreed to proposals made by the European Investment Bank to increase its capital.
- * failed to agree on a site for Joint European Torus, the 165 million fusion project that Britain wants to locate at Culham near Oxford and Germany wants to put at Garching in Bavaria.

Roy Jenkins, President of the Commission of the European Communities, characterized the summit at a press conference he and British Prime Minister James Callaghan held yesterday at its conclusion as "strong on discussion but not so strong on decisions."

At the beginning of the summit economic discussion, Jenkins presented Commission figures on the Community's gross domestic product, now predicted to reach only 3 per cent; on unemployment, expected to rise to a rate of 5.2 per cent, from 5 per cent in 1976; and on the consumer price increase, which has fallen to 9.5 per cent, from 10 per cent in 1976. A Commission paper said the average rate of inflation in the Community, based on the first four months of 1977, is now 14 per cent on an annual basis.

A positive feature of the Community's economic situation, the summit leaders were told, was the balance of payments situation. The Community as a whole is expected to move into trading balance with the rest of the world by the end of this year, Jenkins said.

A Council statement dealing with unemployment indicated that the Commission will soon be submitting proposals to use the European Social Fund for a scheme directed to the unemployment problems of women and added that the Social Affairs Council would consider what common action would be necessary to combat youth unemployment.

On world economic issues, the Council statement said that the heads of government were concerned that adequate international financing should be available to support the promised expansion of world economic activity, and expressed hope that additional financing opportunities would be available through the International Monetary Fund and elsewhere.

The Council repeated the Community's strong attachment to an open and liberal commercial policy, but noted "concern" at unemployment linked to that policy in certain sectors. The Community has been particularly hard hit by Japanese products in some sectors and is seeking to persuade the Japanese to buy more European products in its markets. At the press conference, Jenkins stressed the importance of reciprocity in maintaining liberal trade.

Jenkins told reporters at the summit conclusion that he was particularly disappointed that the heads of government had not agreed on a JET site. He added, however, that the member governments recognized the importance of reaching a decision by the end of July and that a satisfactory settlement was still possible. Earlier this month EC Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner predicted that unless a decision on a JET site was reached the project would end and the European Community would lose its advantage in fusion research and the potential production of cheap energy.

In his remarks to the press, Jenkins welcomed the Council decision to extend the European Investment Bank activities, but appealed again for an extension of the Commission's borrowing capability to be used in conjunction with the EIB program.

"The bank's capital restriction and the sectoral restrictions inherent in the Euratom and the ECSC operations place severe limits on spending these funds," Jenkins told the Council at its Wednesday meeting. "We now want to use the untapped resources of the international capital markets to give a stronger push behind Community sectoral policies that remain quite weak." Jenkins said borrowed capital would especially aid in energy, industrial reconversion and regional infrastructure, which he said would be without cost to the member state budgets and would incur no new management costs.

"It would give the Commission the means to do the job in the various sectors of the Community economy which I am sure the Council would like us to do," Jenkins told the heads of government. "If you want us to do our part of the job," he said, "you must give us the tools with which to do it."

In the discussion that followed Jenkins' plea, Britain, Denmark and Ireland supported Jenkins' proposal, but France and Germany were not enthusiastic.

The text of the Council's statement on growth, inflation and employment follows:

1. The European Council reviewed progress and ongoing work on the range of problems which it had identified at its March meeting in Rome, including both action within the Community itself and cooperation at wider international levels.
2. At its March meeting the European Council agreed to seek action on specific labor market problems particularly for young people and women, to encourage high levels of investment in member states, and to halt divergence and promote convergence in their economic performance. The European Council notes the action taken within the Community on all these points.
3. The European Council welcomed the agreement reached on 28 June by the Council (social affairs) to improve the effective operation of the European Social Fund. It noted that the Commission would soon be submitting proposals to use the fund for a scheme directed to the employment problems of women.
4. The European Council attaches particular importance to the problem of structural unemployment among the young. It received a report from the Commission on Community action in the field of the labor market and has called on it to continue its work on the problem. The Council (social affairs) was asked to meet in early autumn to consider, in the light of this work and of the results of national measures, what common action might be necessary.
5. The European Council noted with satisfaction the spirit of cooperation between governments, institutions and the social partners which marked the work of the Tripartite Conference of 27 June. The Council hopes that the joint study program, announced at the end of the conference, may lead to a strengthening of this spirit of cooperation.
6. The European Council noted the responses of the Commission and the Board of Governors of the EIB to the invitation which it made to them on 26 March 1977 to suggest ways in which the Community might increase and intensify its activities to promote convergence, investment and employment in the Community.
7. The European Council invited the Board of Governors of the EIB to implement its proposals.
8. The European Council also invited the Council (ministers of finance and economic affairs) to examine as early as possible the Commission's communication on investment and borrowing in the Community.
9. The European Council affirmed the necessity for the member states to arrive at a common energy policy.
10. The European Council reaffirmed the importance of cooperative efforts by industrial countries to seek a sustained expansion of world economic activity, consistent with further reduction of the rate of inflation and thereby to help reduce unemployment. The European Council expressed its determination that the Community and its member states should play their appropriate part in this worldwide cooperation. In this connection the European Council noted the commitments made by some heads of government to the achievement of specified growth targets in 1977 and to the review of policies and progress to this end. It also noted that other governments have expressed their intention of continuing their stabilization policies. The European Council was concerned that adequate international financing should be available to support this expansion of world economic activity, and expressed the hope that the efforts being made to this end in the IMF and elsewhere would be successful.

11. The European Council expressed its concern at the employment situation in certain sectors adversely affected by structural changes in the economy. It invited the Commission to continue studying all factors whether structural or otherwise and to indicate the conclusions which it draws from these studies. The European Council also concerned itself with the effects on the employment situation of the open and liberal commercial policy of the Community to which the Community, as the world's largest importer and exporter, remains strongly attached.

BRITISH INFORMATION SERVICES
UNITED KINGDOM PRESIDENCY OF THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES
JANUARY - JUNE 1977

June 30, 1977

POLICY STATEMENTS

PS(E) 14/77. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY: COUNCIL STATEMENT ON GROWTH, INFLATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Statement by the Council of the European Community in London on June 30, 1977:

At the end of the two-day meeting in London of the Heads of Government of the European Community, the Council issued a statement covering the Community's joint work on economic and social cooperation.

The need to tackle the problems of unemployment, among youth in particular, and of divergence in economic performance between member states were stressed in the statement.

The following is the full text:

"1. The European Council reviewed progress and on-going work on the range of problems which it had identified at its March meeting in Rome, including both action within the Community itself and cooperation at wider international levels.

"2. At its March meeting the European Council agreed to seek action on specific labor market problems particularly for young people and women, to encourage high levels of investment in member states, and to halt divergence and

/promote

845 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10022, Telephone: (212) 752-8400

This material is prepared, edited, issued or circulated by British Information Services, 845 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022, which is registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act as an agent of the British Government. This material is filed with the Department of Justice where the required registration statement is available for public inspection. Registration does not indicate approval of the contents of this material by the United States Government.

promote convergence in their economic performance. The European Council noted the action taken within the Community on all these points.

"3. The European Council welcomed the agreement reached on 28 June by the Council (Social Affairs) to improve the effective operation of the European Social Fund. It noted that the Commission would soon be submitting proposals to use the Fund for a Scheme directed to the employment problems of women.

"4. The European Council attaches particular importance to the problem of structural unemployment among the young. It received a report from the Commission on Community action in the field of the labor market and has called on it to continue its work on the problem. The Council (Social Affairs) was asked to meet in early Autumn to consider, in the light of this work and of the results of national measures, what common action might be necessary.

"5. The European Council noted with satisfaction the spirit of cooperation between Governments, institutions and the social partners which marked the work of the Tripartite Conference of 27 June. The Council hopes that the joint study program, announced at the end of the Conference, may lead to a strengthening of this spirit of cooperation.

"6. The European Council noted the responses of the Commission and the Board of Governors of the Export Import Bank to the invitation which it made to them on 26 March 1977 to suggest ways in which the Community might increase and intensify its activities to promote convergence, investment and employment in the Community.

"7. The European Council invited the Board of Governors of the EIB to implement its proposals.

"8. The European Council also invited the Council (Ministers of Finance and Economic Affairs) to examine as early as possible the Commission's communication on investment and borrowing in the Community.

"9. The European Council affirmed the necessity for the member states to arrive at a common energy policy.

"10. The European Council reaffirmed the importance of cooperative efforts by industrial countries to seek a sustained expansion of world economic activity, consistent with further reduction of the rate of inflation and thereby to help reduce employment. The European Council expressed its determination that the Community and its member states should play their appropriate part in this worldwide cooperation. In this connection the European Council noted the commitments made by some Heads of Government to the achievement of specified growth targets in 1977 and to the review of policies and progress to this end. It also noted that other Governments have expressed their intention of continuing their stabilization policies. The European Council was concerned that adequate international financing should be available to support this expansion of world economic activity, and expressed the hope that the efforts being made to this end in the IMF and elsewhere would be successful.

"11. The European Council expressed its concern at the employment situation in certain sectors adversely affected by structural changes in the economy. It invited the Commission to continue studying all factors whether structural or otherwise and to indicate the conclusions which it draws from these studies. The European Council also concerned itself with the effects on the employment situation of the open and liberal commercial policy of the Community to which the Community, as the world's largest importer and exporter, remains strongly attached."

E N D

EFbw

