Foreword

The bathing water Directive was adopted in 1975 and Member States then had a 10-year period to bring their bathing waters into compliance with it. Despite the improvement which has been achieved during these years, it is unacceptable that today more than 3 000 bathing areas do not respect the minimum monitoring and/or quality requirements of the Directive.

For the first time the report covers the state of bathing water in two new Member States, Sweden and Finland (Austria does not have to implement the Directive until 1997). With the inclusion of these two States, the report now covers more than 18 000 bathing areas throughout the Community. After 20 years of existence of the Directive we should expect that all bathing areas would comply with the bathing water Directive. Although we have observed a relative improvement comparing with the results of the previous year, this situation is particularly unsatisfactory in inland waters where over 1 700 (30%) bathing areas do not respect the minimum requirements.

The message of the report is clear. We cannot afford to be complacent about the state of the Union's bathing waters. Everyone, government, whether at national, regional or local level, associations and individual citizens must increasingly work to ensure that bathing waters throughout the Union comply fully with the Directive's requirements.

Since I became European Commissioner for the Environment, one of my principal aims has been to ensure that individual citizens have access to as much information on the state of the environment as possible and in an understandable form. This is why I am particularly pleased to present a new, simpler and more understandable report which will enable even more people than in the past to benefit from it. I give a high priority to satisfying the basic rights of European citizens to have clean bathing water, as well as full information on bathing water quality that will enable them to have an active role and maximum involvement in the whole process. This transparency should also assist our efforts in making the report as reliable as possible. Therefore this report is published in all 11 Community languages.

1. Introduction

1. Aim of the report

This report, published annually by the Commission before the start of the bathing season, is intended to inform the public on the quality of bathing water in the different Member States of the Community during the previous season, i.e. in this case 1995.

It is based on results supplied to the Commission by the Member States from the monitoring programmes they have carried out.

This document, issued pursuant to Article 13 of Directive 76/160/EEC of 8 December 1975 (see Annex), as amended by Article 3 of Directive 91/692/EEC, analyses the results of the monitoring programmes in the light of the parameters measured and the sampling frequency. The assessment of bathing water quality is made on the basis of 'mandatory' values (I), which have to be complied with, and 'guide' values (G), more stringent standards that Member States are asked to aim for.

2. Warning

Although the Member States are legally bound to comply with Directive 76/160/EEC, it should be mentioned that a considerable effort remains to be made in order to meet all its requirements. Indeed, all too often data are supplied for only a few parameters or privileged beaches, whereas data should be supplied for all parameters envisaged by the Directive and for all identified bathing areas.

However, to allow comparability of the results over the years (as presented in the tables and the corresponding figures) two representative parameters are used, for which the Directive sets out a minimum sampling frequency as well as mandatory and guide values. These parameters are total coliforms and faecal coliforms, which should be sampled fortnightly. It should be mentioned, though, that in the 'Atlas' part of the report five parameters are used (see below).

It should be borne in mind that any comparison of the different results is still open to question as they are subject to differences associated with the number of beaches monitored, the parameters measured, the sampling frequency and the geographical location.

3. Presentation of the report

Although the previous reports were already widely distributed, the Commission wanted this one to be more accessible to and more easily understood by the general public. It was therefore decided to alter its presentation by putting the maps together in the form of an atlas followed by a more concise explanatory report.

The 'Atlas' section shows, for each Member State, the extent to which each bathing area identified complies in respect of the two microbiological parameters mentioned above (total and faecal coliforms) as well as the physico-chemical parameters 8, 9 and 10 of the technical annex to Directive 76/160/EEC, i.e. mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Coloured symbols are used to classify the areas as follows:

Adequately sampled areas:

---

-  blue symbol: the bathing area complies on the basis of the guide values.
The bathing water can be regarded as of good quality.
-  green symbol: the bathing area complies on the basis of the mandatory values.
The bathing water can be regarded as of acceptable quality.
-  red symbol: the bathing area does not comply.
The bathing water can be regarded as of insufficient quality.

Areas with too few samples

---

-  orange symbol: bathing area for which the sampling frequency is too low, no samples have been taken or no data are available.
This would be a beach where the quality of the bathing water has not been sufficiently monitored.

Bathing areas prohibited by the Member State

---

-  black symbol: an area where the competent national authorities have temporarily prohibited bathing.

The explanatory section of the report gives an overall assessment of the quality of bathing water in the Community and describes the specific situation in each Member State for the 1995 bathing season. It also contains tables and figures summarizing the microbiological and physico-chemical parameters back to 1992. For each of these parameters, the number of bathing areas sampled and the number of 'non-complying' areas are detailed. The values in these summary tables are sometimes slightly different from those in previous reports, as the Community database is constantly being updated.

Annexed at the end of the report is a map of Europe summarizing the data of the Atlas for the 1995 bathing season.

4. Public information

Most Member States issue bathing water quality information in the press, on television or even by videotext.

Each citizen is invited to contact the competent national authority in the particular Member State with regard to the identification or monitoring of bathing areas. All the documentation is available from the Commission's office in each Member State.

Any citizen finding that a bathing area he or she frequents falls within the scope of the current Directive but is not listed in the Atlas is requested to inform the competent national authority or the Commission's office (see next page) as well as the Commission department in charge of this report.

2. Summary

Every year, in accordance with Article 13 of Directive 76/160/EEC, as amended by Article 3 of Directive 91/692/EEC, the Member States of the European Union send the Commission a comprehensive report on the most significant characteristics of their bathing water.

As in previous bathing seasons, it is difficult to discern any general trend since the situation varies so widely from one Member State to another. Nevertheless, there is still a difference in quality between sea water and fresh water, as has been observed in the past.

Sea water quality is often good, whereas for many inland sites unsatisfactory levels continue to be reported for 1995.

In the following tables, as for 1994, the compliance rates are calculated on the basis of the total number of sampling points. Bathing areas for which no data have been supplied, as well as those with inadequate sampling frequency, are listed in column NF (%) of the tables. The rates of compliance are consequently influenced by this and they could be improved by considering only the areas with a sufficient sampling frequency.

As the two new Member States Finland and Sweden have taken into account the minimum sampling frequency set by their legislation, which does not fully correspond to all the requirements of the Community Directive, the summary tables for the year 1995 are given with and without these countries.

In accordance with the derogation until 1 January 1997 granted in its act of accession, Austria has not supplied any data.

1. Sea water quality

Of the total of 12 487 bathing areas identified in the 1995 bathing season, 91.4% and 79.6% respectively complied with the mandatory values and the guide values set by the Directive for total coliforms (partial data) and faecal coliforms. The sampling frequency was too low in 3.7% of the areas.

Despite the existence of the Directive and its implementation over a number of years, 8.6 % of the beaches, i.e. more than 1 000 bathing areas, still fail to comply with the minimum requirements. Consequently, Member States are requested to take the necessary steps to comply with the Directive.

2. Fresh water quality

The results concern all Member States with the exception of the United Kingdom, which has not identified any inland bathing areas.

A total of 5 907 fresh water bathing areas have been identified throughout the Community. In the 1995 bathing season, 70.5% and 50.0% of these respectively complied with the mandatory values and guide values set by the Directive for total coliforms (partial data) and faecal coliforms. In 19.6% of the areas the sampling frequency was inadequate.

The Commission would also like to draw the attention of the Member States and of the general public to the fact that almost 30.0% of the inland bathing areas, i.e. over 1 700 sampling points, do not comply with the minimum requirements.

This situation is even more regrettable since fresh water is more vulnerable than sea water. In many cases there is a need for appropriate action to be taken.

Table 1 - Results for sea water

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;
 F : frequency (average number of samples per month);
 C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
 C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
 NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
 NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
 NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Percentages are given for total and faecal coliforms at all the identified sampling points.

3. Atlas

Preamble

The information supplied by the Member States is shown on one or more double pages, according to density.

Left-hand page

Bathing areas are classified by administrative entity and are numbered.

Opposite the name of the bathing area, its identification number and its rate of compliance are given. The latter is assessed on the basis of the first two microbiological parameters (total and faecal coliforms) and certain physico-chemical parameters (mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols).

The colours attributed to the rate of compliance are:

blue : complies on the basis of the guide values<sup>1</sup>

green : complies on the basis of the mandatory values

red : does not comply on the basis of the mandatory values orange : area where the sampling frequency is inadequate

black : area where bathing has been temporarily prohibited

○ : sea water

△ : fresh water

Right-hand page

The maps on the right-hand pages give the same information as that on the left-hand pages with the exception of the names of the bathing areas.

The bathing areas (○ or △) are given by administrative entity in a continuous series. Only the first and last bathing area in each administrative entity is numbered. Bathing areas without numbers are identified by interpolation. The details of each point represented are given on the left-hand page.

The maps and lists of the bathing areas of each Member State are preceded by a general information file. A table of percentages calculated on the basis of the two microbiological parameters (total and faecal coliforms) and the physico-chemical parameters<sup>2</sup> mentioned above has been included.

For fuller technical information the reader is referred to the explanatory section that follows. It should be pointed out that the compliance rates mentioned in this part of the report are assessed, as for the previous bathing season, on the basis of total and faecal coliforms only.

<sup>1</sup> i.e. complies with the mandatory values of the three physico-chemical parameters as well as with the more stringent guide values of the two microbiological parameters.

<sup>2</sup> Except for Finland and Sweden, which are supplying data for the first time.

Belgium

1995 bathing season:

sea water 1 April to 30 September fresh water 15 June to 15 September

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 39
fresh water 87

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 5 days
fresh water 1 sample / 9 days

Main results:

| Belgium - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|----------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water      | 39       | 94.9      | 12.8      | 2.6    | 2.6    | 0      |
| Fresh water    | 87       | 41.4      | 33.3      | 4.6    | 54.0   | 0      |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;
C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Remarks:

Confirmation of the trends already observed during the previous bathing seasons:

- very high percentage of 'non-complying' fresh water areas;
- good sampling frequency for sea water.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci.

Denmark

1995 bathing season:

1 June to 1 October

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 1 188
fresh water 111

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 10 days
fresh water 1 sample / 11 days

Main results:

| Denmark - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|----------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water      | 1 188    | 91.1      | 79.5      | 4.3    | 3.4    | 1.3    |
| Fresh water    | 111      | 82.9      | 71.2      | 9.9    | 5.4    | 1.8    |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;
C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated:

- for sea water: faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols;
- for fresh water: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Tel: (45 32) 66.01.00 - Fax: (45 32) 66.04.79

Remarks:

Comparative stability of overall bathing water quality, as regards both the mandatory values and the guide values.

In sea water, systematic monitoring of faecal coliforms only and not of total coliforms.

Germany

1995 bathing season:

3 to 4 months according to geographical location, generally from 1 June to 15 September.

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 446
fresh water 1 822

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 9 days
fresh water 1 sample / 10 days

Main results:

| Germany - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|----------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water      | 446      | 80.9      | 63.5      | 6.5    | 11.9   | 0.7    |
| Fresh water    | 1 822    | 45.7      | 34.0      | 42.5   | 10.3   | 1.5    |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;
C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Remarks:

Too many fresh water areas insufficiently sampled.

More than 1 000 bathing areas, both sea water and fresh water, do not comply with the minimum requirements of the Directive.

Greece

1995 bathing season:

5 to 6 months according to geographical location, generally from 1 May to 31 October

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 1 526
fresh water 4

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 13 days
fresh water 1 sample / 13 days

Main results:

| Greece - 1995 | Σ     | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|---------------|-------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water     | 1 526 | 97.9      | 95.5      | 0.5    | 1.6    | 0      |
| Fresh water   | 4     | 75.0      | 50.0      | 0      | 25.0   | 0      |

- Σ : total number of sampling points;
C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Canary Islands all year round

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 1 519
fresh water 343 (221 + 122 referred to in remarks below)

Average sampling frequency:

Mainland • sea water 1 sample / 13 days
• fresh water 1 sample / 25 days
Canary Islands • sea water 1 sample / 11 days

Main results:

| Spain - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|--------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water    | 1 519    | 96.5      | 84.6      | 0.7    | 2.8    | 0      |
| Fresh water  | 221      | 67.4      | 31.2      | 1.4    | 31.2   | 0      |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;

C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;

C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;

NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);

NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;

NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Remarks:

The compliance rate for the sea water bathing areas has improved.

No assessment of 122 sampling points, i.e. over 35% of the fresh water bathing areas identified, following a period of drought which affected the country according to the Spanish authorities' statement.

High non-compliance of the fresh water bathing areas.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci.

GOLFO DE VALENCIA

Las Palmas, Santa Cruz de Tenerife

Finland

1995 bathing season:

Beginning of June (sometimes mid-June) to mid-August

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 100
fresh water 378

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 11 days
fresh water 1 sample / 13 days

Main results:

| Finland - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|----------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water      | 100      | 73.0      | 61.0      | 25.0   | 2.0    | 0      |
| Fresh water    | 378      | 83.1      | 75.9      | 16.4   | 0.5    | 0      |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;

C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;

C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;

NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);

NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;

NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Microbiological parameter for which the compliance rate is calculated: faecal coliforms.

Remarks:

First communication of data for assessing bathing water quality.

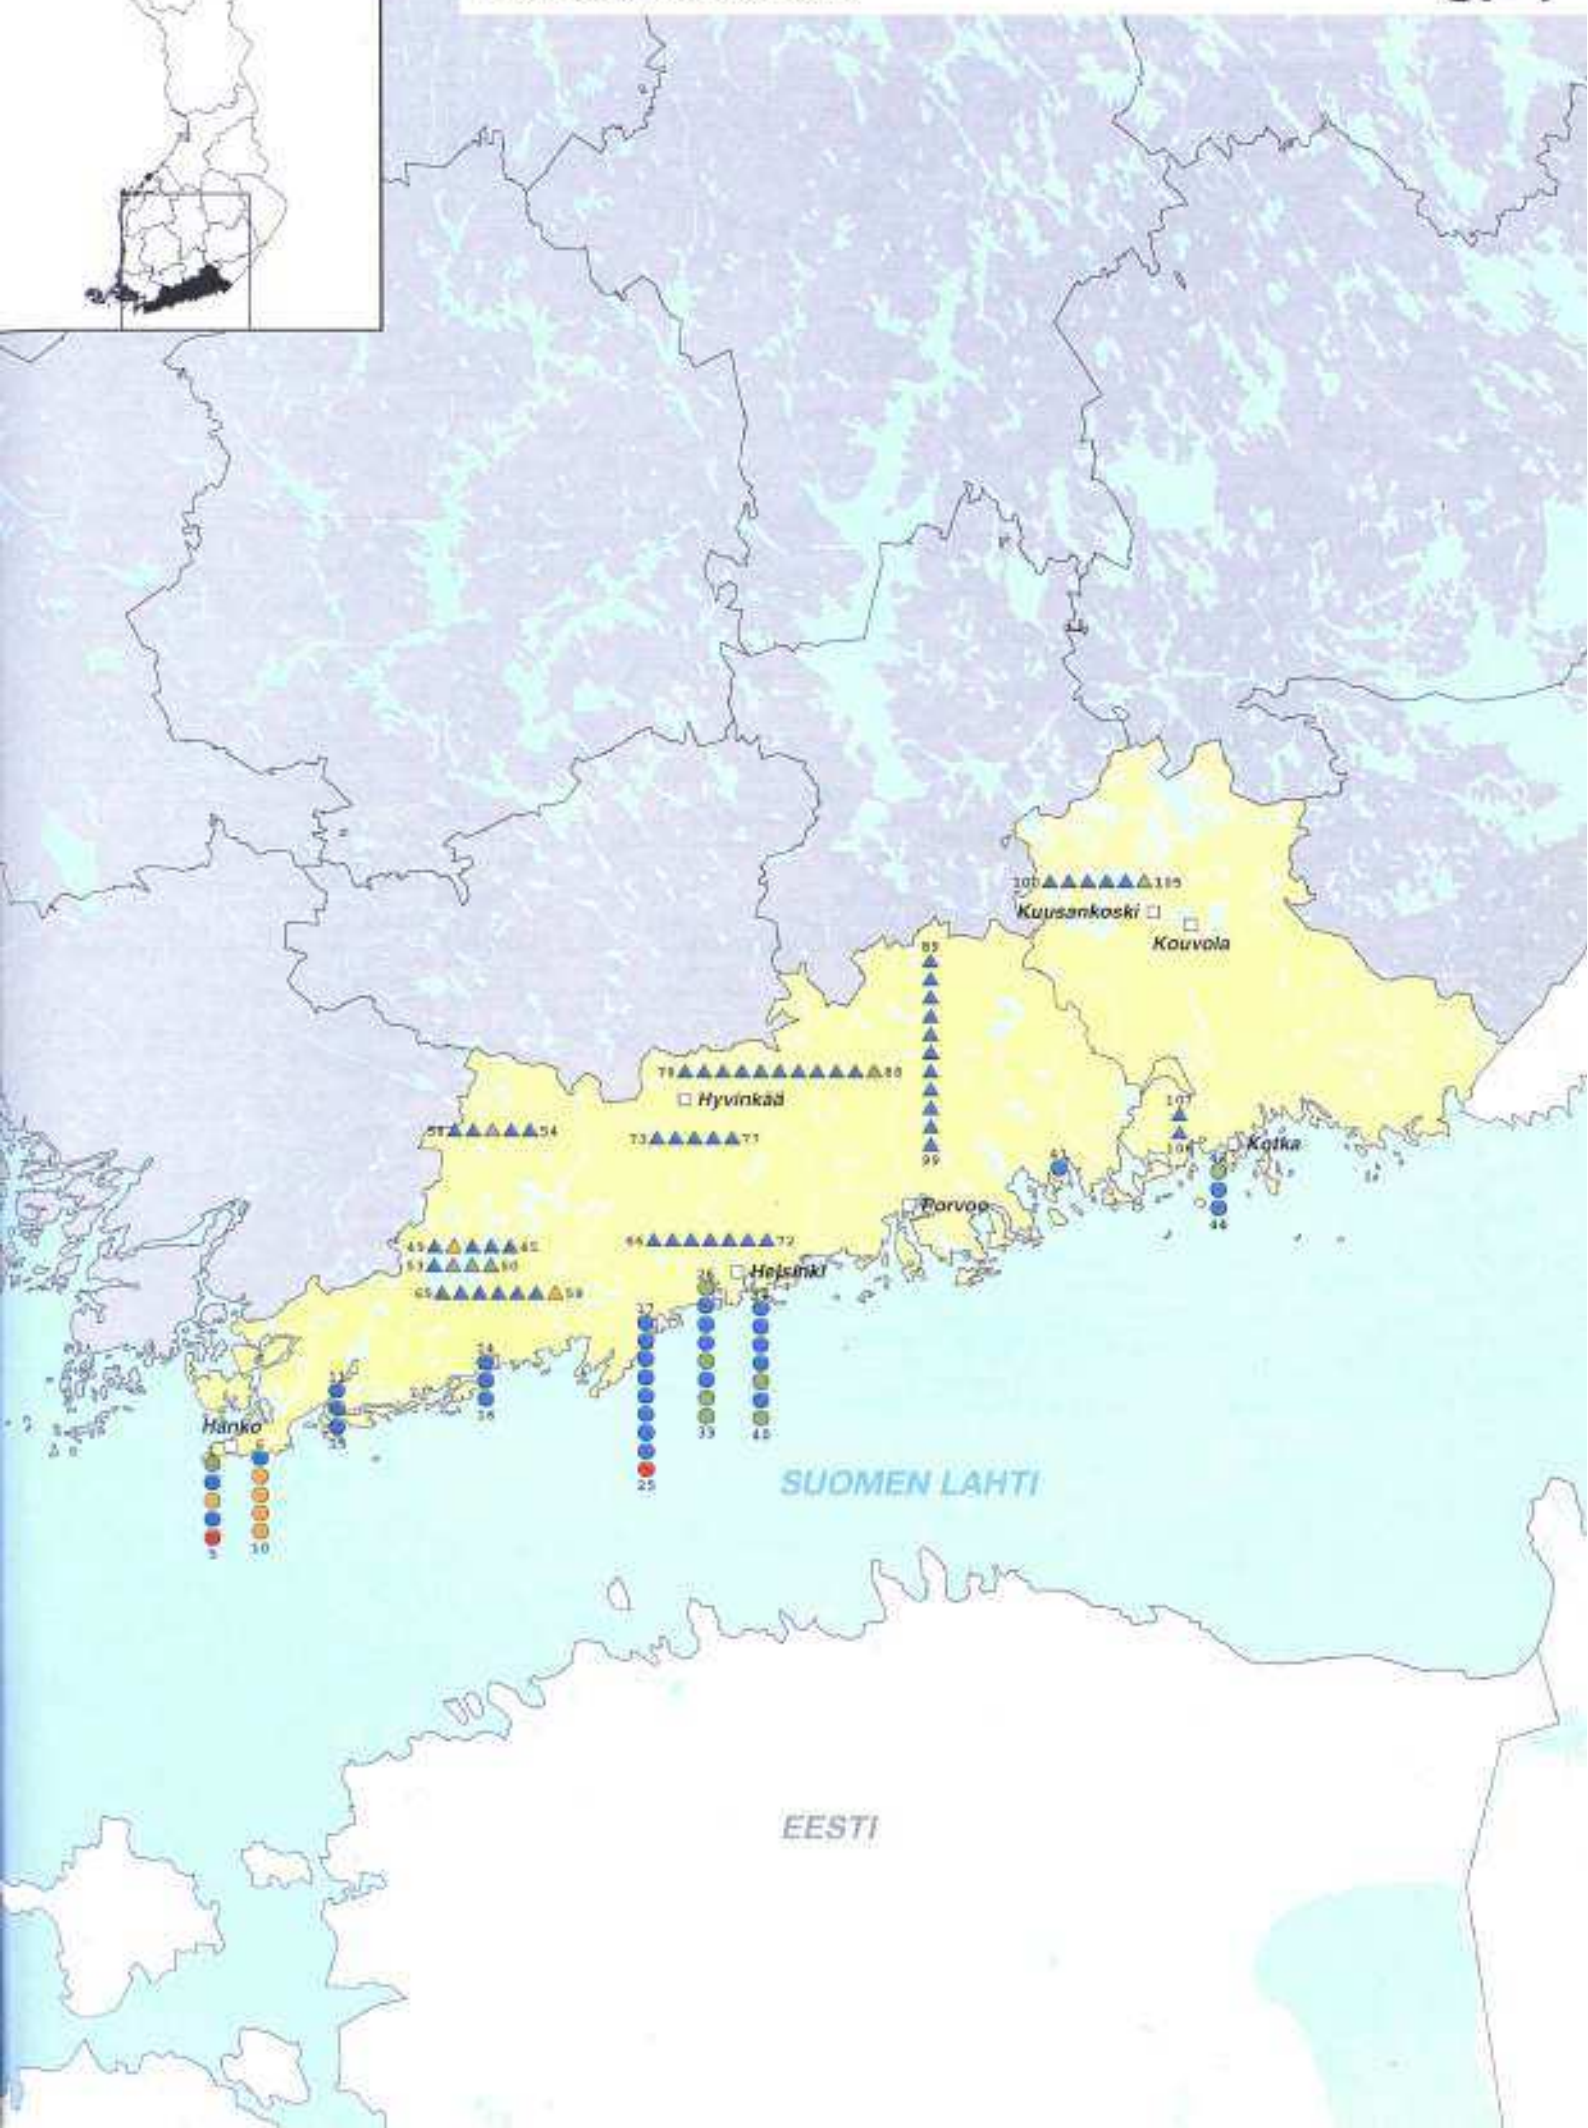

The physico-chemical parameters surface-active substances and phenols are not measured.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci and not of total coliforms.

Insufficient sampling frequency; modification of the sampling frequency in the national regulations (in 1995) in order to improve the situation.

High water quality in areas with sufficient sampling frequency (low percentage of 'non-complying' areas).

|----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| $\Sigma$ | total number of sampling points;                                                                       |
| C(I)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;           |
| C(G)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;               |
| NF       | percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available); |
| NC       | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;       |
| NB       | percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.                                           |

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Information available from:

Ministère des Travaux et des Affaires Sociales
Direction Générale de la Santé - VS4
1, place Fontenoy - 75350 Paris 07SP
Tel: (33 1) 46 62 47 30 - Fax: (33 1) 46 62 45 46

Remarks:

Increase in the compliance rate for fresh water and slight decrease for sea water; to be seen in the context of an insufficient sampling frequency in the overseas departments and territories (mainly due, according to the statement of the French authorities, to cyclones).

Total coliforms has been abandoned as a parameter for most beaches. Faecal streptococci are systematically monitored.

The beaches of French Guiana, omitted in the 1994 season, are once again taken into account.

| $\Sigma$ | total number of sampling points;                                                                       |
| C(I)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;           |
| C(G)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;               |
| NF       | percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available); |
| NC       | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;       |
| NB       | percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.                                           |

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Remarks:

Relative increase in the compliance rates for both sea water and fresh water together with a decrease in areas with an insufficient sampling frequency.

Large absolute number of bathing areas (more than 400) not complying with the minimum requirements of the Directive.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci.

1995 bathing season:

15 May to 31 August

Number of bathing areas identified:

20

Average sampling frequency:

1 sample / 17 days

Main results:

| Luxembourg - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|-------------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Fresh water       | 20       | 85        | 55        | -      | -      | 15     |

$\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;

C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;

C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;

NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);

NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;

NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

1995 bathing season:

1 May to 30 September

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 46
fresh water 544

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 16 days
fresh water 1 sample / 14 days

Main results:

| Netherlands - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%)         | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|--------------------|----------|-------------------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Fresh water        | 544      | 18.0 <sup>1</sup> | 13.4      | 79.2   | 9.7    | 0      |

- $\Sigma$  : total number of sampling points;
C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

<sup>1</sup> These results are mostly due to a lack or inadequacy of monitoring of the physico-chemical parameters. They become 65.2% and 50.0% respectively if faecal coliforms alone are considered.

Information available from:

Ministry of Transport, Public Works and Water Management
Directorate-General for Public and Water Management
Institute for Inland Management and Waste Water Treatment
PO Box 17 - 8200AA Lelystad
Tel: (31 320) 29 87 48 - Fax (31 320) 24 92 18

Remarks:

The physico-chemical parameters were not measured for sea water and there is an excessively high proportion of insufficiently sampled bathing areas.

On the basis of faecal coliforms alone, a slight improvement in bathing water quality can be seen.

It should be noted, however, that more than 280 bathing areas, both sea water and fresh water, do not comply with the minimum requirements set by the Directive (see tables in the explanatory section of the report).

Portugal

1995 bathing season:

1 June to 30 September

Number of bathing areas identified:

|             |     |
|-------------|-----|
| sea water   | 333 |
| fresh water | 26  |

Average sampling frequency:

|             |                    |
|-------------|--------------------|
| sea water   | 1 sample / 12 days |
| fresh water | 1 sample / 19 days |

Main results:

| Portugal - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|-----------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water       | 333      | 75.4      | 69.4      | 4.8    | 19.8   | 0      |

|----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| $\Sigma$ | total number of sampling points;                                                                       |
| C(I)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;           |
| C(G)     | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;               |
| NF       | percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available); |
| NC       | percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;       |
| NB       | percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.                                           |

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Remarks:

Relative improvement in the quality of the sea water bathing areas (see explanatory section of the report).

Decrease in the compliance rates for the fresh water bathing areas, which can be linked to a highly insufficient sampling frequency, attributable in part to prolonged periods of drought.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci.

Sweden

1995 bathing season:

20 June to 20 August

Number of bathing areas identified:

sea water 252
fresh water 350

Average sampling frequency:

sea water 1 sample / 13 days
fresh water 1 sample / 15 days

Main results:

| Sweden - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|---------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water     | 252      | 44.8      | 33.3      | 54.4   | 0.8    | 0      |
| Fresh water   | 350      | 62.3      | 52.3      | 37.4   | 0.3    | 0      |

$\Sigma$  total number of sampling points;
C(I) percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
C(G) percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
NF percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
NC percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
NB percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Microbiological parameter for which the compliance rate is calculated: faecal coliforms.

Tel: (46 8) 698 15 18 - Fax: (46 8) 698 15 84

Remarks:

First communication of data relating to the assessment of bathing water quality.

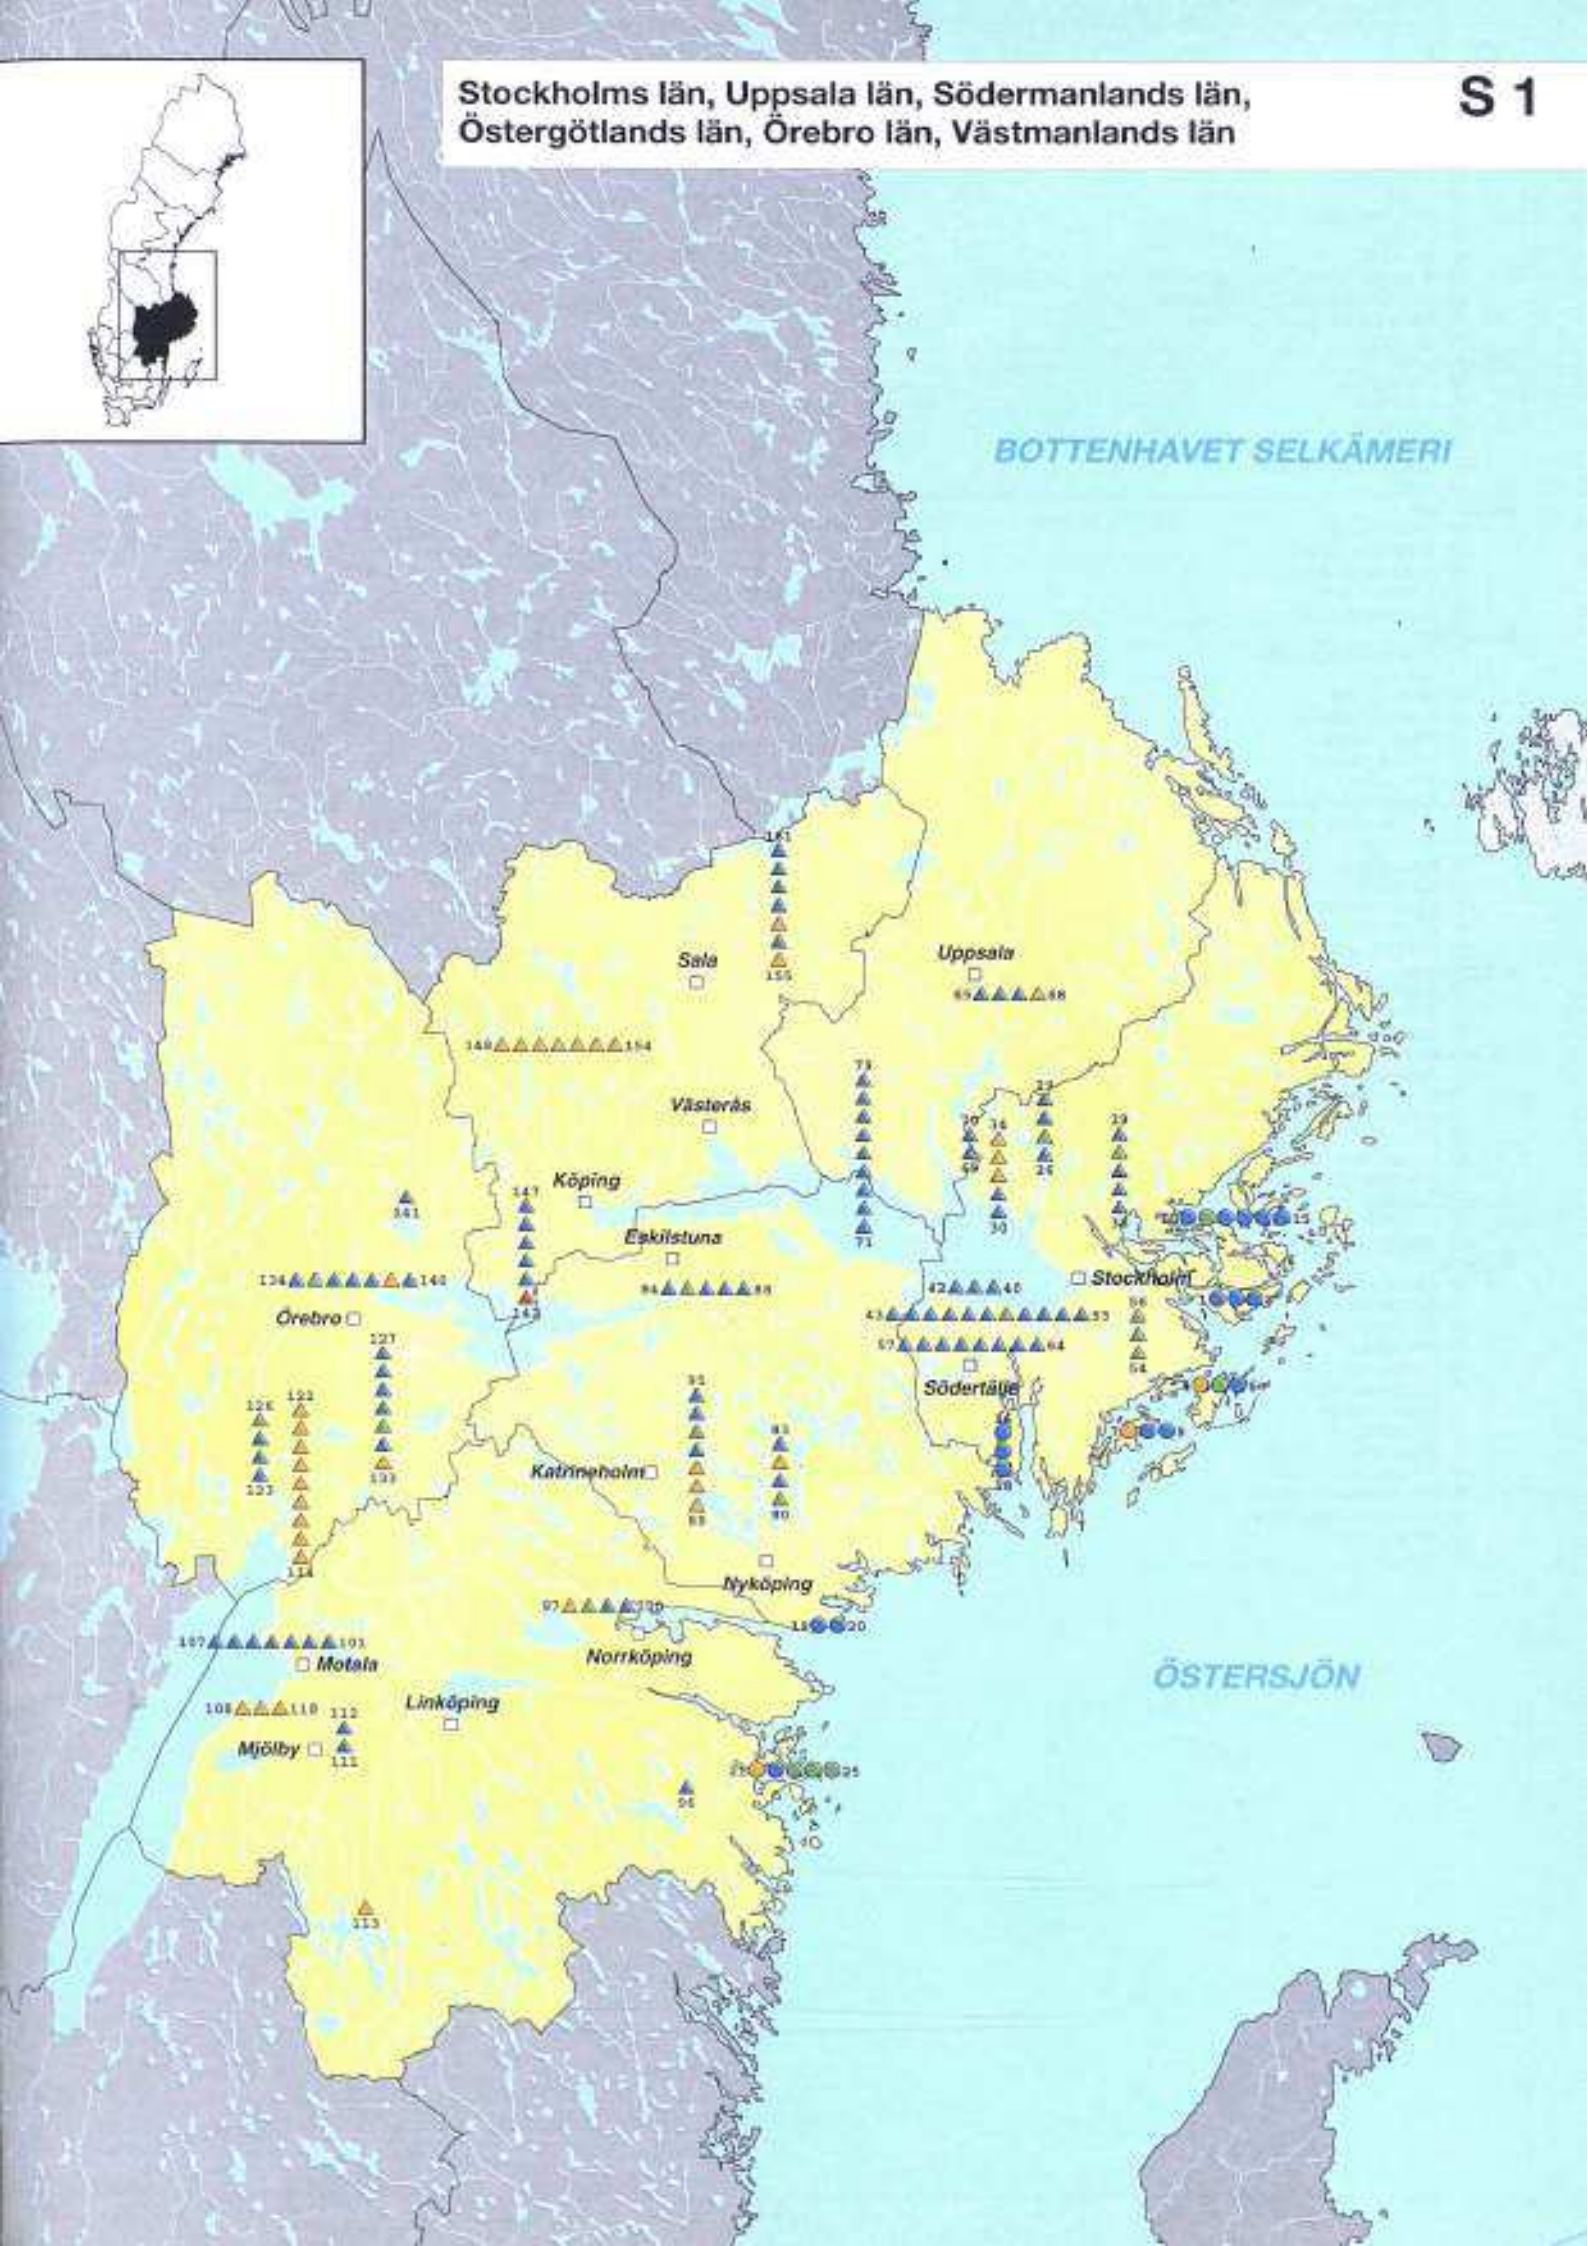

High water quality in the areas with sufficient sampling frequency (low proportion of 'non-complying' areas).

Large number of insufficiently sampled bathing areas.

Systematic assessment of faecal streptococci but not of total coliforms.

No data supplied for parameters other than the first three in the Annex to the Directive.

1995 bathing season:

|                               |                        |
|-------------------------------|------------------------|
| England and Wales             | 15 May to 30 September |
| Scotland and Northern Ireland | 1 June to 15 September |
| Gibraltar                     | 15 April to 30 October |

Number of bathing areas identified:

|             |                     |
|-------------|---------------------|
| sea water   | 464 + 6 (Gibraltar) |
| fresh water | 0                   |

Average sampling frequency:

1 sample / 6 days

Main results:

| United Kingdom - 1995 | $\Sigma$ | C (I) (%) | C (G) (%) | NF (%) | NC (%) | NB (%) |
|-----------------------|----------|-----------|-----------|--------|--------|--------|
| Sea water             | 464      | 89.0      | 49.6      | 0      | 11.0   | 0      |

|          |                                                                                                          |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| $\Sigma$ | : total number of sampling points;                                                                       |
| C(I)     | : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;           |
| C(G)     | : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;               |
| NF       | : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available); |
| NC       | : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;       |
| NB       | : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.                                           |

Parameters for which the compliance rate is calculated: total coliforms, faecal coliforms, mineral oils, surface-active substances and phenols.

Information available from:

Department of the Environment
Water Quality Division - Romney House
43, Marsham Street - London SW1P 3PY
Tel: (44 171) 276 82 75 - Fax: (44 171) 276 82 64

Remarks:

No fresh water bathing areas have been identified.

Increase in the compliance rates for sea water bathing areas as regards both mandatory and guide values, for total and faecal coliforms.

The compliance rates are lower, however, if all the microbiological parameters with a mandatory value (see explanatory section of the report) are taken into account.

Good sampling frequency.

Systematic monitoring of faecal streptococci.

4. Explanatory report

Introduction

1. General remarks

This 13th report on the quality of bathing water covers the 1995 bathing season. It is the third report published by the Commission since the adoption of Council Directive 91/692/EEC standardizing and rationalizing reports on the implementation of certain directives relating to the environment.

Sectoral reports will be published on a three-yearly basis. The first, covering the period from 1993 to 1995, will be published in June 1997 and will review implementation of the directives concerning water protection. It will be followed in 1998 by a sectoral report on air quality and in 1999 by a report on waste.

Nevertheless, the report on the quality of bathing water is different from the others in that it will continue to be published annually. The Commission wishes to allow the public to receive the regular information to which it has become accustomed at the beginning of each bathing season.

The Commission welcomes the fact that two new Member States, Finland and Sweden, have supplied their data for the first time. In accordance with the derogation until 1 January 1997 granted in its act of accession, Austria has not supplied any data.

As regards sea water, there has for some years been a constant improvement in quality due to the implementation by the Member States of waste water treatment programmes.

For fresh water, an improvement has been observed in the compliance rates with respect to the mandatory and guide values. However, compliance with the mandatory values amounts to only 70.5%. The Commission insists that the Member States should therefore pay particular attention to points where sampling has not been carried out or only inadequately, i.e. almost 20% of the bathing areas identified.

2. Warning

Although the Member States are under a legal obligation to comply with Directive 76/160/EEC, the Commission points out that a considerable effort remains to be made in order to meet all its requirements. Indeed, all too often data are supplied for a few parameters only or for privileged beaches, whereas the monitoring programme should cover all the parameters in the Directive for all the bathing areas identified.

For this reason, in order for the results to be to some extent comparable, two parameters are used in preference to the others: total and faecal coliforms.

It should be noted, however, that any comparison of the different results is difficult and needs to be done very carefully as they are subject to differences linked to the parameters measured, the sampling frequency, the number of beaches monitored and the geographical location.

3. Revision of Directive 76/160/EEC

At the European Council in Edinburgh, the Commission, with a view to reconciling Community regulations with the principle of subsidiarity, undertook to prepare a report reappraising existing legislation. This commitment was reiterated in the conclusions of the European Council in Brussels. In the case of Directive 76/160/EEC on the quality of bathing water, revision proved to be the most appropriate response.

As the Directive is one of the older legal instruments — adopted by the Council in 1975 — there has been some controversy in recent years, chiefly because it has not been adapted to scientific and technical developments which have actually made it possible to define pollution indicators to forecast the presence of pathogens. These same indicators have been adopted by the ISO (International Organization for Standardization). The regular measurement of these indicators will guarantee a high level of environmental and health protection.

Moreover, bathing is an important aspect of tourism and the tourist industry needs common criteria throughout the Community to allow holidaymakers to make unbiased choices.

There are therefore very good reasons for adopting a directive designed principally:

- to maintain the protection of the environment and public health provided by Council Directive 76/160/EEC, and to adapt it to technical progress by concentrating on the most significant parameters;
- to simplify implementation of the Directive by deleting redundant parameters and making other definitions more explicit without reducing the level of protection of public health and the environment;
- to ensure that the Member States take action in cases of deteriorating water quality and endeavour to identify new bathing areas while in both instances allowing sufficient time to bring the water up to the standards of the Directive.

The purpose of revising the Directive concerning the quality of bathing water is to adapt the present text to scientific progress and to take account of the experience gained. It will also be simplified. The revised version has been prepared by the Commission's technical units and was submitted by the Commission on 29 March 1994. This text is shortly to be considered by the Council, in cooperation with the European Parliament which has been examining the proposal since July 1994. The Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions returned generally favourable opinions on the proposal on 14 and 28 September 1994 respectively, though both made a number of specific comments.

The revision clarifies certain articles of Directive 76/160/EEC to facilitate the assessment of bathing water compliance and to reinforce the information available to the public. A committee for adaptation to technical progress should be set up for updating the Directive when necessary.

The technical Annex to the present Directive in particular has been amended. It focuses on the most appropriate pollution indicators for the protection of health and the environment, such as for example the faecal streptococci parameter, which from now on will have a mandatory value. The Commission invites the Member States to proceed with their investigations, most of which have already begun, an assessment of the parameters that will have to be measured (such as faecal streptococci and floating materials) without neglecting the parameters of the current Directive, which for the moment is the only legally binding one.

4. The DG XII measurements and testing programme

By Decision 92/247/EEC of 29 April 1992, the Council adopted a specific research and technological development programme in the field of measurements and testing. One of the research programmes concerned sea water microbiology and consisted in comparing the methods of analysis used by the Member States for implementing Directive 76/160/EEC.

The report, published belatedly, and its results have been submitted to the Member States. The Commission has requested them to supply further information in order to allow analysis of the consequences. A meeting between the Commission and the Member States is planned for June 1996.

5. The blue flag campaign

The blue flag campaign, which is run by the Foundation for Environmental Education in Europe (FEEE), has received much publicity for many years now.

Although the Commission provides some financial support, the campaign is a scheme set up by a non-governmental organization based in Copenhagen.

Blue flags are awarded to beaches which satisfy criteria relating to water quality, bathers' safety and beach facilities and which conduct environmental information campaigns. As far as water quality is concerned, the FEEE puts the emphasis on water of excellent quality. The criterion of excellence is assessed in terms of the guide values given in Directive 76/160/EEC for coliforms (total and faecal) and faecal streptococci.

In the 1995 bathing season, on 19 May 1995, the FEEE awarded 1 463 blue flags. The list of beaches and additional information can be obtained at the following address:

Belgium

The number of bathing areas remains the same as in the 1995 bathing season with the exception of one.

2. Remarks

For the coastal bathing water areas, the compliance of the parameters with the mandatory values continued to increase during the 1995 bathing season. Moreover, the coastal beaches have a high sampling frequency.

It should, however, be mentioned that salmonella is present in almost 85% of the bathing areas identified and that the water quality has deteriorated to an extent if compliance of the parameters with the guide values is taken into account.

For fresh water bathing areas the situation is getting worse. Indeed, the rates of compliance with the established criteria seem to be decreasing.

The Member State is asked to take whatever steps are necessary to improve this situation.

3. General information

Improvement schemes

Along the coast, water improvement plans have already been carried out on a large scale. In the coming years, the investment programme includes the realization of smaller projects. According to the competent authorities, fresh water quality in Flanders should improve as a result of the continuation of waste water collection and treatment work.

In Wallonia, the authorities have set up a four-year investment programme, which should start in 1996. At the time of writing, the documents relating to this programme have been sent to the Commission, which is now studying them.

Public information

In coastal areas the local authorities have published the results of the analyses every week. The data are also available continuously on videotext.

As regards inland areas, the local authorities inform the public twice a month on bathing water quality.

Denmark

The Danish legislation on bathing water stipulates, among other things, that:

- bathing water samples may not contain more than 1 000 heat-tolerant coliforms/100 ml in more than 5% of the samples;
- fresh water in particular may not contain more than 10 000 total coliforms/100 ml in more than 5% of the samples.

Although it does not satisfy the requirements of the current Directive, the enforcement of the national legislation explains the absence of monitoring for total coliforms in coastal water. The compliance rates for sea water are therefore calculated on the basis of the microbiological parameter faecal coliforms.

2. Remarks

On the basis of the parameters considered, bathing water quality maintains high rates of compliance, despite a decrease for fresh water and no change for sea water.

In the future, the overall quality of bathing water is expected to remain stable thanks to the implementation of the Aquatic Environment Action Programme.

3. General information

The Aquatic Environment Action Programme aims among other things at reducing water pollution by improving sewage treatment.

In areas where bathing is prohibited (failure to comply with the national requirements for three consecutive years), the local authorities carry out a survey to identify the causes of the pollution and take steps to improve the situation.

- Σ : total number of sampling points;
 C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
 C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
 NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or for which there are no data available);
 NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
 NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Percentages are given for total and faecal coliforms for fresh water and faecal coliforms alone for sea water, at all the identified sampling points.

Germany

Compared with the 1994 bathing season, the number of inland bathing areas identified decreased by 87 units. The main reason for this is that bathers stopped visiting them, which meant that they could no longer be identified according to Article 1(2) of the Directive.

In general the competent authorities explain that the values laid down by the Directive are being exceeded because of factors such as:

- high number of water birds;
- flooding after heavy rain;
- subsoil (bog, sand, clay);
- number of bathers.

2. Remarks

The improvement in the quality of coastal bathing water already noted in the 1994 bathing season is confirmed. However, 15% of the beaches still do not comply with the minimum requirements.

As regards fresh water quality, only about 53% of the bathing areas comply with the mandatory values. On the other hand, an improvement in quality was recorded. However, based on the available data and since the frequency of sampling was insufficient over more than 36% of bathing areas, it is difficult to draw definite conclusions regarding the improvement of water quality in fresh water bathing areas.

Although lower than it was for the 1994 bathing season, the percentage remains high. Consequently, the Member State is asked to take whatever steps are necessary to improve the water quality.

3. General information

Public information

The public is kept informed on bathing water quality through notices displayed at bathing places. Moreover, the most recent results are regularly communicated through the media.

Several Länder publish an annual report on bathing water quality.

Improvement schemes

The competent authorities of the Länder endeavour to improve or restore bathing water quality whenever the limits laid down in the Annex to the Directive are significantly or repeatedly exceeded. In addition to general improvement schemes, investigations are being carried out in order to assess the precise causes of pollution with a view to taking the most appropriate measures.

Summary of results from 1992 to 1995

- Σ : total number of sampling points;
 C(I) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the mandatory values;
 C(G) : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency complying with the guide values;
 NF : percentage of points not sampled or insufficiently sampled (or there are no data available);
 NC : percentage of points with sufficient sampling frequency not complying with the mandatory values;
 NB : percentage of areas where bathing is temporarily prohibited.

Percentages are given for total and faecal coliforms at all the identified sampling points.

Greece

The number of coastal beaches increased by 245 units over the 1994 bathing season.

Although Greek legislation lays down stricter requirements than those set out in the Annex to the Directive, the latter were used to assess bathing water quality.

2. Remarks

The bathing areas identified are mainly coastal areas.

The monitoring results for the 1995 bathing season confirm the excellent quality of bathing water already recorded for the previous seasons.

3. General information

Public information

A particular effort was made to inform the public during the bathing season by means of notices, printed publications and television. Indeed, a new information campaign on the bathing water monitoring programme was set up in 1995.

An annual report is made available to the public.

Spain

The monitoring programme for coastal bathing areas is continually expanding, but the number of identified inland bathing areas has been reduced to that of the 1994 bathing season as a result of the drought which affected the country.

The results were assessed on the basis of the mandatory values laid down in the Directive.

1. Information summary

Table 1 - 1995 bathing season

(Compliance rates of bathing areas for the microbiological parameters total and faecal coliforms - 1995 bathing season).

2. Remarks

96.7% and 84.8% respectively of sea water bathing areas complied with the mandatory and guide values for total and faecal coliforms. The quality of coastal bathing water has continued to improve in the 1995 bathing season compared with the previous seasons.

For inland bathing areas, on the other hand, the high rate of non-compliance, i.e. over 30% of the points sampled, indicates various quality problems.

3. General information

Public information

On the basis of data provided by the autonomous communities the Ministry of Health and Consumer Affairs publishes an annual report on the quality of bathing water at national level. This report is then made available to the press.

During the bathing season, local and autonomous authorities make information on the most recent results on bathing water quality available to the public, either in the press, by notices displayed in the bathing places, or by radio.

Improvement schemes

When drafting the previous report, Spain informed the Commission that sanitation measures for the sampling points which failed to comply with the requirements of the Directive for the 1994 bathing season were laid down in a document entitled 'Sanitation Measures'. At the time of drafting of the present report, the Commission has not been informed as to the follow-up of this document, namely concerning identified discharges of waste water as well as the planned improvement schemes.

<sup>a</sup> 122 bathing areas not sampled for reasons of drought, bringing the total number of sampling points down from 343 to 221, and the number of points not sampled from 122 to 0.

Finland

The Commission is delighted that Finland has supplied its results for the first time. The national regulations on the microbiological quality of bathing water are more stringent than the requirements laid down by the Directive. By counting the number of faecal coliforms (FC) and faecal streptococci (FS) in 100 ml, bathing water is rated as 'good' (FC < 100; FS < 100), 'acceptable' (100 < FC < 1000; 100 < FS < 1000) or 'bad' (FC > 1000; FS > 1000).

Unlike in the current Directive, total coliforms have not been used as an indicator since the early 1970s.

100 sea water bathing areas and 378 fresh water bathing areas were identified in the 1995 bathing season.

| Number of points not complying with mandatory values        | 2          | 2           |
| Number of points where bathing is prohibited                | 0          | 0           |

2. Remarks

In compliance with the Finnish legislation, sampling frequency is monthly, except for bathing areas where the water quality is not rated as 'good'. Although a fortnightly sampling frequency had been recommended in 1995 for bathing areas visited by more than 100 people a day, this recommendation was not heeded by all the local authorities. The least frequently sampled bathing areas are usually those visited by fewer than 100 people a day, their bathing water quality being rated as good.

3. General information

Public information

In accordance with a Health Ministry circular, the latest monitoring results must be posted up on a notice board in every public bathing area.

Other information

The Member State points out that, apart from the beaches mentioned above, its territory includes over 2 000 public bathing areas and over 400 000 holiday homes near bathing waters. Given the small number of bathers, the latter do not correspond to the definition given in Article 1 of the Directive.

The Member State mentions that bathing was temporarily prohibited at five sampling points as a consequence of algae proliferation.

France

During the 1995 bathing season, the Member State decided to abandon the systematic monitoring of total coliforms, so only faecal coliforms are considered below.

1. Information summary

Table 1 - 1995 bathing season

2. Remarks

Table 4 shows an improvement in the compliance rates for fresh water. For sea water, the percentage of points complying with mandatory values has decreased slightly compared with the 1994 bathing season; this is connected with the increase in the number of areas which have been insufficiently sampled. These points are mostly located in the overseas departments and territories where the bathing water monitoring programme was disturbed by cyclones.

Comparison of the results of the 1995 bathing season with those of previous years remains difficult, however, since systematic monitoring of total coliforms was withdrawn from the programme. The Commission reminds the Member State that the Directive in force requires this parameter to be measured. It should, however, be mentioned that the Member State systematically looks for the presence of faecal streptococci.

Analysis methods

For the 1995 bathing season, France decided to use a single method of analysis for each microbiological parameter throughout the territory. Thus, the 100 authorized laboratories for bathing water used the NPP96 methods for the detection of E. coli and faecal streptococci and membrane filtration for detecting total coliforms. Various intercalibrations have also been made.

Public information

During the bathing season the public is kept informed of the latest analysis results via the Minitel teletext system under the heading '3615 Infoplage'. Notices are also displayed at bathing places and in town halls. Moreover, an annual report on the monitoring of bathing water quality is presented by the Ministry of Health and Environment at a press conference and publicized by various information campaigns.

Improvement schemes

Despite the progress of improvement schemes in France in recent years, local authorities still need to step up their efforts in order to improve water quality overall. The target set for the year 2000 is for a reliable urban waste water collection system and improved performance of waste-water treatment plants in accordance with the requirements of Directive 91/271/EEC.

Ireland

The Irish legislation on bathing water is stricter than the European Directive as regards the mandatory values for faecal coliforms (1 000/100 ml) and total coliforms (5 000/100 ml). Moreover, for faecal streptococci it sets a limit value of 300/100 ml.

The number of bathing areas monitored in 1995 is the same as that for the 1994 season.

2. Remarks

The sampling frequency in the 1995 bathing season complied with the requirements laid down in the Directive. The measurement results confirm the high quality of bathing water, both sea water and fresh water. The great majority of bathing areas comply with the requirements of the Directive and with those set by the national legislation.

3. General information

Public information

National legislation requires local authorities to publish a map showing the sampling points and the latest results of bathing water quality measurement at or near bathing areas.

The national results are published regularly in the Department of the Environment's bulletin, which is available free of charge to the public, nature conservation groups, etc.

Improvement schemes

When supplying its data on the 1994 bathing season, Ireland informed the Commission that, although its bathing water is generally of good quality, there were recurrent pollution problems in certain bathing areas in the vicinity of Dublin.

The Commission was informed that to resolve this problem, the authorities intended to treat the sewage at Ringsend. The work, which will include treatment of sewage currently discharged at Howth, should be finished by the year 2000.

Italy

Bathing water quality is assessed on the basis of the mandatory values laid down in the Directive. However, Italian legislation lays down stricter requirements for certain parameters and so assessment of bathing water quality may well differ in certain areas.

2. Remarks

Compared with the 1994 bathing season, coastal and inland bathing areas have a better rate of compliance for the parameters under consideration. Moreover, an overwhelming majority of bathing areas comply with the required sampling frequency.

This increase in the number of beaches sufficiently sampled is an improvement on previous years. The monitoring programme is extended by 65 additional bathing areas.

3. General information

Public information

Information from the bathing water monitoring programme is available on teletext. A detailed report on bathing water quality is published annually.

Improvement schemes

The Italian authorities have not sent any data on their waste water treatment schemes.

Luxembourg

Bathing areas identified during the 1995 bathing season were the same as for previous seasons.

2. Remarks

Bathing water quality was identical to that of the 1994 bathing season. Of the 20 bathing areas sampled, 17 complied with the mandatory values set for total and faecal coliforms. The three other bathing areas which failed to comply have been subject to a bathing ban since 1989.

3. General information

Public information

Article 9 of the Grand Ducal Regulation specifies that the public should be informed of the results of bathing water quality controls. This information is posted in the local town halls and at the bathing places concerned.

There are severe penalties for failure to display visible signs at areas where bathing is prohibited.

Improvement schemes

When supplying data on the 1994 bathing season, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg informed the Commission that several improvement schemes for waste water were under way. These works, which are to start in 1996, concern the Rosport-Ralingen agglomeration as well as the connection of the Dillingen camping sites to the Echternach purification plant. These works had been delayed because of technical problems in the files.

The enlargement and modernization of the Echternach plant will result in a marked improvement in the bacteriological quality of bathing water in this area.

The Netherlands

Forty-six sea water bathing areas and 544 fresh water bathing areas were monitored during the 1995 bathing season, which is similar to the previous bathing seasons. Compared with 1994, a large number of bathing areas were changed or prohibited and new ones added. Total coliforms were not systematically monitored.

2. Remarks

Table 4 shows an improvement in the compliance rates for bathing water. However, it also shows that sampling was insufficient in 30% of sea water bathing areas and in 41% of fresh water bathing areas. The Member State has considerably reduced the number of unsampled fresh water areas, from 149 in 1994 to 8 in 1995.

The Netherlands are asked to continue the efforts already undertaken by taking all the necessary steps to comply with the requirements of the Directive as regards both the sampling frequency and the parameters to be measured.

3. General information

Public information

The means of informing the public can vary from one province to another. In general, leaflets with the results and the assessment of water quality are provided by tourist offices and provincial administrations.

For popular bathing areas, notices are displayed at bathing places.

Improvement schemes

In their previous report, the Netherlands informed the Commission that general directives concerning action to clean up bathing areas were included in the documents setting out national policy which are issued every four to seven years.

No details of any improvement schemes were supplied.

Portugal

Portuguese legislation classifies bathing water according to the rate of compliance with the values laid down in the Directive for total and faecal coliforms. The different ratings are 'good' (bathing water in compliance with the guide values), 'acceptable' (bathing water in compliance with the mandatory values) and 'bad' (bathing water not in compliance with the mandatory values).

The number of bathing areas rose from 325 in 1994 to 338 in 1995 for coastal bathing water and from 24 to 26 for inland bathing water.

2. Remarks

The results reported for the 1995 bathing season confirm the improvement of sea water quality and monitoring already observed in previous years.

On the other hand, sampling frequency has sharply decreased for inland bathing areas, entailing a drop in compliance rates which is in part attributable to a period of drought.

3. General information

Public information

Since 1989, the Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Health have published an annual bathing water quality report. This is displayed and distributed at medical centres, tourist offices, harbourmasters' offices and at the bathing areas themselves. The results are also published in the media.

Improvement schemes

Portugal continues its improvement efforts with the national programme for the environment. This involves, among other things, sewage collection and treatment and the construction of offshore sewage outfalls. Under this programme work is to start shortly on improving the Ria de Aveiro and the neighbouring areas. Work should be completed by the end of 1998 and will help to improve the quality of bathing water in this area.

Sweden

The Commission is very pleased that Sweden has supplied its results for the first time. Only faecal coliforms have been taken into account below for assessing bathing water quality, since total coliforms have not been systematically measured.

1. Information summary

Table 1 - 1995 bathing season

Compliance rates of bathing areas for the microbiological parameter faecal coliforms - 1995 bathing season.

| Sweden - 1995                                               | Sea water  | Fresh water |

| Number of points complying with guide (G) values            | 84         | 183         |
| Number of points not complying with mandatory values        | 2          | 1           |
| Number of points where bathing is prohibited                | 0          | 0           |
| Average sampling frequency                                  | 4.8        | 4.1         |

2. Remarks

The rates of compliance seem low, but for many bathing areas this is due to insufficient sampling compared with the requirements laid down in the Directive.

Generally speaking, it seems that the bathing areas for which the sampling frequency complied with the Directive are of good quality (very low non-compliance rate).

3. General information

For some years the authorities have been drawing up bathing water quality maps and keeping the press informed.

United Kingdom

For sea water, the three microbiological parameters total coliforms, faecal coliforms and faecal streptococci were monitored systematically during the 1995 bathing season. Tests for salmonella were carried out in most bathing areas. Enteroviruses were checked at every bathing area which had failed to meet the coliforms requirement in 1994.

The Member State did not identify any inland bathing area.

| Average sampling frequency                                  | 20.1       |

2. Remarks

The improvement in bathing water quality over the last few years continued in 1995. The proportion of areas complying with the mandatory values rose from 82.3% in 1994 to 89.0% in 1995.

The United Kingdom is the only Member State to have also set up a monitoring programme for enteroviruses (with a mandatory value), chiefly in those places where compliance problems were revealed in the previous bathing season. 89 bathing areas of the 189 sampled (i.e. 47%) do not comply as against 149 of the 191 (i.e. 78%) last year.

In bathing areas the sampling frequency was a minimum of 20 samples taken at weekly intervals throughout the bathing season.

3. General information

Public information

To keep the public informed about bathing water quality, coliform analysis results continue to be displayed in notices on every beach throughout the United Kingdom. Also, annual reports are published.

Improvement schemes

The improvement programme had covered 70 bathing areas by June 1995. Work continues in order to improve the quality of bathing areas failing to comply with requirements.

ANNEX

DIRECTIVE 76/160/EEC

COUNCIL DIRECTIVE

of 8 December 1975

concerning the quality of bathing water

(76/160/EEC)

(OJ L 31, 5.2.1976)

THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES,

Having regard to the Treaty establishing the European Economic Community, and in particular Articles 100 and 235 thereof,

Having regard to the proposal from the Commission,

Having regard to the opinion of the European Parliament (1),

Having regard to the opinion of the Economic and Social Committee (2),

Whereas, in order to protect the environment and public health, it is necessary to reduce the pollution of bathing water and to protect such water against further deterioration;

Whereas surveillance of bathing water is necessary in order to attain, within the framework of the operation of the common market, the Community's objectives as regards the improvement of living conditions, the harmonious development of economic activities throughout the Community and continuous and balanced expansion;

Whereas there exist in this area certain laws, regulations or administrative provisions in Member States which directly affect the functioning of the common market; whereas however, not all the powers needed to act in this way have been provided for in the Treaty;

Whereas the programme of action of the European Communities on the environment (3) provides that quality objectives are to be jointly drawn up fixing the various requirements which an environment must meet inter alia the definition of parameters for water, including bathing water;

Whereas, in order to attain these quality objectives, the Member States must lay down limit values corresponding to certain parameters; whereas bathing water must be made to conform to these values within 10 years following the notification of this Directive;

Whereas it should be provided that bathing water will, under certain conditions, be deemed to conform to the relevant parametric values even if a certain percentage of samples taken during the bathing season does not comply with the limits specified in the Annex;

Whereas, to achieve a certain degree of flexibility in the application of this Directive, the Member States must have the power to provide for derogations; whereas such derogations must not, however, disregard requirements essential for the protection of public health;

Whereas technical progress necessitates rapid adaptation of the technical requirements laid down in the Annex; whereas, in order to facilitate the introduction of the measures required for this purpose, a procedure should be provided for whereby close cooperation would be established between the Member States and the Commission within a Committee on Adaptation to Technical Progress;

(1) OJ N° C 128, 9.6.1975, p. 13.

(2) OJ N° C 286, 15.12.1975, p. 5.

(3) OJ N° C 112, 20.12.1973, p. 8.

Whereas public interest in the environment and in the improvement of its quality is increasing; whereas the public should therefore receive objective information on the quality of bathing water;

HAS ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Article 1

1. This Directive concerns the quality of bathing water, with the exception of water intended for therapeutic purposes and water used in swimming pools.
2. For the purposes of this Directive:
  - (a) 'bathing water' means all running or still fresh waters or parts thereof and sea water, in which:
    - bathing is explicitly authorized by the competent authorities of each Member State, or
    - bathing is not prohibited and is traditionally practised by a large number of bathers;
  - (b) 'bathing area' means any place where bathing water is found;
  - (c) 'bathing season' means the period during which a large number of bathers can be expected, in the light of local custom, and any local rules which may exist concerning bathing and weather conditions.

Article 2

The physical, chemical and microbiological parameters applicable to bathing water are indicated in the Annex which forms an integral part of this Directive.

Article 3

1. Member States shall set, for all bathing areas or for each individual bathing area, the values applicable to bathing water for the parameters given in the Annex.

In the case of the parameters for which no values are given in the Annex, Member States may decide not to fix any values pursuant to the first subparagraph, until such time as figures have been determined.

2. The values set pursuant to paragraph 1 may not be less stringent than those given in column I of the Annex.

3. Where values appear in column G of the Annex, whether or not there is a corresponding value in column I of the Annex, Member States shall endeavour, subject to Article 7, to observe them as guidelines.

Article 4

1. Member States shall take all necessary measures to ensure that, within 10 years following the notification of this Directive, the quality of bathing water conforms to the limit values set in accordance with Article 3.

2. Member States shall ensure that, in bathing areas specially equipped for bathing to be created by the competent authorities of the Member States after the notification of this Directive, the 'I values' laid down in the Annex are observed from the time when bathing is first permitted. However, for bathing areas created during the two years following the notification of this Directive, these values need not be observed until the end of that period.

3. In exceptional circumstances, Member States may grant derogations in respect of the 10-year time limit laid down in paragraph 1. Justification for any such derogations based on plans for the management of water within the area concerned must be communicated to the Commission as soon as possible and not later than six years following the notification of this Directive. The Commission shall examine these justifications in detail and, where necessary, make appropriate proposals concerning them to the Council.

4. As regards sea water in the vicinity of frontiers and water crossing frontiers which affect the quality of the bathing water of another Member State, the consequences for the common quality objectives for bathing areas so affected shall be determined in collaboration by the riparian Member States concerned.

The Commission may participate in these deliberations.

Article 5

1. For the purposes of Article 4, bathing water shall be deemed to conform to the relevant parameters:

if samples of that water, taken at the same sampling point and at the intervals specified in the Annex, show that it conforms to the parametric values for the quality of the water concerned, in the case of:

- 95% of the samples for parameters corresponding to those specified in column I of the Annex;
- 90% of the samples in all other cases with the exception of the 'total coliform' and 'faecal coliform' parameters where the percentage may be 80% and if, in the case of the 5, 10 or 20% of the samples which do not comply:

- the water does not deviate from the parametric values in question by more than 50%, except for microbiological parameters, pH and dissolved oxygen;
- consecutive water samples taken at statistically suitable intervals do not deviate from the relevant parametric values.

2. Deviations from the values referred to in Article 3 shall not be taken into consideration in the calculation of the percentage referred to in paragraph 1 when they are the result of floods, other natural disasters or abnormal weather conditions.

Article 6

1. The competent authorities in the Member States shall carry out sampling operations, the minimum frequency of which is laid down in the Annex.

2. Samples should be taken at places where the daily average density of bathers is highest. Samples should preferably be taken 30 cm below the surface of the water except for mineral oil samples which shall be taken at surface level. Sampling should begin two weeks before the start of the bathing season.

3. Local investigation of the conditions prevailing upstream in the case of fresh running water, and of the ambient conditions in the case of fresh still water and sea water should be carried out scrupulously and repeated periodically in order to obtain geographical and topographical data and to determine the volume and nature of all polluting and potentially polluting discharges and their effects according to the distance from the bathing area.

4. Should inspection by a competent authority or sampling operations reveal that there is a discharge or a probable discharge of substances likely to lower the quality of the bathing water, additional sampling must take place. Such additional sampling must also take place if there are any other grounds for suspecting that there is a decrease in water quality.

5. Reference methods of analysis for the parameters concerned are set out in the Annex. Laboratories which employ other methods must ensure that the results obtained are equivalent or comparable to those specified in the Annex.

Article 7

1. Implementation of the measures taken pursuant to this Directive may under no circumstances lead either directly or indirectly to deterioration of the current quality of bathing water.

2. Member States may at any time fix more stringent values for bathing water than those laid down in this Directive.

Article 8

This Directive may be waived:

- (a) in the case of certain parameters marked (f) in the Annex, because of exceptional weather or geographical conditions;
- (b) when bathing water undergoes natural enrichment in certain substances causing a deviation from the values prescribed in the Annex.

Natural enrichment means the process whereby, without human intervention, a given body of water receives from the soil certain substances contained therein.

In no case may the exceptions provided for in this Article disregard the requirements essential for public health protection.

Where a Member State waives the provisions of this Directive, it shall forthwith notify the Commission thereof, stating its reasons and the periods anticipated.

Article 9

Such amendments as are necessary for adapting this Directive to technical progress shall relate to:

- the methods of analysis
- the G and I parameter values set out in the Annex.

They shall be adopted in accordance with the procedure laid down in Article 11.

Article 10

1. A Committee on Adaptation to Technical Progress (hereinafter called 'the committee') is hereby set up. It shall consist of representatives of the Member States and be chaired by a representative of the Commission.

2. The committee shall draw up its own rules of procedure.

Article 11

1. Where the procedure laid down in this Article is to be followed, matters shall be referred to the committee by the chairman, either on his own initiative or at the request of the representative of a Member State.

2. The representative of the Commission shall submit to the committee a draft of the measures to be adopted. The committee shall deliver its opinion on the draft within a time limit set by the chairman having regard to the urgency of the matter. Opinions shall be adopted by a majority of 41 votes, the votes of the Member States being weighted as provided in Article 148 (2) of the Treaty. The chairman shall not vote.

3. (a) The Commission shall adopt the measures envisaged where they are in accordance with the opinion of the committee.

(b) Where the measures envisaged are not in accordance with the opinion of the committee, or if no opinion is adopted, the Commission shall without delay propose to the Council the measures to be adopted. The Council shall act by a qualified majority.

(c) If, within three months of the proposal being submitted to it, the Council has not acted, the proposed measures shall be adopted by the Commission.

Article 12

1. Member States shall bring into force the laws, regulations and administrative provisions necessary to comply with this Directive within two years of its notification. They shall forthwith inform the Commission thereof.

2. Member States will communicate to the Commission the texts of the main provisions of national law which they adopt in the field covered by this Directive.

Article 13

Member States shall, four years following the notification of this Directive and at regular intervals thereafter, submit a comprehensive report to the Commission on their bathing water and the most significant characteristics thereof.

After prior consent has been obtained from the Member State concerned the Commission may publish the information obtained.

Article 14

This Directive is addressed to the Member States.

Done at Brussels, 8 December 1975.

For the Council
The President
M. PEDINI

(0) Provision exists for exceeding the limits in the event of exceptional geographical or meteorological conditions.

(1) When a sampling taken in previous years produced results which are appreciably better than those in this Annex and when no new factor likely to lower the quality of the water has appeared, the competent authorities may reduce the sampling frequency by a factor of 2.

(2) Concentration to be checked by the competent authorities when an inspection in the bathing area shows that the substance may be present or that the quality of the water has deteriorated.

(3) These parameters must be checked by the competent authorities when there is a tendency towards eutrophication of the water.

(1) Quality has been evaluated for the five parameters mentioned above :

- in green: compliance with the minimum quality standards for all parameters;
- in blue: compliance with the stricter recommended values for the first 2 parameters (microbiological) and with the minimum quality standards for the 3 other parameters.

(2) The percentage also contains the percentage complying with the stricter recommended values.

(3) Total coliforms are taken into consideration for fresh water only.

(4) Non-continental and/or overseas territories are not represented but are taken into consideration for the conformity calculations.
